Ike to Visit 9 Countries In December

Announces His Itinerary in Asia,
Europe, Africa

Washington — President Eisenhower announced today he will visit nine countries in Europe, Asia and Africa, starting Dec. 4.

Eisenhower told a news conference the 19-day good will tour will take him to: Rome, Italy; Ankara, Turkey; Karachi, Pakistan; Kabul, Afghanistan; New Delhi, India; Teheran, Iran; Athens, Greece; Paris, France; and Rabat, Morocco.

The tour to three continents will start in Rome with two days of talks there, beginning Dec. 4, with high Italian government officials.

In Paris For Talks
Eisenhower also said he hopes to call on Pope John XXIII.

Eisenhower plans to return to the United States Dec. 22, three days before Christmas. The president will be in Paris for three or four days starting Dec. 19 for the western summit conference.

He said today he will visit Rabat, Morocco on his way home, after leaving Paris.

The only other detail Eisenhower provided was that he will be in New Delhi Dec. 11 for the opening of the American exhibit at the international agricultural fair there.

President Says TV Scandal Must be Ended

Washington — President Eisenhower said today nobody is going to be satisfied until the television quiz rigging scandals are cleaned up.

Eisenhower told his news conference the attorney general will be ready before Jan. 1 with recommendations for changes in the law to prevent what he called the astonishing deceptions carried out on some programs.

The federal trade commission also is looking into the possibility of deceptive advertising, the president said. He added that there may be some things that will need correcting in that field.

People Bewildered
In response to questions Eisenhower said he does not believe the TV rigging indicates Americans have forgotten their moral standards.

The president said, on the other hand, that the reaction to TV quiz disclosures indicates that most Americans are not so much angry as bewildered.

The reaction, the president said, has been like that of the story relating to Shoeless Joe Jackson, the famed baseball player in the world series Black Sox scandal of 1919. A youthful fan said to Jackson, "Say it ain't so."

He is confident, Eisenhower said, that everybody in the television industry, from producers down through performers, wants to see this situation cleared up.

Democrats Win Major Jobs In Kentucky, Philadelphia

Also Gain in Mayoralty Races but Have Setbacks In New York, New Jersey

By the Associated Press

Kentucky — Democrat Bert T. Combs won governorship by a landslide over Republican John Robison, Jr.

Philadelphia — Incumbent Democratic Mayor Richardson Dilworth defeated Republican Harold E. Stassen overwhelmingly.

Indiana — Democrats retained mayor's office in every major city, and added Fort Wayne and Lafayette.

New York — Republicans ousted nine Democratic mayors upstate while losing only four municipalities.

New Jersey — Republicans staved off Democratic bid for control of state senate, narrowed Democratic margin in assembly; Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner's pet proposal to apply surplus turnpike funds to commuter railroads defeated.

Connecticut — Democrats scored three upsets in city elections, kept control of largest cities.

Salt Lake City — Former Republican Gov. J. Bracken Lee, now independent, made comeback with mayoralty win over Democrat Bruce S. Jenkins.

Democrats generally consolidated gains on state and local levels in yesterday's scattered off-year elections. In the main contest they easily retained the Kentucky governorship and the Philadelphia mayor's office.

Some Surprises

Democratic politicians, looking for a 1960 presidential year trend, could point to a strong showing as well in Indiana and Connecticut municipal elections. Indiana Democrats retained control of every major city and ousted Republicans in Fort Wayne and Lafayette.

But the Republicans gained in upstate New York, where they ousted nine Democratic mayors while losing four municipalities. In New Jersey Republicans not only staved off a Democratic bid to win control of the state senate, but apparently cut the Democratic majority in the assembly.

As usual in politics there were a few surprises and upsets. Former Utah Gov. J. Bracken Lee made a comeback by winning election as mayor of Salt Lake City. The ultra-conservative Lee not only won, but also carried the Turn to Page 13, Col. 2

Britain Ending Curbs on Trade

Washington — The British government today announced, effective Nov. 9, the end of most trade restrictions that for the past 20 years have sharply limited the import of foreign goods and products. Announcement of the move, with its wide effect on world trade, came here from the British information service.

British import controls have been in force since the outbreak of World War II in 1939. They have been used to protect Britain's pound sterling and hard-pressed post-war economy.

Calls for Approval Of 'Frugal Budget'

Nelson Says Needless Spending
Eliminated but No 'Meat Ax' Used

Madison — Gov. Gaylord Nelson today labeled his $220,410,479 second-year spending plan "a frugal budget" and urged the legislature to approve it.

"We eliminated spending wherever we could," the Democratic chief executive told a joint-meeting of the legislature, "but we did not go at this budget with a meat ax."

The legislature has already appropriated $216,315,239 for the biennium's second year, which begins July 1. Nelson is requesting an additional $4,100,000.

Urges Sales Levy Instead of Stoppag

La Crosse — The chairman of the committee for tax revision said Tuesday the legislature should enact a 3 per cent sales tax instead of stopgap tax measures.

David B. Stearns, Milwaukee, told a meeting that the plan proposed by his committee would raise $150,000,000 annually and provide for property tax reductions and eliminate the surtax on incomes.

Stearns said the plan calls for returning half of the money collected through the sales tax to local units of government as credits to reduce the property tax bill.

Child TV Star Missing From Hollywood Home

Hollywood — The mother of a well-known child television actress, Evelyn Rudie, 9, reported to police today that the girl is missing from the family home.

Mrs. Edith Bernauer said she put the girl to bed at 9 o'clock last night and found her missing when she went to her room about 7:30 a.m. today.

The mother said the girl's short dark coat also was missing.

Evelyn Rudie, at the age of 6, scored a hit playing the title role in "Eloise" on Playhouse 90. That was in 1956.

She has been in dozens of TV plays and only last Thursday was on the Groucho Marx show.

The actress' father is Emory Bernauer, a publicist and playwright.

Mrs. Bernauer and her husband said they know of no reason why the child would leave home. "She is a most reasonable child," said Mrs. Bernauer.

Sgt. J. W. Scheck of the juvenile division said there was nothing to indicate the child had been kidnapped.

Early Morning Attempt

Appleton Patrolman Thwarts Two Burglars

An alert Appleton patrolman early this morning thwarted plans of two men to burglarize the Schaefer Grocery store, 602 W. College avenue.

Arrested were Arthur E. Sullivan, 23, of 325 E. Tatt street, and David J. Hendricks, 21, of 1102 N. Superior street.

Patrolman David Karr, making a routine beat check at the grocery, said he saw two men fall to the floor when he flashed his light on a rear door at the store about 12:50 a.m. today.

Fine Policemen
After determining the pair was still inside, Karr went to the College avenue - State street intersection, where he summoned another patrolman to help him.

The two policemen returned to the store and a third officer arrived at the scene. One of the patrolmen had notified headquarters and two other officers arrived.

The officers broke in the rear door, which had been braced by the intruders. The pair was found hiding in some lumber left over from a remodeling job.

During questioning at the station, Sullivan and Hendricks admitted breaking into the store. Hendricks said he had a screwdriver and they tried prying open the rear door, but it was padlocked

American Flag Torn Down

Police and Troops Put Down Anti-U. S. Riots in Panama

BY LUIS NOLI

Panama — Panama was off limits for Americans living in the Canal Zone today after violent anti-U. S. demonstrations during the fifty-sixth anniversary of Panama's independence. At least 82 persons were injured, three seriously.

Crowds of demonstrators, protesting U. S. control of the canal, tore down the American flag at the U. S. embassy yesterday, stoned the embassy and the U. S. Information Service office, overturned American-owned autos and battled U. S. canal police for four hours.

The mobs finally were routed by Panamanian National guardsmen, Canal Zone police and firemen and U. S. Army troops armed with rifles, bayonets and machine guns. The Canal Zone police arrested six demonstrators.

Violence in Colon
Anti-American demonstrations also took place in Colon, Panama's second largest city at the Caribbean end of the canal. No casualties were reported from there. One mob broke into a U. S.-owned railroad station and carried off the cash box, but the ticket agent escaped by locking himself in his office.

Troops from the army's Caribbean command stood guard along the Canal Zone's borders. The 9,000 Americans living in the zone were ordered to stay inside the 500-square miles of U. S. territory. The army cancelled plans for units to march in a Panamanian flag day parade in the capital today.

The target of yesterday's outbreaks — touched off by Panamanian nationalists — was the unusual hold the United States has over the zone. The United States was granted control of the zone in perpetuity after it helped the Panamanians win their independence from Colombia. In return, the U. S. gave them the

TV Shows' Sponsor Says He Wasn't Informed That They Were Rigged

Washington — An official of a television show sponsor told congressional probes today he had no idea that TV quiz shows were rigged.

Martin Revson, an official of the Revlon company when Revlon was advertising sponsor of "The $64,000 Question" and "The $64,000 Challenge," declared:

"I never had the slightest knowledge that any contestant was told any answer in advance. It never entered my mind that the producer could control the losing or winning."

Two producers of the now defunct shows testified yesterday they were controlled.

Mert Koplin, associate producer, said Revlon was aware of this control. Steven R. Carlin, another associate producer, said the sponsor "indicated to us they had some idea we were controlling the show."

Blames Show Owners
Revson, who described himself as "the senior Revlon executive responsible" at the time but now a private investor, put the blame for any hanky-panky on the owners of the show, Entertainment Productions, Inc.

Challenging testimony that the sponsor made suggestions which virtually amounted to commands, Revson said:

"EPI was boss. They had the last word on everything about the shows. If we didn't like it, there was nothing we could do about it."

"I never knew any question before it was asked on the air," Revson said.

"I never had the slightest knowledge that any contestant was fed advance information as to any question."

The staff of the house legislative oversight subcommittee, it was learned, has begun gathering information on

'Tic Tac Dough' Show Rigged, Probe Shows

Washington — Confessions of rigging still another of the duels of television quizdom — a $108,000 contest — were revealed by house investigators today.

The contest, on the now defunct NBC program "Tic Tac Dough," resulted in New Jersey salesman Martin Dowd defeating Army Capt. Michael O'Rourke. O'Rourke won $108,000, Dowd $23,500.

The account was made public by the house legislative oversight subcommittee with the release of testimony taken behind closed doors Oct. 8 from Dowd, and on Oct. 9 from Howard Felsher, former producer of the show.

Dowd admitted being given all the questions and answers, but insisted vehemently he did not believe O'Rourke was fixed.

However, Felsher, when asked whether an O'Rourke-Dowd encounter was fixed, replied yes.

Goldwater Says Nixon Can Win Presidency

Kansas City — Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona says Vice President Nixon can lead the Republican party to victory next year if party members work hard.

The senator told about 600 Republicans at a dinner here last night that Nixon is "trained in politics and public office and understands the responsibilities of the presidency. He is not a product of the gray flannel ballot box."

Goldwater's espousal of Nixon drew heavy applause from the crowd.

Report Border Plane Fight

Give Conflicting
Reports on Incident

Jerusalem — Israel and Egyptian fighter planes clashed today in an aerial battle near the Israeli-Egyptian border.

The two governments, officially at war despite a long-standing armistice, gave differing accounts of exactly where the clash took place and of what happened.

The Israeli version is this: Four Egyptian MIG-17s, Soviet-made jet fighters, penetrated 15-20 miles over the Central-Negev desert of Israel before they were intercepted. All Israeli planes returned safely to base after driving the Egyptian planes back into Egyptian air space.

The Egyptian version: The light took place over Egypt's Sinai peninsula between Rafah and El Arish, just west of the controversial Gaza Strip. An Israeli fighter of the Mystere type, built in France, was hit. Flames and smoke were seen coming from it as it fled toward Israel. Six Israeli planes took part.

The Egyptian planes returned undamaged.

Congressman Dies In Auto Smashup

Chicago — Charles A. Boyle, 52, of Chicago, Democratic representative in congress since 1954, was killed early today when a car he was driving struck an elevated train pillar on the city's south-west side.

Police said that Boyle, who was alone in the car, apparently skidded on the wet street into the pillar on S. Western avenue. They said he was driving north, apparently on his way home. Rain fell from late last night into the early morning hours.

Boyle was a member of the House of Representatives since 1954. He was born in Chicago and had lived in the city since 1954.

House Committee Visits Bong Base

Preliminary Step to Investigation On Why Field Construction Work Stopped After Using $15 Million

Washington — (U) — A House armed services subcommittee visits the Bong air force base at Kansasville, today as a preliminary to a possible investigation on why construction at the base was cancelled.

The air force cancelled further work at the base Oct. 2 after spending more than $15 million on what was to have been a strategic bomber and jet interceptor center.

Meanwhile, the White House wrote Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.) that the Federal Aviation agency plans to initiate study to see whether the Bong base can be used in its aviation program.

Inspect Base — Reps. Melvin Price (D-Ill.) and Leslie C. Arends (R-Ill.) as a 2-man armed services subcommittee, were to inspect the base today along with Phil Lellander, a committee staff member.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-La.), in naming the two to the subcommittee last week, asked them to get a look at the base so the committee can be informed on the physical aspects when it decides what it will do about the situation.

Reuss has asked a house government operations subcommittee on military operations to try to find out why the base was first proposed and then abandoned. Reuss has opposed to construction of the base at Kansasville, in Racine and Kenosha counties. Jack Z. Anderson, administrative assistant to Eisenhower, wrote Reuss that the decision to cancel the Bong base was made at the earliest possible time after such action was indicated by a review of the air force program.

"Every consideration is being given to minimizing the impact and developing a constructive solution to the disposition or use of the property," Anderson wrote.

"According to my understanding, the air force is representing it as excess to its needs and the department of defense will follow suit. The General Services administration will then assume responsibility for its utilization within the government or its disposal as surplus property."

Cancer Takes Life of Iowa Congressman

Washington — (U) — Rep. Steven V. Carter (D-Iowa), died early today. First stricken by cancer in 1957, he had been gradually losing ground in his battle with the disease and was under treatment in the Navy Medical center at Bethesda, Md.

Another Democratic congressman, Rep. Charles Boyle, 52, of Chicago, was killed today when his car rammed an elevated train pillar there. The two deaths left the Democrats with 281 house seats to the Republicans' 153.

Carter, 44, was sworn into office last January as a first-term member of the house. The first Democrat elected from his district, he was named to the seat formerly held by Karl M. LeCompte, who retired after serving 20 years in the house.

First treated for cancer in 1957, he suffered a second attack shortly after taking office in January.

Death came shortly after 2 a.m. in the Bethesda hospital.

Funeral arrangements were not completed, but the congressman will be buried at his home town of Leon, Iowa.

Carter, born Oct. 8, 1915, drew nationwide attention soon after coming to Washington when he became involved in a controversy surrounding nepotism — employment of relatives by persons on government payrolls. There is nothing illegal about the practice.

Hails Finding Of Synthetic Type Penicillin

May Open Way For Drugs Against Many Maladies

Washington — (U) — The recent development of synthetic penicillin may open the way to more potent drug weapons against a variety of maladies, even including cancer, a scientist said today.

The possibility was raised by Dr. Henry Welch, chief of the antibiotics division of the Federal Food and Drug administration, in an address prepared for the seventh annual symposium on antibiotics. Medical scientists from the United States and 22 foreign countries are attending.

Through chemical sleight of hand, Dr. Welch said, it might be possible to take the basic component of the new man-made penicillin and build it into innumerable substances having the safety features of penicillin but far more versatility than it has against disease germs.

Experimenters already have shown that various forms of the new synthetic penicillin can be made by altering the "side-chain" attached to the basic structure, Dr. Welch said, adding:

"Perhaps here we have a key that in the near future may open the door to a broad-spectrum penicillin, to antifungal penicillins, anti-viral penicillins or even to penicillins active against tumor cells by the correct manipulation of the 'guiding side chain.'"

Expanding in an interview, Welch said it might be possible to link the basic structure of the synthetic penicillins to certain chemical components of some of the newer and more versatile natural antibiotics.

These newer drugs, he said, attack more and different varieties of germs than any of the penicillins—but all can produce undesirable side effects. Conceivably, he said, the undesirable characteristics of the newer drugs could be eliminated by linking them with the new penicillin base.

A number of antibiotics have been developed which can fight cancer cells, but most of them are far too toxic to use, Welch said. He added that if the cancer-attacking component of such drugs could be isolated and then made into a stable drug by combination with a synthetic penicillin base, it might then be possible to give patients large quantities of such drugs without causing harm.

On his visit to the brokerage office, he met sales representative Joe Turner and agreed to talk on the phone with Mrs. Turner. He didn't identify himself at first. He told Mrs. Marjorie Turner:

"I'm at the brokerage bar. I've been out with your husband all night. Maybe you'd better send a cab for him."

Not fooled in the least, Mrs. Turner replied: "We're all working for you, Mr. Nixon, to be the next president."

Later Nixon sauntered into a Wilshire boulevard restaurant and ordered a hamburger, buttermilk and coffee.

A newsman asked waitress Loretta Bovard: "Do you know who this is?"

"No I don't," she replied, "But he looks like a nice gentleman."

The vice president of the United States volunteered: "I'm Bob Hope."

Although it appears to be a war-torn city, this tank is really being driven away from a burning national guard armory building near Welch, W. Va. Two tanks, one new armored personnel carrier and five trucks also were salvaged. The building, valued at $100,000 was a total loss as firemen had to stand by with no water available. The fire is believed to have started around a basement furnace.

Leaders Have 65 Bills Left

Agree That All Will Be Killed By Legislature

Madison — (U) — Republican and Democratic legislative leaders apparently are in agreement that all the 65 bills left over from the spring session should be killed.

Twenty party leaders met with Gov. Gaylord Nelson Tuesday to discuss what should be done on the bills held over and whether there should be a limit to the number of new proposals introduced at the current session.

Nothing was agreed upon at the bipartisan session in the governor's office, but the leaders indicated they wanted to keep the session short and this could be done if the old bills were killed and the number of new measures held down.

13 New Bills — Nelson said he would offer about 13 new bills in addition to the revenue-raising measures that are needed. His list contains three purely correctional measures and two bills that would give the state government powers that might be needed in connection with abandonment of the Richard I. Bong air force base in Racine and Kenosha counties.

Others include requests for personal property tax adjustments, a $250,000 scholarship fund, revamping of the law on eminent domain as it relates to highway right-of-way purchases, changing the constitution to allow the state to incur debt and a referendum on state regulations of billboards on highways.

Sen. Robert Knowles (R-Richmond) told the governor that the Republicans who control his house want an understanding on what is to be considered. He said the door should not be opened to all kinds of legislation because it would keep the lawmakers in session indefinitely.

On his visit to the brokerage office, he met sales representative Joe Turner and agreed to talk on the phone with Mrs. Turner. He didn't identify himself at first. He told Mrs. Marjorie Turner:

"I'm at the brokerage bar. I've been out with your husband all night. Maybe you'd better send a cab for him."

Catholic Priest Offers His Life for 150 Youths

Hungarian Teenagers to Die for Part In Revolt Against Reds 3 Years Ago

New York — (U) — A young Roman Catholic priest who fought in the Hungarian revolution offered his life today in exchange for the teenagers he says are awaiting execution.

The Rev. Vazul Vegvary, 30, of the Holy Ascension church, Roehling, N. J., said "those kids followed me because I am a priest." He felt responsible for their fate.

Father Vegvary marched with 130 other Hungarian refugees who demonstrated for an hour early today outside the Park avenue headquarters of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations. The refugees marched silently with black flags and the Hungarian colors on the third anniversary of the Hungarian uprising.

Dr. Beja Fabian, chairman of the Federation of Hungarian Former Political Prisoners, said the youngsters were sentenced to death at secret trials for their part in the revolt when they were 13 and 14 years old. He said they are to be executed as they reach 18, since Hungarian law forbids the execution of anyone under 18. Fabian said he got his information from letters smuggled from Hungary.

Father Vegvary said he had sent a telegram to the Soviet delegation to the U.N. offering himself in exchange for the teenagers' freedom.

He said he was willing to stand trial for his own part in the revolution and accept a sentence "even to the death" if the youths would be turned over to an authorized U.N. committee on neutral soil.

Winter Quarters of Ringling Circus Sold — Sarasota, Fla. — (U) — The 157-acre winter quarters of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus has been sold for $340,000 to a real estate development firm.

A spokesman said the circus is seeking a smaller tract on which to locate its winter quarters. The circus will retain many relics, such as four private railroad cars and hundreds of smaller items now stored at the quarters.

Israeli Vote Returns Assure Ben-Gurion of Dominant 4-Year Spot

Labor Party Still Shy Majority But Drew 38 Per Cent of Ballots

Jerusalem, Israeli Sector — (U) — General election returns today assured Premier David Ben-Gurion's dominant mapai (labor) party an even stronger role in the Israeli parliament for the next four years.

Ben-Gurion and his socialist followers will still lack a majority in the 120-member parliament, but they drew more than 38 per cent of the popular vote in the balloting Tuesday against 32.2 per cent in 1955.

Though the exact division under Israeli's proportional representation system will not be decided for about a week, an unofficial count indicated that mapai representatives, who held 40 seats in the old parliament, will now control 45 or 46.

Higher Percentage — Returns from all but 227 of the 2,502 polling places on the 24-party race gave Ben-Gurion's party 38.5 per cent of the total vote, a higher percentage than it had polled in any of Israel's three previous elections. Of 947,213 votes counted, mapai had 367,524.

The chief opposition, Menachem Begin's right wing herut (freedom party) had 124,174 or 13.37 per cent. Others included the national religious front, 92,633; conservative general Zionists, 55,526; mapai socialists, 66,921. Communists were among the also runs, with 25,186 votes or 2.8 per cent; a sharp drop from the last election. Of 1,200,000 eligibles, 81 per cent voted.

Although the mapai ran far ahead of the field this time, Ben-Gurion again will have to form a coalition government, as he has since Israel became a nation 10 years ago. His last coalition was a group of four parties commanding 69 seats. Ben-Gurion's party withstood a vigorous campaign by the herut party, which hoped to win four or five seats more than the 15 it held in the last parliament.

The returns indicate herut, which stands for expansion of Israel's borders, cannot count on more than one or two extra seats.

Prices Raised for San Francisco Papers — San Francisco's two morning newspapers, the Chronicle and the Examiner, today announced they are raising their home delivery prices slightly — from $2.50 per month or $2.50 for four weeks. The increase amounts to about 20 cents a month. The change is effective tomorrow.

Newsstand prices remain 10 cents daily and 20 cents on Sunday.

Pope John Marks 1st Year As Pontiff

Prayers of World Requested to Aid Him in Second Year

Vatican City — (U) — Pope John XXIII today marked the first anniversary of his coronation and asked for the prayers of the entire Roman Catholic church to aid him in the second year of his pontificate.

The 77-year-old pope spoke during a mass honoring him in St. Peter's basilica. Thirty-one cardinals, hundreds of bishops and bishops, the diplomatic corps to the Vatican and about 20,000 people attended.

Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, archbishop of Milan, celebrated the mass.

The pontiff, audibly moved by emotion, recalled events of his first year as supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic church and once again pleaded for peace.

Many sorrows, the pope said, continue to be provoked in the world by "the incessant violence of error and evil."

Despite this, he continued, there yet and always are reasons to rise as on granite columns the fundamentals of the social life of the church, whose mission, begun on earth, is the beginning of celestial glory.

The pope spoke from his throne. His words were broadcast by the Vatican and Italian radios. He wore white, golden decorated robes. On his head was the tri-regnum of his high office, a bee-hive shaped crown.

He said that the presence of the throne in St. Peter's "also is eloquent in confirming to us that we are not the victims of illusions, and that the spirit of truth, of union, of concord, of peace lodges constantly in the world and extends over our heads."

Nixon Takes Stroll in Truman-Like Fashion

Los Angeles — (U) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon borrowed a page from former President Harry S. Truman's campaign book on how to win friends and influence voters yesterday.

He took a folksy stroll around Beverly Hills and discussed sports with construction workers, visited a brokerage office, kibitzed with a lady supporter, joshed a waitress and ate a hamburger.

Nixon also met with Republican leaders in his hotel suite and had lunch with relatives.

Last night, he told an audience of 1,000 that "Communism is doomed to fail."

"Mr. Khrushchev is wrong. Communism is not the way of the future. Man needs freedom and a supreme being."

The vice president said recognition of the power of prayer was a basic concept on which the United States was founded. He emphasized that the main defect of Soviet philosophy was its dependence on materialism.

Nixon spoke at a banquet honoring the 18th anniversary of the "Rosary Hour" radio program which seeks world peace through prayer.

It was all part of his 6-day vacation, which his aides say is non-political.

On his visit to the brokerage office, he met sales representative Joe Turner and agreed to talk on the phone with Mrs. Turner. He didn't identify himself at first. He told Mrs. Marjorie Turner:

"I'm at the brokerage bar. I've been out with your husband all night. Maybe you'd better send a cab for him."

Not fooled in the least, Mrs. Turner replied: "We're all working for you, Mr. Nixon, to be the next president."

Later Nixon sauntered into a Wilshire boulevard restaurant and ordered a hamburger, buttermilk and coffee.

A newsman asked waitress Loretta Bovard: "Do you know who this is?"

"No I don't," she replied, "But he looks like a nice gentleman."

The vice president of the United States volunteered: "I'm Bob Hope."

Envious Charlie Willing to Give Quotable Examples of Ad Libbing

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

I have always envied those quick-minded folks who are skillful with the ad lib: As it is with all envy, mine is generated by the fact that I cannot do it at all; I cannot ad lib my middle initial. I have difficulty in dictating a letter that I approve of. And sometimes I cannot even ad lib the word "no."

It is for that reason that I admire people who can make an off-the-cuff statement good enough to repair a situation or to set up a better one.

A classic example of this kind of skill developed when Actor Maurice Schwartz was performing in a play whose name escapes me. A co-actor who played the part of a banker was to listen to a Schwartz appeal for financial assistance, and he was to decline.

Gave Wrong Line

Schwartz handled his lines so appealingly that the actor-banker forgot himself, and swayed by Schwartz's eloquence, he said, "yes." That was to be the first act curtain line and obviously it should have spoiled the rest of the show for his agreeing to supply the aid.

But when the second act curtain rose, a new scene had been introduced. It simply had Schwartz walking across the stage with a widow and saying, "I wondered what happened to change the banker's mind. Now he refuses to help."

I suppose that theatrical people are the very best at the slick insertion of words where none is supposed to be. There are many examples of dramas saved by an ad lib.

In London long ago I was attending a play in which James Mason had the starring role. I regret that I have forgotten the title of the play, a comedy. The scene was laid in an old home which the actor and his stage wife were considering as a purchase.

Mason Ad Libs

At it happened, they were getting set to decline the purchase when a real German V-1 landed and exploded just a few blocks from the theater. There was, of course, a great explosion which was felt in the theater. The chandeliers swayed and dust from the ceiling and from the plaster rained down on the audience. Everyone was frightened, but Mason—after the first shocked silence—picked up the play as well as the spirit of the audience.

He pointed to the ceiling and said, "I give you an absolute and final 'no'; this house has mice!"

One of the famed ad libs of the theater came from Juano Hernandez in his role as "De Lawd" in the unforgettable "Green Pastures."

Forgets Lines

It happened that a fellow actor had one of those terrible moments which comes, I libber of stature. Were he to be elected to the presidency he would undoubtedly be the most quotable president in our history. Some there are who do not believe a statesman should be guilty of the wise crack, but nevertheless Stevenson is an old pro.

During the national Democratic convention when he made his big bid, he was introduced to a woman who then introduced her small son. It turned out he was a smart aleck. After a brief exchange with the boy, Stevenson and his party moved off. Someone said, "Kids today are pretty smart."

"That's true," Stevenson said, "but some of them don't smart in the right place."

Classic Example

A classic example of an ad lib, a bon mot and an old pro took place at a Friars testimonial dinner for Jack Bennois, was invited to the affair dominated by professional comedians. Each, of course, spoke with the hope of topping everyone else. Then the late Fred Allen gave one of the main addresses. It was a classic of pungent wit. Laughter was tremendous and so was his applause.

The chairman then called upon Adlai Stevenson. There was a restless movement among the audience; nobody wanted to listen to a windy politician. But Stevenson rose and said something like this:

"I apologize to you because I just do not have a speech to give you. I did prepare one. I spent a lot of time and effort on it because I know it would have to be a very good speech for such an audience as this."

"But I met Fred Allen in the elevator on the way up here. Allen looked so sad that I asked him what his trouble was. He confessed that he was obliged to speak here, but that he didn't have much time to prepare. As a result, he told me, he was disappointed and would be ashamed to give it his speech."

"I felt so sorry for Fred," Stevenson said, "that I gave him mine."

Wisconsin's Executive Budget

The Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance at Madison supplied its subscribers with a thumbnail sketch of the Wisconsin financial situation on the eve of the convening of the Wisconsin legislature. The job of the new session of the legislature will be to provide funds for the second year of the biennium.

The budget problem for the first year of the biennium was met during the first session of the legislature. When the Nelson administration took over there was a surplus of $17.4 million on hand. The legislature enacted a 25 per cent surtax on individual incomes. This brought the estimated revenues to $187.2 million. Using the $17.4 million surplus, funds available totaled $204.7 million. As the appropriations were only $201.2 million, the outlook is for a surplus of $3.4 million as of July 1, 1960, the start of the second year of the biennium.

Using that surplus and the expected revenues of $187.3 million, the state will have available $190.8 million. Since the net appropriations for the second year are $213.6 million, the prospect is for a deficit of $22.8 million. However, the governor has indicated that he will request an additional appropriation of $5.6 million. That will bring the expected deficit to $28.4 million.

Of course with the legislature in session it is quite possible that there will be additional appropriations thus increasing the deficit to how much no one knows.

The governor has suggested that this deficit of $28 million plus could be handled by using a part of the windfall from withholding income tax from salaries and wages. The alternative he suggests is an increase of the income tax rates all the way along the line coupled with other miscellaneous changes. That is the case as the Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance sees it and it is a good starting point to understand what is going to happen at this session.

The legislature at the earlier session refused to accept the withholding tax plan and there certainly will be objection to it at the new session. In the meantime, there will be many other proposals including the adoption of a sales tax to meet the deficit. While Gov. Nelson has spoken of his plan as a stopgap measure, it is practically certain that if a withholding tax is adopted it will be permanent. Many of the legislators will contend that the sales tax can be a stopgap and temporary thing just as easily as a change in the income tax steps and perhaps more easily than a withholding plan.

Just the Facts, Please

The Appleton Board of Education has rewritten its "purpose of education" statement from an epistle of four pages to a 2-sentence statement. The revision is interesting, not because the original was erroneous, but because the new represents the growing realization that the business of education is exactly just that.

The old document outlined four principles which were supposed to be kept in mind during the educational process. These included the maturing individual in a democratic pattern of living, the nature of a democratic society, the individual and the nature of learning, and educational facilities and policies. The new statement merely says "the purpose of the Appleton public schools is to impart the accumulated knowledge of mankind by effective teachings. Each child, through learning and developing his mind and talents to capacity, will be enabled and encouraged to contribute to the progress of civilization."

When educators were worrying so frantically about "the whole child" and his "adjustment" to society, it was no wonder that schools began to add courses and activities about practically everything in life. Obviously driving a car was part of living in the United States so driver education must be included. Divorce rates were skyrocketing so preparation for marriage must be evolved as a course. There was a place in a democracy for everyone so the slow learners were promoted along with the quick so they wouldn't feel neglected. Obviously getting all these things across to a child became of primary importance so methodology became paramount to scholastic achievement.

How Inflation Is Felt

We often have heard during the past few months that the cruellest tax of all is inflation because it falls heaviest upon those with low incomes and therefore those who are least able to pay.

The latest publication of Tax Foundation, New York, says its statistics show that last year, 1958, a $5,000 a year family lost approximately $137.50 due to inflation. The loss also is being seriously felt, this publication says, by the elderly, the pensioners, the disabled and the holders of insurance. Then it says that some of the impact of this loss can be charged to increased government deficit spending but the chance of escaping this tax in the near future is not good since the estimate of fiscal 1960 spending by the national government is that it will be $14.3 billion higher than in 1955.

To show how this spending has progressed the Foundation presents a little chart which indicates that the total federal income tax collections in 1913 were $35 million. That was at the rate of $67 per minute. By 1940 the total collections reached $2.1 billion, or a rate of $4.043 per minute. Four years later the total was $34.6 billion or $65,934 per minute. In 1956 the federal income tax was bringing in $56.6 billion or $107,749 a minute. In 1959 the total collections reached $58.8 billion or $111,912 per minute. The estimate for 1960 is $68.4 billion or approximately $130,000 per minute.

In short, the government now collects in 29 minutes the same amount of money it collected for the entire year of 1913 via the income tax, that is $35 million. Recently President Eisenhower, in calling on Congress to aid in stemming the spiraling inflation, declared that "both individual security and economic growth are being threatened by inflation, which has cut the value of the dollar in half since 1933."

It is certainly true that the big spending programs in Congress have been urged on the ground that they help the little fellow, the needy, the poor, those receiving Social Security and income from insurance, yet nothing can be plainer than the fact that the very people it is proposed to help by these programs are those first injured by inflation which is largely caused by government deficit spending. And in this day and age there is practically no government spending above the usual budget requirements that is not deficit spending.

Wants Sen. Draheim to Tell How State Can Cut Expenses

Editor, Post-Crescent:

For the past year we have been hearing our state senator, William Draheim, complain that our state government was spending too much.

He is not new on the political scene, and has changed colors on issues and his party label over those years. Now, he is presented with the problem of raising the money to furnish the University of Wisconsin extension division at Menasha. He has been quick to report to the press that he will obtain those funds. I do not condemn him for this action, but it is just one more example in our own area on how the financial needs of our state grow. Sen. Draheim's request, and the financial request of others, all add up to be paid from money collected by our state tax.

It is reasonable to expect that after preaching high cost of our state government for a year that by this time he would have been prepared to state exactly: when; where; and how much money he could save the taxpayers of this community. Sen. Draheim was not prepared in the last session to tell the governor and the people in his own district what services to cut and thus effect the reduced cost of government to the taxpayers.

Fortunately, for the first time in a number of years Gov. Nelson and his staff have in effect asked the question: What is your service and why do you need the funds you are requesting? when each state agency made its appeal for money. It is interesting to note that these same departments which are appealing for funds are controlled by Republican appointees, in one form or the other.

Fortunately for Sen. Draheim he will have his opportunity to tell the governor and the people of this district what service to cut and effect lower cost in our state government in the special session convening at Madison. Then we will be able to see how prepared Sen. Draheim is in proving the honesty and sincerity of his own oratory of the past year.

Better to Forestall Atomic War Than Plan for Survivors

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The Post-Crescent recently has given a lot of space to describing the Civil Defense program designed to insure that there will be survivors following a nuclear war.

It seems to me that only half of the job is being done. Certainly the possible survivors are going to have a very rough time, and it would only be fair if we, with our comforts, time and resources would formulate plans for their future. Such a blueprint for survivors should stop short of nothing but outlining procedures for the achievement of the same high level of mechanization that we now enjoy; right up to the point of matching our existing stockpile of missiles and nuclear bombs.

Of course we must be very careful in choosing the people with whom we entrust the responsibility of drafting such a blueprint. We must be wary of dreamers and visionaries who might mislead our survivors and urge that they renounce their nationalistic prides and prejudices and that they engage in the formation of an international organization with legislative, judicial and executive branches strong enough to see that all disputes between nations are settled peaceably.

Such unrealistic, fuzzy-minded thinkers might even suggest that we ourselves follow such a procedure before we are blown up.

Church Ladies Open Art Rooms

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Nov. 6, 1880.

The Ladies of the Congregational Society opened their art rooms to the public on Wednesday evening. This is a new departure in the line of entertainment and promises to become popular.

The rooms are immediately back of Dr. Douglas' dental parlors and have been put in order especially for the occasion. They are furnished with all the needful cases and stands for displaying the various lace, embroidery, statuary and ceramic collections. The walls were entirely covered with oil paintings, crayons and engravings, tastefully arranged and intermingled.

Apart from the pleasure of looking over the collections, each evening there are very pleasing programmes, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and declamations.

Wednesday evening Miss Dewey furnished the instrumental music, the Misses Morey and Clark the vocal.

Asks Oath Of Office Be Printed

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Please print the oath of office pledged by our mayor, city council and school board members. I am of the opinion the pledge is the same for all public officials in our municipalities. I have often seen pictures of them taking this pledge when being sworn in to office, and I would like to see oath in print. Just what does this oath of office mean?

No Indication Here Of Rockefeller Boom

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The inquiries from eastern points about the attitude of this early primary state toward the aspirations of Gov. Rockefeller are beginning, and a tentative answer must be that there is little on the record to suggest that Wisconsin will do the New York executive any good in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination.

These things must be judged according to the actions of the politicians themselves, whose collective judgment about popular reaction is perhaps as reliable an instrument for the guidance of the reporter as is available to him.

The experienced Republicans of this state are making no moves toward Rockefeller. Such overtures as there have been have come from men who, if not exactly amateurs, yet have no performance records such as having been elected or re-elected to office. They also tend to be, as a group, dissidents and side-liners, with no proved following. It may be unfair to the New York governor, but the record thus far is bare of any suggestion of support here for him among men who can be called "leaders" on the basis of their records and the election statistics.

THE O'KONSKI STORY

There are the announcements of such men as Wilbur Renk, the Sun Prairie farmer who is a member of the University of Wisconsin board of regents, an appointive seat.

Renk owes his political stature, whatever it is, to Walter J. Kohler, who was elected governor of the state three times. It is perhaps relevant to note that Kohler will be a part of the Wisconsin campaign to elect delegates favorable to Vice President Nixon.

But perhaps a better example of what is going on — that I will support the constitution of the United States of America and the constitution of the state of Wisconsin and will faithfully perform my duties as... in and for the city of Menasha to the best of my abilities, so help me God."

currently, at least — is the extraordinary experience a few weeks ago of Rep. O'Konski of the Wisconsin tenth district. There is no shrewder student of public opinion in state politics than the egregious O'Konski. He put out a press release one day announcing that Rockefeller looked pretty good to him. A few days later came another press release saying, in effect, that he was too busy with his own chores to handle the Rockefeller campaign he had earlier implied he would like to launch. What had happened in the interim? Such an explosive reaction from his own district, where he wants to stay in office, that he hastily and without dignity ran for cover. O'Konski will be for Nixon, or he will sit it out — with the latter more likely.

The Wisconsin Nixon campaign is already well organized in a quiet way, and when it is unwrapped in its mechanical details will be one of the most impressive of its kind seen in this state with its record of numerous well-organized presidential drives. There isn't the slightest doubt that as things stand today the vice president is the overwhelming favorite of the Wisconsin Republicans who will vote in the presidential preference primary next spring.

WHAT THEN?

All of which is not to say that sentiment couldn't change, or that the New York governor is altogether friendless here.

His publicity has been superb. There is a general impression of an engaging personality. What is lacking is exposure, as it might be put, a public knowledge of the man's ideas and attitudes, what he represents, what he would espouse as a candidate for the White House.

Is he the advanced liberal, as the listener might conclude from the admiring comments of local liberals? If so, he will cut a peculiar figure in a competition for the presidential nomination with the vice president, who is far from being a conservative, according to an authoritative recent campaign biography.

Mr. Rockefeller obviously could command a considerable campaign budget, should he decide to test his wings here. Such matters are important, as has been demonstrated time and again, and especially in a primary where a relatively small minority of the electorate is making the decisions. But even with such material advantages, a candid estimate today would be that he would have only the slimmest chance of besting Mr. Nixon in Wisconsin in the spring.

Barbour Family Serial Still Missed by Many

Creator Carleton Morse Gets 100 Letters a Week on 28-Year Show

BY BOB THOMAS
Hollywood — To many an American, "One Man's Family" was like his own. That's why the disappearance of the longtime radio-TV serial has caused a void in so many lives.

The saga of the Barbours dropped out of broadcasting last spring after 28 years on the air. Creator Carleton E. Morse estimates that between 25,000 and 30,000 letters of protest poured into NBC. He is still receiving 100 letters a week.

"But NBC moved into a new policy of radio programming," the veteran producer remarked. "Our show didn't fit into it, so we were dropped."

"There still is considerable interest to revive 'One Man's Family.' There has been talk of going onto the new World-Wide network. Something may eventuate. If it does — fine. But I'm not going after it."

Keeps in Touch
The soft-spoken Morse has suffered two serious illnesses and has been limiting his activities. He spends a great deal of his time at his farm on the peninsula south of San Francisco.

But he is also here part of the year and keeps in touch with those who were members of his professional family for many years.

J. Anthony Smyth, who played father Barbour from the beginning, is near 80, but he still asks me if the show is going back on the air," Morse said.

Other Alumni
Of the others, Page Gilman, who started as Jack at 14 and continued through the history of the show, is a printer living in Ojai. Bor-nice Berwin, who was Hazel, is married to a San Francisco attorney.

Russell Thorson (Paul) and Virginia Gregg (Betty) are active in television, as are most of the other cast alumni. At least two of the TV cast have prospered since project for three years.

their "One Man's Family" days—Eva Marie Saint, who played Claudia, and Tony Randall, who was one of her suitors.

The show started in San Francisco and moved to Hollywood in 1937. It transferred to TV in the early years of the medium, surviving three years as a nighttime program and one year during the day. Morse did all of the writing except for the last eight years, when he was assisted by Harlan Ware.

Morse had borne the Barbours through heartache and happiness down to a fourth generation. The end, he admitted, "was like being severed from your own family."

Mozart Opera Features Two New Singers

BY W. G. ROGERS

Associated Press Art Editor

New York — Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," one of the most delightful operas, got a most delightful production in the Metropolitan Opera house.

Everything the happy public saw and heard added zest and sparkle to its enjoyment: voices, orchestra, conducting, staging, costumes and sets.

It was a brand-new show — new decors, new glowing silks and satins, new ordering of the action on the stage, and two very welcome new singers, a soprano from Sweden and a basso who is a distant neighbor of hers, from Finland.

Talented Singers

The part of Susanna, a highly singable name, was sung by Elisabeth Soederstrom for her Met debut. She was completely charming.

The other newcomer, Kim Borg, brought to the role of the count an impressive figure, a talent for acting, and a ringing voice warm and touching.

Others in the cast were Lisa Della Casa as the countess, Cosare Siepi as Figaro, Mildred Miller as Cherubino and, in various roles, Regina Resnik, Mildred Allen, Teresa Stratas, Joan Wall, Ezio Flaggello, Charles Kullman, Gabor Carelli and Lawrence Davidson. Sets and costumes were by Oliver Messel. Cyril Ritchard was stage director.

Color TV Gets Trial In Missile School

Huntsville, Ala. — Color TV in the classroom? It is getting a trial at the ordinance guided missile school at Redstone arsenal.

Col. Charles W. Eifler, school commander, said color TV should be especially valuable in teaching the complicated wiring systems in missiles.

It also is hoped that the teaching method will perk up students' interest and simplify learning the insides of missiles, some of which contain 100,000 parts.

Plans call for 160 students to get up to 77 class hours of instruction via color TV. The army has been using black and white TV in its classroom programs for the last year. It is considered successful.

American Miss of 9 Called 'Child Wonder'

Georgy Bender Youngest Student
At Famed Vienna Music Academy

BY PETER HOFFER

Vienna —A— The youngest student ever admitted to the famed Vienna Academy of Music is a 9-year-old American girl with blonde curls, a ready smile, and remarkable mastery of the keyboard.

Giorgiana Bender, daughter of a retired United States Air Force officer, has been the "wunderkind" (child wonder) of the academy since she was accepted for the 6-year course of piano studies in the spring of 1958.

Georgy, as she is called by her parents, was born at Wright-Patterson Air Force base in Ohio when her father, Lt. Col. George F. Bender, was stationed there. The family moved to Riederau in upper Bavaria when Bender returned from the air force. "Georgy loved to play the piano from the very start," says the child's mother. "She would pick out little tunes on the keyboard and finally I decided to give her lessons, when she was only 4." The mother is an amateur pianist. If life is tough for a "wunderkind," Giorgiana does not show it. She looks happy. After lessons and four to five hours of daily practicing, she has little time for play. But she loves her dolls and teddy bears of which she has a large family, all lovingly cared for.

Talent Recognized

Among the first to recognize her astonishing musical talent was German composer and professor Richard Trunk. He advised the Benders to let little Giorgiana have regular instruction from a music teacher. At the age of 5 she entered her first public piano competition at Munich, emerging first in her age group.

Georgy, only 4 feet, 2 inches, cannot reach the piano pedals and has a special pedal attachment so that she can play.

Before moving to Vienna Georgy won recognition in West Germany as a "wunderkind," giving a one and one-half hour recital from memory playing Beethoven, Schubert, Mozart and Bach, plus a series of pieces "for small hands" specially written for her by composer Trunk.

Georgy's call to Vienna came when one of the leading piano professors at the academy heard her play and advised the Benders to bring their child here.

The Benders live near the academy and daily, accompanied by her mother, Georgy walks to the grey-walled building where the next youngest student is 14 and students are generally admitted at 16.

Georgy takes piano lessons, studies music theory, harmony and instrumentation in addition to the German language. In all subjects she has excellent grades.

"Georgy," says her mother, "finds it hard to associate with girls of her age and even older girls. She is so very different, even though she does not actually feel it. Her life is dedicated to the piano and she loves every minute of it."

"Each time when we go home after a concert I ask my little girl 'do you still want to become a pianist? You heard how hard it is.' Of course I do," Giorgiana always replies," Mrs. Bender says.

Musicals May Be Over for Fred Astaire

Limber Dancer to Present Another TV
'Evening' Nov. 4

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood —A— Has Fred Astaire made his last film musical? He hints that may be so.

"No studio has come up with one for me, and I'm certainly not going to look for one," he remarked at his Beverly Hills home. "I don't know where one could be found, anyway. There just aren't any around."

"Besides, I don't know what I could do in one. I am certainly not going to chase any girls. I'm beyond the girl-chasing state, and I only did it in a couple of pictures, anyway. I just won't do a movie that calls for a romance."

Another 'Evening' If the lithe and limber Astaire art will be denied to movie audiences, it still will be visible on the home screens. There will be "Another Evening" by new authors are being presented this winter in cross-country showcases.

Now three of the eight have been optioned for Broadway presentation. The works are "Bambino," "Physician" and "Kinderspiel."

ning with Fred Astaire" on NBC Nov. 4.

Having captured a wagon-load of Emmies for his last "Evening," he is constantly asked how he can top himself. "I'm not trying to top myself," he said, "and I never have. I never look back, except to have an occasional regret. That's unavoidable, I'm afraid. I saw one of my pictures on television the other night — one I had made 20 years ago—and I thought at a couple of places, 'Gee, why didn't I do that differently.'"

Fred feels that nostalgia is a show business trap.

In New Movie "Performers are always talking about the 'good old days,'" he scoffed. "The good days weren't that good. With few exceptions, the movies today are much better done than they used to be. 'The same goes for the stage. I have never seen a better musical than 'My Fair Lady.' It's simply terrific."

I agreed to do it."

Broadway Producer Backs New Tradition For Opening Nights

New York —A— Broadway producer Alexander H. Cohen wants to start a new tradition for theatrical opening nights.

Instead of the fancy telegrams and cards sent to performers, Cohen has started using a simple greeting which says "Every good wish on your opening night. A contribution in your name has been made to the Actors Fund."

It is estimated that the fund, which provides for the welfare of and medical care of the needy, could benefit $50,000 annually if the idea catches on.

cent years. Panamanian nationalists have been demanding that their government establish its sovereignty over the zone.

Official Complaint

While there was no evidence of government participation in the demonstrations yesterday, the government frequently has complained that Panamanian employees of the Canal Zone company are not treated as well as U.S. employees and also that Panama should be paid more rent for the canal.

U. S. Ambassador Julian Harrington filed a strong protest with the Panama foreign office against the desecration of the American flag and the damage to U. S. property. There was no immediate comment from the Panamanian government.

The demonstrations in Panama City began with a peaceful "show of the flag" in the Canal Zone led by two nationalist leaders, Ernesto Castillero Pimental and former Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd. They made a quiet motor tour of the zone, carrying small flags and posing for photographers.

Repelled by Police Later a group of youths carrying a large Panamanian flag tried to enter the Canal Zone across Fourth of July avenue — the unmarked boundary line between the zone and the capital. Canal Zone police, wielding long night sticks, forced the youths back.

A teenager then started pushing several of the policemen. When they grabbed him and another youth, a large group of rock-throwing demonstrators rushed the police detail.

The police and firemen finally drove the crowd of about 200 back with tear gas and fire hoses.

Meanwhile, other demonstrators led by Boyd and Castillero Pimental attacked the embassy building, smashing lack of trying. Though he seemed to be at the end of a downhill political trail, he said "I may run for political office in the future. I am still a young man and plan to be active in politics."

In Philadelphia ever-hopeful Republican Harold E. Stassen went down to a predicted defeat by incumbent Mayor Richardson Dilworth, a Democrat. The margin was overwhelping.

Stassen has not won an election since the 1930s when he was the youthful governor of Minnesota, but not from windows and hauling down the American flag. After tearing up the flag, they hoisted a Panamanian flag on the pole outside the embassy.

Another crowd hurled rocks at the information service offices seven blocks away. Large numbers of store windows also were smashed in downtown Panama City.

The attempts on the Canal Zone boundary continued until late afternoon, with the mob throwing rocks and making repeated rushes at the lines of police, firemen, and members of the national guard, Panama's army.

When there was no letup in the border incidents five truckloads of troops in battle gear moved into positions at various intersections. The soldiers rounded up demonstrators who had infiltrated into the Canal Zone and drove them out at bayonet point. U. S. officials said the infiltrators burned at least six automobiles in the zone.

Order finally was restored about 6 p.m., 64 hours after the initial clash.

the committee decided 9-4 to report the bill out for passage. They were Sens. Chester Dempsey of Hartland, Kirby Hendee of Milwaukee and Harold Hultberg of Sheboygan Falls and Assembly Emil Hinz of Merrill.

More School Aids

The governor's recommendations for upward revision include $1,480,000 for school aids, $1,787,000 for salary increases for state college and university faculty members and $100,000 for improvements in the state's mental hygiene program.

"There are certain critics of governmental spending who would like to have us engage in indiscriminate choppendium was heavily defeated. This would have permitted use of surplus funds from the New Jersey turnpike to help the struggling commuter railroads, which are in financial trouble.

This proposal was a pet project of Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner, and its defeat was interpreted as a blow to his personal prestige.

Bonus Plan Trails

In Kentucky a proposed state veterans bonus referendum was losing on the basis of incomplete returns. The bonus was to be financed by a state sales tax.

A number of cities voted on changes involving a county system of government.

Dade county (Miami, Fla.) voters defeated a bid for the sheriff and tax assessor to break free from the metropolitan government. Three other amendments to the area's form of government also were turned down.

In the Cleveland area voters defeated a charter amendment that would have greatly strengthened the authority of Cuyahoga county over the city and its suburbs.

Toledo, Ohio, also rejected a plan to increase the authority of the Lucas county government over the city. They also defeated a change in the city manager government to give more power to the mayor.

Erie county, N.Y., however, voted 2 to 1 for a county charter, providing an elected chief county executive. The county embraces the city of Buffalo.

St. Louis, city and county, rejected a metropolitan district government plan.

ping of the budget," the governor said. "I do not believe that this is in the best interests of the people, nor that it would save money in the long run."

Nelson said more than half the $86 million increase for the biennium, in which he proposes total spending of $422,904,253, is for direct support of cities, villages, towns, counties and school districts.

New Recess Possible

The governor made no reference to the possibility Republicans will insist on a second legislative recess to await tax revision recommendations from a blue ribbon citizens committee. The group said Friday its report would not be ready until sometime next year.

"With conscientious effort and a spirit of cooperation," he said, "we can complete the task at hand in five weeks."

Nelson said he had attempted to keep state services at the same level in the past and blamed increases in the cost of government in a population increase. This increase, he said, totaled a million persons in the last 30 years.

"The population growth with its ever-increasing demand upon schools and welfare services, is going to continue," he said, "for this reason I believe that we shall have to consider seriously the possibility of effecting economies by eliminating some services."

Deficit May Grow

"This kind of decision, however, is a political one," he continued, "which must be made by the legislature." The present deficit for the 1960-61 year is $22,800,000. With budget revisions and other appropriation measures Nelson is backing, it could be as high as $29 million before the session ends.

Nelson is expected to recommend next week that the lawmakers meet the deficit with one of two stopgap tax proposals: Adoption of a plan for withholding state income taxes or boosting personal income tax rates.

The state could balance its budget easily by maintaining school aids at the 1958 level, the governor told lawmakers. He said this would require local property taxpayers to absorb the $33 million in additional school aids provided in the budget.

"No one has proposed this, of course, nor do I think anyone will," he said, "The trend is in the other direction."

Although most of the governor's message dealt with fiscal problems, he labeled as "essential" several additional proposals.

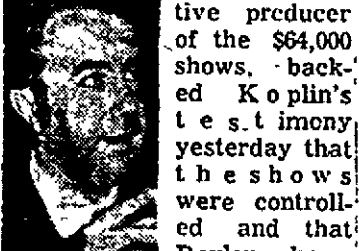

They were regulation of billboards on the state trunk highway system, agricultural Under questioning, Koplin denied the shows were rigged. But he conceded they were carefully controlled by determining what a prospective contestant knew and then aiming questions accordingly. His testimony covered both the CBS $64,000 shows and "The Big Surprise," which ran on NBC.

Revlon issued a statement last night contending that "pressure from a sponsor to do a better job did not give quiz program producers a license to cheat: ..."

Noting that the shows were controlled by their producing companies, Revlon said it "did suggest numerous ways in which the programs could be improved, but rigging was not one of them."

Meanwhile Rep. John B. Bennett of Michigan, senior Republican member of the subcommittee, said he does not think the group should stop at the quiz shows in its efforts to root out what he called "misleading and deceptive practices in televition."

Christian Love Key to Peace, Pastor Says

Must Supersede
Discrimination
With Affection

"Peace in this world can become a reality only when racial and national discrimination are superseded by Christian love," the Rev. John Seidler, pastor of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church said in his sermon Sunday.

"Christ came to effect a change in this world, to transform man's heart and mind. He came to give a new way of life. He expected more than the ordinary from his followers: 'Turn the other cheek', 'Go the second mile', 'Love your enemy'. These were unheard of demands under the old law. Faith in Christ should make a difference. He expects such evidence of Christian faith and action today, from all who profess His name," he said.

Treatment of Fellow Men
The Rev. Mr. Seidler said love is an integral part of Christian life and belongs in every Christian church and home.

"But the Christian cannot stop there. Love for the brethren is only the beginning of Christian affection. Christians enlisted in the Lord's work know men of every race are creatures of God and must be treated as such." Peace is the result of love that goes beyond racial and national boundaries, he said.

Sacrifices
"It is not difficult to realize that Christian enlistment calls for sacrifice. The faithful disciple dares to live the hard way—for Christ's sake. It costs something to belong to Christ. We cannot escape the fact that if we want our Christian life to amount to something worthwhile, we must pay for it in courage, in effort, in service and in sacrifice."

"Those who sacrifice the least usually complain the most. Those who readily accept the assignments of Christ are happy—for His sake, to put themselves out, to sacrifice, and to take up the cross. There is real joy in it for them that cannot be experienced in any other way."

One Man Admits, Another Denies Non-Support Charges

One man pleaded guilty of non-support and another denied a similar charge when their cases were heard Tuesday by Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmiede.

Daniel Fulmer, 2421 N. Mason street, admitted failing to support his wife and 14-month-old son. Sentence was withheld and he was placed on probation for two years.

Robert Nowak, 612 W. Prospect avenue, denied failing to support his wife. Bond of $500 was set for preliminary hearing Dec. 1.

Police Report Record Month in Fines Collected

Kaukauna — Police Chief Harold V. Engerson reported his department had collected $1,041.80 in fines and fees during October, the highest amount in the history of the department.

The money was collected although no effort was made for wholesale arrests. The traffic watch was not used excessively nor were officers instructed to crack down on traffic violations, rather normal law enforcement procedures were followed.

Bridge Firm Gets More Time

Deadline for
Oneida St. Span
Set Back to Aug. 15

The S. Oneida street drawbridge contractor Tuesday was given more time to complete the bridge building project.

Deadline for LaCrosse Dredging company, Chicago, was Feb. 23, 1960, under terms of the 15-month city contract, but bad weather and other factors have delayed work, Director of Public Works Duszynski told the board of public works.

Works board members agreed to extend the completion date to Aug. 15.

The bridge proper, Duszynski said, will be finished, except for painting, sometime in December, but work of paving the approaches with concrete cannot come until late next spring.

It is planned, said Duszynski, to pave the south approach and the west half of the north approach first and after curing to open that much to traffic while the east half of the north approach is finished.

LaCrosse Dredging, the director reported, will assume the city's resident engineer fees at the rate of about $1,000 a month for all the extended time.

Worker in Indonesia Will Speak Tuesday

Karl H. Stange, YMCA secretary from Indonesia, will speak to Appleton Rotarians and YMCA groups Tuesday, Nov. 10.

Stange, a native of Stevens Point, took the post in Indonesia five years ago. Since 1947 he had worked with the YMCA in China, and was in Amoy, China, when the Chinese communists took the city from the Nationalists.

After work in Red China became impossible Stange and his family left the country on a blockade-running freighter. He then worked as YMCA general executive in Bangkok, Thailand, for two years.

Stange is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and received his bachelor of divinity degree at Yale. He is married and has five children, two born in China, one in the United States, and two born in Indonesia.

He will speak to Appleton Rotarians at noon Tuesday and at an open dinner at the YMCA at 5:45 p.m. At 7:15 he will speak to Hi-Y and Tri-Y members. Reservations for the dinner are available at the YMCA.

Byrnes, Laird Protest More Cheese Imports

Tell Secretary Benson
Dairy Economy 'Far
From Out of Woods'

BY FRANCES MCKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Two Wisconsin members of congress today filed separate protests with Agriculture Sec. Benson for "his recommendation" to President Eisenhower to modify import quotas on certain types of Dutch and Italian cheese.

Reps. John W. Byrnes, Green Bay, and Melvin R. Laird, Marshfield, both reminded Sec. Benson of the current condition of the dairy economy, which, as Congressmen Byrnes expressed it, "is moved into domestic conditions far from being out of the woods."

Both also told the secretary there are large government and private inventories of dairy products in spite of the enlarged disposal program enforced both domestically and in foreign countries.

Pointing out that the government has purchased over 46 million pounds of cheese, 67 million pounds of butter and 391 million pounds of dried milk, Byrnes said "these vast quantities of dairy products represent milk production which could not be sumption without lowering the price of milk below support levels."

Congressman Laird wired Benson: "We already import over 50 million pounds of cheese annually. This country in effect is subsidizing that volume of imports by purchasing under the price support program the domestic production it displaces."

The communications from the Wisconsin congressmen to Benson follow an announcement by President Eisenhower that he had directed the tariff commission to determine whether "additional im-

The regular session begins at 7 p.m. Wednesdays, but overcrowding has made a new section necessary. The new session has a gym period from 7:45 to 8:30 p.m. and swimming and swimming instructions from 8:30 to 9:15.

In Good Taste Phone Call Would be Wise Action

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Three times last spring I received a letter from a friend in another city inviting my husband and myself to visit her and her family. She also phoned long distance early in the summer to ask when we were coming and seemed quite eager to have us visit her. She said to come whenever we could make it. As our vacation time was the same as hers, she would be away, we changed the date of our vacation until now so that we could spend several days with her. I wrote her a month ago asking if the date we chose was suitable to her. She hasn't answered my letter nor have we heard from her in any way. Under the circumstances, should we write or phone her to ask if she is still expecting us, or just cancel the visit without saying anything more?

Answer: Your letter or her answer may have been lost, and you most certainly should telephone and ask if she is expecting you.

No Male Relative
Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married shortly. My father is dead and I have no brothers or near male relative to give me away. Will you please tell me if it would be proper to have my fiancé's father walk up the aisle with me? I do not want to walk up the aisle alone as it seems so forlorn. Will you please give me your opinion on this?

Answer: It will be most unusual, but there is no reason why you may not have four fiancé's father give you away if you would like him to.

Matching Watchbands Complement Costumes

New Swiss watches now are an integral part of a woman's wardrobe. Colored wristbands, as many as 24 different colors, can slip on and off the newest dramatic watches to match precisely the color of milady's costume.

The watch is a focal point of fashion on the wrist and, whether we recognize it or not, it is ever present to measure the day's precious time. This permanent position of the watch makes it the most noteworthy accessory a woman wears. (Bracelets, pins, necklaces—many of them favored and worn often—never are the constant companions which the watch is.) Reason why the days are gone of the little gold watch with black wristband worn from morning through cocktail time to midnight curfew. The fashion-conscious woman dictates that her watch change with her costume to become an integrated part of the fashion picture.

Fashion Firsts
Two transformations have taken place in quality time-keeping to make 17-jewel watches "fashion firsts." One, the slip-on-and-off colored strap which really matches the color of your costume—be it purple, sage green or shock pink. Thus, the fashion-minded can virtually have a "wardrobe of watches" by simply changing the colors of watch straps. (Like the colored stockings which has come into its own, the colored watch strap has the spotlight, too.) And two, these new fashion watches are designed as dramatic and precious pieces of jewelry for the wrist.

Modern time-keeping shapes—elliptical, trapezoid, triangular—are as new-looking as couturier fashions from Paris. And so-called traditional watches now are all dressed up with filigree decorations or colored—stones or gold touches of bowknots, tassels and fringe. All are handsome, dramatic—and sometimes startling—time-pieces which appropriately call attention to the wrist during this era of simple, classical dress and suit fashions.

Off Beat Colors
The multi-band watch straps in leather or suede, priced at $3 each, include gold and silver for formal wear and such off-beat colors as turquoise, yellow, orange and russet. All straps are white-leather lined to protect the skin.

As to the watches themselves, not only are they "fashion firsts" but they "function first" before all else. Products of the skilled hands of the Watchmakers of Switzerland, all of them are precision timekeeping instruments which guarantee accurate running time for a long time.

At a time when the watch market is flooded with inferior "bargain" watches, which perform unevenly and for the most part cannot be repaired, the quality watch stands up like a good suit or dress which you wear, and want to wear, season after season. The one sure way of buying a quality Swiss watch, of course, is to purchase a well-known brand name through a reputable jeweler.

Parents Annoyed at Children's Disorder

Parents get upset when their children's neatness and cleanliness start bubbling up just before the teens. They see a sliding back from what seemed to be definite progress toward tidiness in early childhood.

But, says an expert, don't be discouraged. The pre-teen period is the time when children begin to separate themselves from the family, when they try to find out what kind of individuals they really are. What counts then is their standing with other children their own age. Parental approval is secondary.

Mrs. Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg, former director of the Child Study association, points out that boys seem to develop an aversion to cleanliness during their pre-teen years, and girls are annoyingly sloppy about their clothes.

Not Reasonable
To the logical 8 or 9 or 10-year old, his parents' insistence on cleanliness is unreasonable, she states. Almost everything that is fun to do means getting dirty. It is as natural to get dirty as to breathe. Yet most children are not totally opposed to cleanliness, just to keeping clean all the time.

In a child's early years we know enough not to restrain his freedom in the interest of cleanliness. Clean hands at the table, a change of clothes for company or visiting and a good cleanup at the end of the day are enough to demand. But it is hard to realize, continues Mrs. Gruenberg, that we can afford to be equally relaxed with school-age girls and boys.

They will accept our few firm demands if we give them the right to be comfortable the rest of the time.

Time Will Come
If "cleanliness" seems like a new word to youngsters of this age, "tidiness," as grownups understand it, is from another tongue, she observes. An unmade bed, a room strewn with belongings, doesn't bother most boys and girls. Will they become accustomed to living in this kind of disorder? "We need not fear that they are not learning 'good habits,'" Mrs. Gruenberg points out. "When the time comes," they will want to follow our example and make themselves as attractive as they can."

Chances are that most children enjoy the way their mothers keep house, and look forward to having a nice home of their own some day, but that is for later. During their growing-up years, keeping a room neat ranks very low on their interest scale. With school, homework, friends, hobbies, parties, dates, they are much too busy to bother.

Parents can do no more than their best and remember that spick-and-spanness is a value—admittedly—but not the most important value in our lives.

Monday through Friday, from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays, from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday and Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m. James Kreitzer, Shawano, won first place in the abstract category with his oil painting "Rocks in Lightning," and "Woodland Color," by Carl Christensen, Neenah, was judged best among the impressionism entries.

Mrs. Harold Cotter, Appleton, won first honorable mention in the impressionist category and Virginia S. Brown, Oshkosh, copped third honorable mention in the same division.

Portraiture
First honorable mention in portraiture was given to Mrs. John Mytas, Appleton, and Mrs. Mary Carroll, Neenah, received first honorable mention in the primitive category.

Mrs. O. Reynold Steinert, Appleton, won the first award in the surrealist category with her watercolor, "The First Snowstorm." It was done in tones of blue, gray and lavender and while its vagueness gave the surrealist quality, the objects were identifiable. Miss Sara Brenzel, Kaukauna, was second winner in the same division.

Miss Linda Cotter, Appleton, was given third honorable mention in the category grouping mosaics, sculpture and ceramics.

Other area artists who entered the competition were Mrs. Elmer Thalke, Appleton, in the expressionism and portraiture divisions; Mrs. Lester Johnson and Mrs. Johannes Foght, both of Neenah, and Mrs. Thomas Martin, Appleton, in the realism category.

Art Center to Show Serigraph Art Work

A display from the West-ern Serigraph Institute and the Wisconsin Watercolor So-ciety is on exhibit at Law-rence college's Worcester ar-t center until Nov. 25.

The institute was organized in 1948 for the purpose of further acquainting the pub-lic with the development of serigraphy as a fine art me-dium. A serigraph is an ori-ginal work of art, drawn on silk, and is made in limited editions. It differs from a silk screen print in that the latter is a reproduction by a commercial process. To pro-duce an original serigraph, it is necessary to be skilled, not only as a creative artist, but in the many hand techniques which are necessary to ar-rive at a work of art having the emotional sensitivity pos-sessed by an original.

The artist conceives and executes the serigraph by working directly on the silk screen with processes of tusche and glue, building his composition by a series of color applications forced through the silk, or he may make a sketch to work out all his problems before beginning on the screen. By matching shape for shape, value for value, and color for color, he achieves a result which con-forms to his original concep-tion. The serigraph is now ac-cepted in all major print shows nationally and interna-tionally, and thus takes its place with other fine works of artists doing high quality limited editions.

Work Travels
The work of members of the institute appears in col-lections throughout the coun-try, while the circulating ex-hibit is designed especially for community, college and university showings.

Tom Dietrich, Lawrence's artist-in-residence, is one of 15 exhibitors in the Wiscon-sin Watercolor Society's dis-play. The majority are from the Milwaukee area, with Ra-cine and Sturgeon Bay rep-resented by Frank Stearns and Gerhard C. F. Miller, re-spectively.

Sheinwold on Bridge In Average Game Coup Defeat This Contract

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
U. S. Masters Team Champion

The other day my favorite nephew climbed on my knee and asked "Uncle, what is a Deschappelles coup?" I blushed and tried to change the subject, but he insisted. After all, I finally decided, this was not the sort of thing for him to be learning from the other boys. So I drew him a dia-gram of this hand:

South dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

Opening lead — S 3

West opens the three of spades, and East wins with the ace. If East tamely re- turns a spade, South takes the king of spades and leads diamonds until East plays the ace. This assures declarer nine tricks: one spade, three hearts, four diamonds, and one club. The defenders can take three spades and one diamond while all this is go- ing on.

"And here is your Deschap- elles coup," I screamed, since my nephew had already fallen asleep — and so had my leg. "At the second trick, East must return the king of clubs!"

"That's Deschappelles coup — leading that king?" asked my nephew.

"Sure thing," I told him proudly. "Pretty nifty, eh?"

Defeats Contract

When my nephew just sniffed, I explained that the king of clubs forces out dummy's ace. Later, East refuses the first two diamond tricks but wins the third. South gets only two diamond tricks. He wins two clubs, one spade, three hearts and the two dia- monds — a total of eight tricks.

"That's what you think," my nephew objected. "Sup- pose South lets East hold the king of clubs at the second trick."

"Pooh," I retorted. "East leads another club to dum- my's ace."

"Pooh-pooh," he countered elegantly. "Dummy leads a spade, and South plays low. West wins with the jack of spades. Now what?"

Trick up Sleeve
I saw what was coming, so I pushed him off my knee. "Here are some matches," I said. "Go play house."

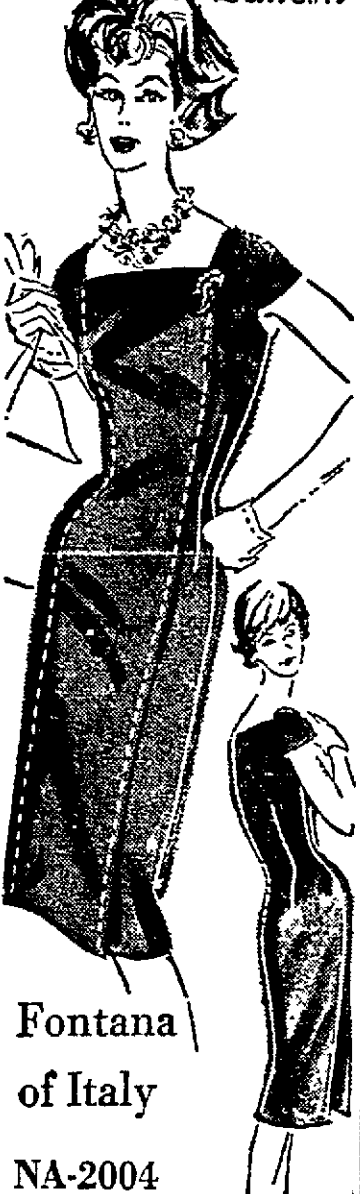

Do you see what the little rascal had up his sleeve? No matter what West returns, South can get to his hand and cash the king of spades, the queen of clubs, and the three top hearts. This reduces East to his diamonds. South then leads diamonds, and East cannot stop dummy from win- ning three diamond tricks.

Just the same, I'd put my money on East in the average game. If East executes the Deschappelles coup at the second trick it's dollars to dough- nuts he'll defeat the contract.

Daily Question
As dealer, you hold: S-A 8 5, H-10 8 7, D-A 6 5 3, C-K 9 3. What do you say?
Answer: Pass. This hand with two and one half tricks is almost, but not quite, worth an opening bid. To put it another way, you have only 11 points — a point or two less than you need to bid.

Fontana of Italy NA-2004

FOR HALF-SIZE FIGURES

A striking streak of a dress by Fontana that is so easy to make it can be completed in a few hours. A compliment to any figure, it is especially good for the wearer of half sizes—the long lines of the top stitched front panel have a slim- ming effect through the mid- dle while broadening the shoulders. The panel has loose edges and tiny pleats that open out at the hem. For southern cruise wear, choose linen, shantung, novelty cottons; for under your fur coat, consider a pale or high colored sheer wool; for little dinners, it is a great success in faille, bro- cade, or fancy fabrics. Home Freezer Lends Ease to Homemaking

With the end of the cook-out season, homemakers are turning attention to the problems of "cooking in." The demands of more formal meals, preparing children's school lunches and holiday entertaining often place a strain on an already busy schedule.

For these reasons, the convenience and versatility of a freezer are extra appealing at this particular time of year and, according to consumers, October and November are the most popular months for freezer buying.

With a freezer, the thrifty homemaker can save money as well as time. She can take advantage of bulk meat sales and quantity prices on "store bought" frozen foods. She can cook three or four roasts and several vegetables with the same heat and this not only saves time and effort but reduces gas or electricity costs.

There are freezers to anticipate the capacity, space and decor requirements of all families. The chest freezer, for example, is ideal for the homemaker whose family is large or whose shopping trips must be kept to a minimum, because weeks of wonderful eating can be stored, including bulky items.

For large capacity in a minimum space, the upright freezer is the answer. This freezer features aluminum contact freezing surfaces on every shelf for sharp freezing. In addition, the square styling of the upright freezer achieves the "built-in" look and solves space problems beautifully.

A combination refrigerator-freezer is perfect for the smaller, city-dwelling family or where the homemaker wants the convenience of a full-size freezer and refrigerator in a single appliance.

With a freezer, today's homemakers can prepare meals—from soup to dessert—days, or even weeks in advance. Canapes and cakes for special parties can be made "piece-meal" and weeks ahead of the gala event.

Prepare Lunches

Mothers can supply sandwiches from the freezer for weeks of school lunches—and unexpected teen-age parties pose no problem. Practically any sandwich filling is freezeable. Lunch-box desserts such as cakes, pies or doughnuts may also be frozen. Frozen custards or puddings may be packed with the lunch, for a surprise, and will be properly thawed by noon.

The working wife (and statistics indicate that more than 50 per cent of women working are married) can cook on the week-end for the coming week. A variety of entrees, salads and desserts can be prepared and stored in the freezer on Saturday or Sunday, providing hearty meals for each day of the coming week.

With a variety of freezers available, it's easy for the wise freezer shopper to find just the right one for her family. And with months of heavy cooking duty just ahead, many a homemaker is finding the answer to her problems in a freezer.

How Tall Should Lamps be?

When small and squat table lamps got tossed out of the home fashion picture, it was a victory for lighting and the looks of the room. Big lamps shed more light and spread it farther, and stopped the looking down into a glare. They looked more important, were better decoration for the room. But some of them grew too tall, were unable to concentrate light enough on a given surface and the glare was often still there, to look up to.

The application engineers on the lighting engineering team establish a correct height of 42 inches from the floor to the bottom of a lampshade edge by means of a light meter. Light meter readings show that 42 inches is the best height for the light to be at its best on a book

Adults Should Respect Privacy of Youngsters

BY ANGELO PATRI

Somewhat grown-up people seem to forget how sensitive they were once about private lives. They think something the child did was very funny although it embarrassed the child at the time, and they spread the story.

One of the children did something serious enough to have a complaint registered against him by an outraged teacher. There was so much trouble about it that it got on his parents' nerves and they just couldn't help telling a friend about it.

A daughter, still too young to be emotionally engaged with a boy is stricken with a crush on one. She primps, she mopes, she forgets to do her lessons, dreams long dreams in which her hero, who knows nothing about it, figures heroically.

This strikes her auntie as very funny and when a friend calls and auntie is on hand she describes this one-sided love affair amid gales of laughter. The girl in a nearby room hears this and retreats to her room in tears, tears that will not be dried because she has been deeply hurt. Her emotions were in a raw state to begin with and this humiliation is too much.

Should Not Happen
Such things should not happen to boys and girls. Their mistakes, the odd ways stemming from their changing growth, are not funny to them. No grown-up person would make fun of another who was in trouble yet they do not seem to extend the same privacy, the same consideration for children. Children need all the consideration they can get and it is unthinkable that their secrets are spread to outsiders.

Too, there are things the family do not want talked about outside. If the heads of the family are careful to respect the private affairs of the children they have laid a foundation for their wish to keep family matters within the family.

Telling the children not to talk about what happens in the house, what they hear there, is not enough. The example of practicing reticence concerning family matters, including those concerning the children, sets the idea in their minds.

Speak well of children, respect their privacy, as you would have them do for you.

Angelo Patri offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning child training. If you would like to have his leaflet, P-11, "Slowness," send 10 cents in coin to him in care of this paper, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Wasp Nest Causes Quite a Stir Here

Kansas City—A group of carpenters working at the Elmo apartments Tuesday found themselves stymied by a wasp nest.

They set fire to a rolled up newspaper and tried to burn out the nest. But the fire quickly spread along the roof of the 3-story building, routing the tenants.

Before firemen could put out the fire, it had damaged five apartments on the third floor. Battalion Chief Pat Curran estimated the loss at $3,500. There were no injuries.

All was not lost. The carpenters succeeded in getting rid of the wasps.

'Recruits for '60' Program Explained to Federation

The "Recruits for '60" program of the Republic party was explained to members of the Outagamie county Federation of Republican Women at a luncheon meeting Tuesday noon at the Appleton Elks club. The speaker was Wisconsin's new national committeewoman, Mrs. Byron Ising, Oshkosh.

"We must return to Republican responsibility," the speaker urged. Mrs. Ising explained the purpose of the recruits program as finding Republican voters and making sure they get to the polls. The committeewoman also explained the work involved in her new job, in which she replaced Mrs. W. W. Fox, Madison, who resigned to accept a civil defense post.

"One of the weaknesses of our country is the failure of the average citizen to take an active part in politics," Mrs. Ising added. "Government is only as good as the citizens make it."

Since her appointment to the post Mrs. Ising has visited GOP women's groups and district meetings throughout the state and has observed that more young people are attending district meetings. "There is a GOP resurgence all over the country," she told the federation members.

Menasha Man Denies Drunken Driving

Harold Walbrun, 52, of 605 Milwaukee street, Menasha, pleaded innocent of drunken driving when he was arraigned Tuesday in municipal court.

Walbrun was arrested near the Brown county line Saturday by the state patrol.

Parents Want Girls To Smoke in School

Salisbury, Md. — Should high school girls be allowed to smoke during school hours? That's the burning question here.

Apparently many Salisbury parents think so. George H. Corddry, Jr., principal of Wilcomico High school, says the school has lifted its ban on smoking by girls because "considerable pressure has been exerted by some parents to allow it."

Boys had been allowed to smoke in certain areas of school property for years, but the girls were disciplined when caught copping a drag. Apparently mom and dad wanted equal rights for their girls.

Six Others Pay For Speeding; Six For Illegal Passing

A 29-year-old Green Bay motorist Tuesday in municipal court was fined a total of $90 on charges of operating a vehicle while his license was revoked and for driving a non-registered vehicle. Driving after revocation is a 12-point offense against the driving record.

Harlan H. Clapper paid $75 on the first count and $15 on the second. He was arrested July 26 at Highway 55 and 41 in Kaukauna by state police.

Maynard Dethardt, Seymour, paid $162.50 for a 3,750-pound axle overload. He was arrested by the state patrol Oct. 20 on Highway 55 in Seymour. He pleaded guilty.

Six Speeders
Six motorists pleaded guilty and were fined or forfeited bonds on speeding charges. Each will be assessed three points against his driving record. They are Eugene A. Clark, 527 W. Eighth street, $10; Carol A. DeGroot, 2315 N. Superior street, paid route 2, Crivitz, $12.95; Arthur Kuechenmeister, route 1, Neillsville, $13.95; Keith C.

Pangborn, 20, Munising, Mich., $19; Joe Wozniak, 41, Armstrong Creek, $19; and Eugene M. Quade, 25, Oshkosh, $10.

Losing four points each for illegal passing were Warren B. deau, 34, Milwaukee, $28.95; John J. Harlow, 55, Fond du Lac, $28.95; James B. Hemker, 25, LaCrosse, $28.95; Roy Madsen, 31, Racine, $28.95; Joseph Pinozek, 55, Escanaba, Mich., $25, and Francis A. Byla, 32, Milwaukee, $28.95.

A charge of illegal passing against Andrew Wargo, 41, route 3, Appleton, was dismissed.

The ready mix firm also paid $10 for failing to have a stop light on its vehicle.

Davis Woodward, 65, San Francisco, forfeited bond of $53.95 for failing to yield the right-of-way. Sadie Finnerty, Greenleaf, paid $10 and lost three points on a similar charge.

Peter J. Dernbach, 19, New London, paid $25 and lost six points for failing to stop for a school bus which was parked on a highway to discharge passengers.

Snow Blower, Radio Approved for Roads

Rotary Plow Will Clear Airport, New Highway 41 Interchanges; to Cost $18,000

An $18,000 rotary snow blower and $15,000 for beginning a 2-way radio system for the Outagamie county highway department were approved Tuesday by the county board.

The purchases will not affect the county highway budget—$445,837 of it from the tax levy—because the money will come from the $98,000 highway equipment fund.

Total replacements and additions to the county highway fleet for 1960 will be $135,700, exclusive of the radio system. The difference between the $98,000 in the fund and the purchases will be made up by revenues into the fund during the next year. The fund is maintained by charging rental for county equipment whenever it is used. The county highway department pays into the fund from its own work as a part of the project cost and charges municipalities and the state similar costs. Expenditures usually are around $100,000 each year, varying with replacement needs.

The rotary snow blower is essential for clearing the airport and for the new Highway 41 interchanges, the committee and Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson have said. Airport committee members concurred, pointing out that all airports with commercial air service in the state have snow blowers.

Need for the 2-way radio system was highlighted last March when the county was buried under 9-and 11-inch snowfalls. County equipment vanished into the drifts and little coordination was possible, often resulting in emergency snow clearing delay, Brownson said.

The board also approved the highway committee's request to set aside $27,000 from the machinery fund to build two buildings to provide cover for bulk salt used for ice control. The county for two years has been piling the salt outside and covering it with paper. The salt is required by the state and county and the state has permitted outside storage until adequate buildings could be built. The state pays the county $1 a ton for suitable storage of salt and calcium chloride.

Major items in the highway budget include $182,500 for construction on county trunks, $78,300 for bituminous surfacing, $150,000 for winter maintenance (including elimination of an $11,700 deficit from last winter's snowstorms), $29,500 for departmental administration and a $750 item for aiding the town of Bovina in reconstructing a former county trunk.

The supervisors added $2,400 for town bridge aid, bringing the total for 11 bridges to $4,550. The total is considerably under the usual $10,000-or-more figure of other years.

Appleton Supv. Frank Appleton, one-time highway commissioner, told the board the gas tax should pay for roads and suggested cutting $200,000 from the budget. He later voted for the budget, unchanged.

Three Fox Cities men will appear on the program of the fortieth annual Wisconsin Upper Michigan credit conference Tuesday at the Menasha Elks club.

S. N. Pickard, president of the National Manufacturers bank, Neenah, and Emmet W. Below, vice president of the food packaging division of the Marathon division of American Can company, will appear on a panel discussing the 1960s, and George B. Walter, director of teacher education at Lawrence college, who will speak on "Pegasus, Prancing" at the evening dinner.

The conference is sponsored by the Madison Association of Credit Men, the Milwaukee Association of Credit Management, the National Association of Credit Management, Wisconsin-Michigan unit.

Sessions will begin at 9 a.m. and continue into the evening. Members will discuss credit problems and tax revision, as well as the future of credit.

No Solution to Spencer Road Problem Found

Citizen Group Seeks Gravel Walkway, Elimination of Trucks

A group of citizens attending a Grand Chute board meeting Tuesday evening again found no solution to a traffic problem on W. Spencer road near Badger school.

Residents near the school, which is a quarter mile west of Highway 41 and a mile west of Appleton city limits, seek a way of eliminating truck traffic and a walkway for school children.

County Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson explained the 45 mile an hour speed limit set at that point is correct. And, he added, Spencer road was built to carry trucking and cannot be changed.

Route Traffic
The state highway commission did, however, he said, put up a sign routing truck traffic along Highway 125 into Appleton from 41.

Some residents agreed trucks were no great problem, but a place for children to walk was.

Town Chairman Arthur Lecker explained the road could not be widened or shoulders made bigger without putting in storm sewer along one side.

Widen Road
Widening the road would include purchase of additional right-of-way, Brownson explained. This would cut off many front lawns, he added.

Lecker suggested the school district purchase a bus for school children normally walking along Spencer road. Several residents said they would not pay taxes for a walkway.

If we make provisions to widen walkways for one school, we have to do it for all, Lecker said. We can't tax all people for one small section, he added.

Names of two new streets in the town were announced. The service road along Highway 41 leading to several motels on the east side of the road is Dreamland drive. Highway 76 north from W. Wisconsin avenue will be called Greenville drive. Names were made for convenience of postal delivery. Bids of 12.6 cents a gallon from "Zephyr Oil" company, Appleton, and 12.3 cents a gallon from United Oil company, Appleton, were received for providing 700 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil to heat the town hall. The United Oil company bid was accepted.

HIS AND HERS —

HE nubia is not closed
SHE very good natured

Patient Wife

"...I have a temper which shows mostly with my husband, yet I was voted the best natured girl in my senior high school class. I'm still very good natured if I have to wait a long while."

A lack of patience is not your problem. You may even have too much! You'd rather wait than get started, according to those long beginning strokes on words and your slowly formed letters.

You say that you have trouble "organizing your housework." That's because you put things off and they pile up. This is hard on your husband. His tiny quick letters indicate that he is a person who likes things done fast. He is industrious, impatient.

The clipped off word-endings in your husband's writing give a clue as to why he arouses your temper. He doesn't take the time to be tactful or consider how his words may affect you. He's annoyed by delay.

Your lines of writing reveal a low state of mind and much discouragement. Your husband should realize that with four children you need a psychological lift rather than criticism! He should strive to be encouraging and considerate. Perhaps he can help you to plan an efficient daily schedule. Co-operate.

You, too, need to change. Don't waste time. Don't put things off. And don't expect your husband to do your job. You'll be happier!

Miss Stafford welcomes letters from her readers. They cannot be acknowledged, but the most interesting ones will be used in her column. (Copyright, 1959)

Lawrence Says Congress Ripe For Additional Confessions

Legislators Should Consider Effects Of Campaign Funds

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Conscience came to Washington this week in the testimony of Charles Van Doren. Conscience spoke in the halls of congress. Most of the members were away but maybe many of them will read in the newspapers the confession of a troubled soul.

When will the same kind of conflict that burned in the mind of young Van Doren bring other confessions and perhaps an altered morality in public affairs? When will those members of congress who receive big campaign contributions weigh carefully whether it is right for them to put themselves under obligation to organizations interested in the promotion or defeat of legislation? In the scriptures it is written: "No man can serve two masters. . . ye cannot serve God and mammon."

Members of congress are elected to serve all the people. It has become commonplace for sums often reaching millions of dollars to be spent in campaign contributions. The candidates are being rewarded for past votes on legislation or are being put under obligation to vote as the contributors want to vote in the future. Is this ethical? Isn't it a hidden deception?

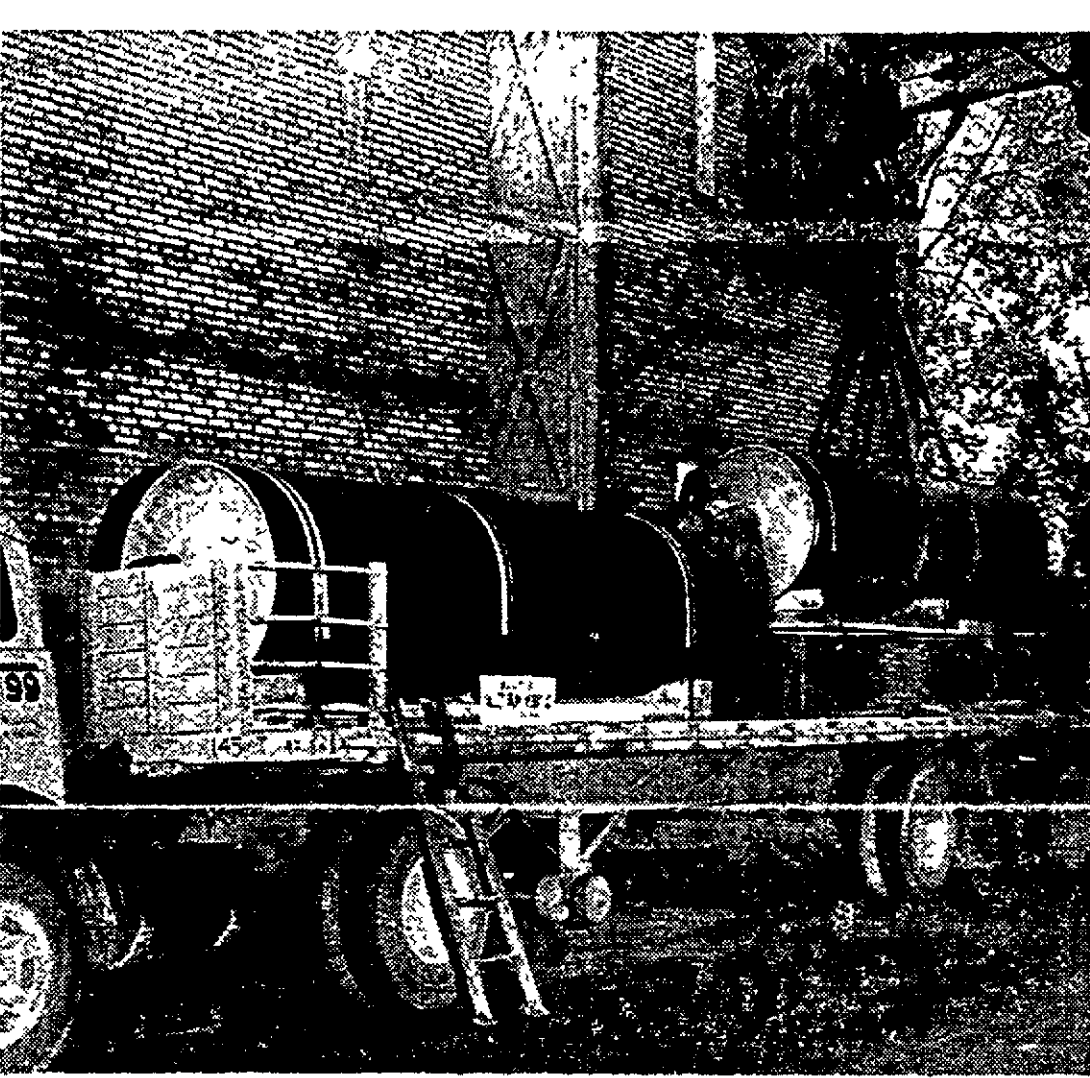

Labor Contributions Not long ago a prominent labor leader wrote a public letter criticizing members of congress for failing to vote for legislation desired by the unions. He indicated labor, which had furnished financial support to many members of congress, was not only disappointed but might impose reprisals. It caused something of a flurry outside congress but only a few members denounced the letter.

Charles Van Doren has at least confessed his sins. The public has yet to hear any remorseful expressions from those members of congress who have virtually a 100 per cent record of voting in favor of the side that has given them the larger amounts of campaign contributions.

There are representatives and senators who do vote as their consciences tell them to vote, irrespective of any campaign help they may have received. But what shall the public think when it notes that certain members have a record of voting always the way their campaign contributors would have them vote?

Is there honesty in respect to the disclosure of campaign contributions? Federal laws require candidates for congress to reveal how much they spent, but there is no requirement that all the money spent for the benefit of a candidate be accounted for specifically. Big sums are deliberately contributed to state committees or organizations which do not get into the public records. The American people are not permitted to know how much money is actually spent to elect members of congress and by whom the largest sums are contributed. A wave of conscience over Capitol Hill is long overdue.

Confession Overdue Charles Van Doren courageously revealed the error of his way. This does not

Haiti Issue Honors Recent Chicago Pan-Am Games

BY SYD KRONISH

It isn't often that one nation depicts scenes of another nation on its postage stamps. But this did occur on a new issue by Haiti to honor the recently held Pan American games in Chicago.

The 25-centime black and blue depicts a view of Chicago's first house with a skyline of modern Chicago in the background. The 50-centime

"And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?"

Lots of us will ponder these words and will hesitate to pass judgment on Charles Van Doren.

Claims Against Estates Barred After 3 Months

Brown had loaned Jones $1,000 on a promissory note. After the note came due but before it was paid, Jones was killed in an automobile accident. Jones' wife was subsequently appointed administratrix of Jones' estate and as Mrs. Jones refused to pay, Brown sued the estate.

Mrs. Jones contended more than three months had gone by since the filing of notice to creditors, and since Brown had not filed a claim, nor asked for an extension of time, his claim against the estate was barred. Was she sound in her contention?

The answer is yes. Although generally the limitation upon suing on a promissory note is six years from the date of maturity, in the event of death, a claim must be filed within three months of the date the administrator publishes a notice to creditors. In the absence of filing such claim, the obligation against the estate is barred.

In certain instances the court will allow an extension of 60 days for filing claims, or if it is a complicated estate, the judge can allow more time if the administrator or executor agree.

To protect his claim a person should go to the county court of the county where the probate takes place and request a claim form. He should fill it out and have the clerk file it with the estate as soon after the death of the debtor as possible.

The administrator or executor has no legal obligation to seek out claimants and solicit their claim forms. That is the purpose of the newspaper announcement.

The safest and the required way is to file the claim at the office of the clerk of court.

Houston Drivers Return to Bus Jobs for 15 Days

Houston, Texas — Bus drivers and mechanics voted to return to their jobs Tuesday less than four hours after they struck, the Houston Transit company.

The more than 800 city bus drivers and mechanics voted at 3:25 a.m. to extend the old contract for 15 days to allow further negotiations. The vote followed a request by Houston Mayor Lewis Cutler that the union extend the old contract.

Workers Union Local 200 voted several weeks ago to strike when the contract ran out. Wages were the sole point in dispute. The company offered a 17-cent hourly raise over a 3-year span, contingent upon city council approval of a fare increase. The union sought a 26-cent hourly increase over two years. Drivers drew $2.04 an hour under the old contract.

Would be 'Submerged'

Water Pollution Head Opposes Reorganizing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The usually gentle voice of the state's chief water pollution fighter was raised Wednesday, as Director Theodore Wisniewski of the state committee on water pollution formally protested a plan to submerge his office in the bigger state department of health.

Wisniewski told the legislative budget committee the plan of Gov. Nelson contained in the pending state budget bill would eliminate the identity of his office and its work and hurt the cause of pollution control.

Raising his voice in some apparent anger, he said: "No Money Available."
"This is the only agency in the history of the state that has done anything to clean up our streams. The legislature nine years ago gave us a big job to do. Under this plan we would still have the job, but without the money," he said, referring to the plan for financial control by the health department.

Wisniewski's work is now guided by an inter-departmental board of state officers. The present program was authorized by the legislature in 1950, when state-wide concern about water pollution was crystallized in an act written by Fred Kaftan of Green Bay, then a state senator.

Continuing Job
Yesterday Assemblyman Cosgrove, Richland Center, serving his first term, asked the pollution control officers, "If you're working yourself out of a job."

"There will never be an end to pollution control programs," replied Wisniewski, pointing to the factors of population growth, industrial expansion and the development of new industrial and domestic products that change the composition of wastes and make pollution prevention more difficult.

Woman Shoots 2 of 3 Children

Biloxi, Miss. — The wife of an air force sergeant, described as upset over her husband's impending overseas assignment, shot and killed two of her three children Monday night.
Police said they booked Mrs. Harry Blue for investigation of murder. The victims were Harry Norman, 10, and Gwendolyn Earl, 8.

Two neighbors, S. Sgt. and Mrs. Ivan McCollister, told police they heard the Blue's other child, 6-year-old Joel, scream as Mrs. Blue stood on her back porch with a revolver in her hand.
"I just shot my two kids," Mrs. McCollister quoted the 31-year-old mother. "I didn't mean to do it. Oh, help me."

Rockefeller Seeks Chief's Post Only

Kennedy May Settle for Either Position on Democratic Ticket

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE

Washington—There are few better routes to becoming president of an insurance company than by first becoming its vice president. But one of the best ways of killing off an aspirant for president of the United States is to talk kindly of him for the vice presidency. Serious candidates for the top place must shrink from all such proposals.

In business, if you don't want a man for the highest job, you see to it that he doesn't reach the second-highest. But in politics, you often try to stop him for the top job by saying how good he would be for the second job.

Kennedy, Rockefeller

This is what is happening to the present, front-runner for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. John F. Kennedy, Massachusetts. And the still-hesitant challenger of Vice President Nixon for the GOP nomination, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, New York, is coming in for the same treatment.

Rockefeller already has spurned this sort of affection at every opportunity. There is no doubt he means it.

And if Nixon and not Rockefeller should be nominated for president next year and Nixon should lose the election, the biggest man left in the GOP by any measure would be Nelson Rockefeller, provided he had not been with Nixon on the defeated ticket.

So Rockefeller can afford to wait.

Kennedy Position Different Kennedy's people, too, have just made strong fresh disclaimers of willingness on his part to take second place. This, too, is no doubt meant. But the situation is far different from that of Rockefeller. It would be completely unrealistic to suppose that Kennedy would under no circumstances accept the vice presidency. The senate is historically a very poor launching pad for presidential rockets. If for no other reason, this is because a senator must make a lot of enemies by voting week by week on hot national and international issues. A governor can limit his enemy-making to his own state.

Moreover, Kennedy has invested so much of his hopes in his early-starting thrust for the presidency that the vice presidency might appeal in certain eventualities.

Senator Unlikely

To leave next year's Democratic convention with no nomination at all would be for him an incomparably harder thing than for Rockefeller. For Kennedy only could return sad and chastened to that place of a hundred prima donnas, the senate.

Thus, a confident estimate of the present odds is this: They are perhaps 20 to 1 against Nelson Rockefeller's winding up as the GOP vice presidential nominee. They are at least even on Kennedy's doing so for the Democratic vice presidential nomination if two assumptions are accepted: that he himself doesn't get the presidential nomination, and that whoever does will not be unacceptable to him.

Pocket-Size Telescopes Go To Contest Prize Winners

BY CAPPY DICK

A pocket-size telescope will be awarded to each of the five boys and girls who send in the neatest entries for today's cut-and-paste contest.

This is a brand new Cappy Dick prize. The telescope opens to a length of over five inches. Being small enough to carry in your pocket, it is constantly ready for use whenever you want to look at distant objects — birds, airplanes, and so on. Carry it whenever you want to look at on hikes, on errands.

To try for one of these prizes — and it's easy to be a winner — all you have to do is use your scissors to clip out the funny owl in the adjoining picture, paste him on a sheet of paper or a postal card and then dress him up by pasting on his shoes, collar and necktie.

When the paste has dried, use your paints or crayons to color the owl or otherwise decorate your entry to make it as neat and attractive as possible.

Print your name, age and address beneath the owl, then address your contest entry to Cappy Dick, Appleton Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

All entries will be examined by the contest judges to find the five that are the neatest.

Board Approves Port Survey Funds

Supervisors Also Send Decision
To Make Study Back to Committee

After two days of sporadic arguments about a survey of Outagamie county's airport and future airport needs, supervisors Tuesday voted to place $7,000 in the 1960 budget for it, but left the decision on whether to actually have such a survey in the hands of its airport committee, where it has been since September.

The decision came on a change in a resolution ordering a survey which was offered by six supervisors not on the airport committee. The change to send the survey back to committee was offered by Appleton Supv. Mark Catlin, airport committee chairman.

The move for a survey developed when a number of supervisors indicated they felt the airport committee was deliberately holding back action on a survey. When the change offered by Catlin came before the board, it was the opinion of many supervisors that to vote against it was to vote down a survey. However, Catlin's change merely set an amount and referred the question back to his committee. The original move committed the board to a survey.

"Why," asked Appleton Supv. Douglas Evans, secretary of the airport committee, "don't you let the airport committee pursue the master plan, talk to North Central Airlines and the Federal Aviation administration — you're asking to spend $10,000 for a survey without knowing if the airport is adequate or not."

$9,000 Paid
(The Foth and Porath survey was made upon instruction of the state aeronautical administration after the county paid the state $9,000 for engineering costs and land. It is a plan for expanding the present airport at a cost of over a million dollars.

(The airport committee asked and received board approval for a trip to St. Paul to meet with North Central and FAA personnel to consider the Foth and Porath plan. The plan was given to the airport committee last week, and to the county board Monday. Its first stage of construction would cost about $775,000 and take two years, 1961-63. Total construction would be through 1973. It includes a cross runway, extension of the present runway, land and buildings. The plan did not consider alternate airport sites.)

"We have to have a survey by an unbiased expert firm to find out if the airport is adequate," countered Kaukauna Supv. Russell De La Hunt. "If a DC-3 hits that residential area, I don't want the responsibility for it," he added.

Insulted him?
Evans, who earlier Tuesday had sharply criticized Robert Johnson, of North Central's flight operations department, about Convair use of cross runways, snapped, "I have been told by a constituent that I insulted Johnson — if asking for the truth is an insult, then I did."

(Evans had told Johnson that Convairs did not use cross runways. Johnson told Evans that Convairs flown by North Central did, added that all modern airports had two runways.)

De La Hunt, commenting that he had been on the airport committee, told the board that at least $7,000 had been spent on airport committee service — $7,000 was not much to get an expert opinion.

(The $7,000 for the survey apparently is in consideration of some $3,300, offered by private industry through the Citizens Aviation Advisory committee. The survey so far recommended by groups other than the county board is a $10,000 one, highest of three offers.)

Private industry hires outside experts; despite a wealth of talent within the firm, De La Hunt commented. If private industry in the Fox Cities is willing to put up money, then a study would seem to be the way to get going on an airport held up for 15 years, he added.

"That's why we want to talk to North Central and federal aviation men," answered Evans. "If we go to North Central and are told the airport is no good, I'll never vote for another nickel in it," he declared.

Works Board Asks
Hike in State Rent
For City Hall Space

Rent the state industrial commission pays for city hall space will be raised $100 a month if the city council tonight adopts a board of public works recommendation.

The state commission now pays $150 a month for 1,892 square feet used by the employment service and unemployment compensation division, 120 square feet used by the state building inspector and for periodic meetings it holds in the council chambers and committee rooms.

Mayor Mitchell said the city furnishes heat, light, janitor service, bulbs of all types, painting, decorating and telephone for the state inspector.

Fred Gehrke, office manager of the employment service, has agreed to forward the request for more rent, Mitchell said.

The rental would be on a month-to-month basis, effective Jan. 1, the mayor added.

Crash Driver Forfeits Bond

Charge Resulting From Bus Accident

Waupaca —The driver of a cement tanker truck involved in a crash with a loaded school bus and a station wagon Sept. 24 on Highway 10 near Fremont has forfeited $30.50 on a state police charge of failing to drive at a safe and prudent speed.

He is William S. Daly, 28, Milwaukee. His truck collided with the rear of a station wagon which, in turn, was pushed into the rear of a loaded school bus. The bus had stopped to take on passengers and had just started to move when the collision occurred. There were three minor injuries.

Another case resulting from the accident is still pending against Robert R. Lenzner, 38, route 1, Valders. Police charge him with obstructing the accident investigation. Investigating officers Lyle McCully, county police, and Richard Zylman, state patrol said Lenzner obstructed them from checking a tachograph, a speed registration device, on the truck.

Farmer Takes His Own Life

Rural Seymour Man
Suffocates Inside
Plastic Bag

A 53-year-old rural Seymour farmer found dead in his barn Tuesday afternoon took his own life by suffocating in a plastic bag he had placed over his head during a period of mental depression, Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps ruled today.

Elmer E. Spaude, route 1, Seymour, was found in the hay mow of his barn by Elwyn Staley, 42, and Gary Finder, 18, both of route 1, Seymour, who were asked by Mrs. Spaude to search for her husband. He had not been seen, the woman said, since 10:30 Tuesday morning.

Kemps and Outagamie County Sheriff Robert Heinritz said this is the second county death resulting from suffocation inside a bag.

Kemps said Spaude had suffered states of mental depression since late in 1958.

Spaude was born June 5, 1906, in the town of Seymour and farmed there all his life.

Private funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Friday at the Muehl Funeral home, Seymour, with the Rev. Richard Deems, pastor of the First Methodist church, Seymour, in charge. Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 p. m. Thursday. Burial will be in Highland Memorial park, Appleton.

Spaude is survived by his widow; one daughter, Mrs. Daniel Smith, West De Pere; one son, Kenneth, at home; two brothers, Herbert, route 1, Seymour; and Ray, Seymour; one sister, Mrs. Kenneth Andrews, Shiocton; and three grandchildren.

8-Member Panel To Question Nixon

College People, Citizens, Press
To Face Vice President Nov. 13

The "America and World Community" program featuring Vice President Richard M. Nixon at Lawrence college chapel the morning of Friday, Nov. 13, will take the form of a panel discussion with eight Fox Cities people firing questions at him on foreign policy and international affairs.

The panel will consist of two Lawrence college students, two faculty members, two newspaper persons and two citizens at large. Their identities will be announced early next week.

Arrival of the vice president and his party in Appleton is scheduled for 9:30 a. m. Nov. 13 at Outagamie County airport. The program at the chapel will begin at 10:15 a. m.

Welcome at Airport
Nixon and his party will be welcomed at the airport by Dr. Douglas M. Knight, president of Lawrence college, Editor V. I. Minahan of the Post-Crescent and Appleton Mayor Clarence Mitchell.

The guests will be escorted in motor cars to Lawrence College Music-Drama center, where Nixon will be briefed on the discussion at the chapel.

All tickets for the 1,600 seats at the chapel have been taken, but arrangements have been made to use the Stansbury theater in the college music-drama center to permit others to hear the program. A public address system has been installed in the theater and the chapel program will be piped to the music-drama center location.

'Sound Only' Tickets
Tickets for the "sound only" part of the program were made available at the Appleton and Neenah-Menasha offices of the Appleton Post-Crescent this morning. They are available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The chapel program will end at 11:45 a.m., after which Vice President Nixon and his party will walk across the college campus to attend a luncheon at Colman hall. Others invited to the luncheon will be presidents of the state's independent and public colleges and newspaper editorial writers from Milwaukee, Madison, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Neenah and Appleton.

Purpose of the luncheon is to give Nixon an opportunity to discuss background material with state educators and editorial writers.

Only one change has been made in the plans for Nixon's appearance at the chapel. To save time, there will be no questions accepted from the audience as previously announced. The vice president has to leave Appleton early in the afternoon in order to reach Indianapolis for a speech the same night.

Nixon's appearance marks the second "America and World Community" program sponsored by Lawrence college and the Appleton Post-Crescent. Started this spring, the series is a unique experiment in community education through the cooperation of a newspaper and a college. Dr. Charles Mahk, United Nations president and Lebanon delegate, opened the series when he visited Appleton April 21.

Finance, Tax Bills Creating GOP-Democratic Tug-of-War

Nelson Wants to Find Solution, Republicans Wait for Study Report

Post-Crescent Staff Writer
Madison—An extended tug-of-war between the Republican senate and the Democratic administration assembly appeared to be building today as a result of a clash over finance and taxation.

Gov. Gaylord Nelson, who can depend on the support of the lower house of the legislature, is determined that the legislature will meet that the problem of tax needs now, balance his state budget and adjourn for the biennium.

Republicans who rule the to await the results of Gov. senate seem equally resolved Nelson's tax study commission before attempting tax revision, which probably will bring moves for another legislative recess to a final sitting early in 1960.

GOP Confident

At the moment GOP leaders appear more confident of the public acceptability of their position.

Returning Republican lawmakers complain recessed legislature this fall was the governor's idea, arising out of his tax study machinery and insistence on basic tax review.

They simply are following the original intention of his program, they explain, while the governor himself has shifted strategy, presumably for political purposes.

Governor Aware

That the governor is aware of the delicacy of the matter is shown by the care with which he has handled it. He has centered public attention for the last two weeks on his own proposals. As the legislature took its seats Tuesday, he got out a public statement in which he suggested that Republicans "intend to play politics with tax revision."

While the Republican senate can frustrate Gov. Nelson's plan to raise income tax rates this fall, the Democratic assembly can refuse to permit another recess for later deliberations on the citizens' committee tax report.

The governor's approach to legislators, meanwhile, has been conciliatory on other matters.

Conciliation Move

He has hinted he will be willing to consign to the wastebasket a bundle of 65 separate matters held over in spite of the fact the package contains some matters of extreme importance to him.

Whether the Republican and Democratic causes can agree to the package defeat of that bundle was not yet clear today and the matter may take several days for negotiation.

Meanwhile Nelson disclosed at a conference with legislative leaders late Tuesday that he is willing to compromise on his controversial demand for billboard regulation by putting the issue to a popular referendum, give up his plan for new legislation for water ski regulations, and cut down his college student assistance program.

Most Assured Passage

Most of the incidental legislative requests of Nelson for the fall session, however, were minor and correction matters not likely to run into any trouble.

A closed caucus of the Republican senate majority Tuesday indicated the majority members of the upper house will attempt to cut out of Nelson's new budget some of the increases he proposed and that at least one of his important nominees for administrative office will have heavy lifting.

He is David Carley, chosen by Nelson for the $14,000 job as boss of the consolidated state department of economic resource development.

Several Republican majority senators talked privately Tuesday night about what they called solidarity in their first caucus.

Soviets Claim New World Mark By Test Pilot

Moscow —(AP)—Pravda reported today that a Soviet test pilot flew a single engine jet plane 2,504 kilometers (1,555.98 miles) an hour to break the official world's air speed record.

The newspaper said Lt. Col. Georgy Mosolov, a veteran test pilot, set the mark while testing a delta-wing E66 jet "in the lower strata of the atmosphere" Oct. 31. Mosolov averaged 2,388 kilometers (1,483.90 miles) an hour during the entire run, the report said.

The previous recognized record, 2,330 kilometers (1,456.25 miles) an hour, was set Oct. 6 by French test pilot Andre Turcat in a delta-wing Griffon II jet interceptor. The flight was made at 45,000 feet.

Pravda said Mosolov's speed had been submitted to the International Aeronautical Federation for official approval as a world record.

Though the Russian's showing apparently exceeded the official record, it still is far from the fastest flight ever made. U. S. Air Force Capt. Elburn G. Apt flew a rocket-powered X2 plane at 2,260 miles an hour before crashing Sept. 26, 1956. Apt died in the crash.

Mosolov's feat was given considerable space in the Moscow papers, indicating that it would be touted highly in connection with the 42nd celebration of the Bolshevik revolution to be marked by a big parade on Saturday.

To Your Good Health

Too Many Red Blood Cells Known as Polycythemia

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.
"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told by a hematologist that I have polycythemia vera. Could you explain this to me? S/m p-10 m/s; treatment, cure? I am 50.—Mrs. P.C.G."

This disease strikes three men for every one woman. It is usually seen at or after middle age and not often earlier.

It's a rather curious one in that it consists of having too many red cells in the blood, the opposite of anemia. Normally there are 4 1/2 to 5 million red cells in a cubic centimeter; if the count is over 6 1/2 million, we consider the case as being polycythemia.

The symptoms are on the general side—possibly some weakness, headaches, dizziness, bloating, gassiness, sometimes easy bruising, and itching. These are not necessarily the kinds of symptoms that are definite enough to send a patient off to the doctor, you see.

Found By Accident

The result is that polycythemia is usually found more or less by accident; a blood count is taken either as routine or for some other purpose, and it shows up. Likewise, victims as a rule have ruddy, even florid complexions, and are regarded as being in good health.

Invariably we find that the patient also has considerable hardening of the arteries, and usually high blood pressure along with it. (That's respectable.)

and stretches out over the years. In that sense, it is more a condition than a disease in the ordinary use of these terms. The by-products are what we must guard against, rather than the disease itself.

Conditions to Watch

Mainly they are the things we guard against in hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure: heart disease, strokes and kidney disturbance.

In years past a drug (phenylhydrazine) was used because it tended to destroy red cells and get the count back toward normal. It wasn't very dependable.

More recently X-ray treatment of the bones (the idea being to slow down red cell production, and radioactive phosphorus, for the same purpose, appear to be more useful. But they have limitations, too.

Old Treatment

So—and this will surprise you—the most effective treatment is one which used to be a cure-all a century and more ago:

Withdrawal of blood, or "blood-letting," or "bleeding."

The body readily restores the proper volume of blood, but it takes longer for the red cells to replace themselves.

After a time, four or five blood lettings a year may be all that is required in the line of treatment. On some cases, all three (X-ray, radioactive phosphorus and blood-letting) may be combined.

Is the treatment effective?

Yes! But starting it early is essential. You can't wait until, after some years, the really serious results of the disease have started to appear. When you start treating early, and keep at it, there is a very

Music Center Acquires New Teaching Aids

Microfilm Reader, Tape Recorders Among Additions

Teaching aids never available before to faculty members of the Lawrence conservatory of music have been installed and are now in use at the new Music-Drama center.

In the choral rehearsal room is a spotlight opaque projector, which projects pages of music manuscript for group study while the music is being played. Three tape recording machines are now employed in the theory, while phonograph listening facilities in the Waterman library have been doubled. Students listen to records by means of head sets, to keep the room quiet for other use.

A 16 millimeter movie-sound projector has also been marked reduction in strokes, heart disease and the other things that otherwise would be almost certain to develop.

Bursitis

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes bursitis? Is there a permanent cure?—F.S."

A bursa is a sort of sac with a little fluid in it, which helps the joints ride smoothly as they move—elbow, knee, shoulder, etc. If too much pressure, strain or a blow inflames a bursa, that is bursitis. Draining, resting, sometimes injecting drugs are among the effective treatments. Avoiding new damage or pressure to prevent recurrence, is obviously important.

placed in the choral rehearsal room, while the seminar room houses a new microfilm reader. A six drawer film file cabinet to accompany the latter has been made possible by the memorial gift to Marjion Hutchinson McCreedy, one-time faculty member at the conservatory. With the microfilm reader, it is now possible to acquire historical musical collections from the Library of Congress and other sources. Collections already acquired on film are the "Monuments of Italian Music," "Music of the French Renaissance," and "Deutscher Denkmaler," a comprehensive collection of medieval and renaissance German scores.

Period Pianos

For ease in moving instruments in and out of the Harper recital hall, the conservatory has obtained two trucks for grand pianos and one truck for the harpsichord. There are now 68 pianos in the new building, an increase of 40 per cent from the old Peabody hall.

Two period pianos will be installed in the Music-Drama center after rebuilding.

The oldest piano, vintage of Mozart, has been in the college's possession for more than 15 years, and was maintained as an historic artifact since it was thought to be the first piano to be brought into Outagamie county more than a century ago. It is now being restored and will be used for performance of Mozart-period music.

The second piano, of the era of Beethoven, has recently been given to Lawrence by two residents of Ellison Bay—Miss Mary Powers and her brother W. C. Powers. The square instrument has its original strings, and will also be reconditioned for recital use.

Every studio and classroom—16 in number—have been equipped with new console phonographs, there are three and practice facilities have been increased 50 per cent over the old structure.

Several additional pieces of teaching equipment will come to the conservatory soon from memorial funds. A fund honoring Dr. Carl J. Waterman, late dean of the conservatory, will establish a library of opera scores, while another memorial gift to E. C. Moore, long-time Lawrence band director, has not yet been chosen.

Still Showing Gain

Prolonged Steel Strike Creating Havoc in 1959 Industrial Profits

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

New York.—Doing business still is profitable in the United States for the big majority of firms despite the inroads of the steel strike. But for many it's getting increasingly less so. And a number are reaching for the red ink.

The "earnings" statements pouring out day by day tell the story when you compare their total profits for the year so far with those for just the July-August-September quarter.

For the first nine months of the year five out of six corporations were making more money than in the first three quarters of 1958. Some of them were making record totals. As a whole industry was doing 35 per cent better than a year ago.

Increase Falling Off
Corporations still were doing better this summer than last, but the year-to-year increase was disappearing fast. And executive after executive is warning his shareholders that in the final months of the steel upheaval, if not already bare, soon will be.

But the story is different if you look at the year up to Sept. 30. Of the first 583 corporations to report, only 91 show declines in net earnings after taxes from the like nine months in 1958.

There were 21 companies operating at a loss this year (10 of them railroads) compared to 40 of the same firms in 1958 (with railroads accounting for six of these).

$119 Million Loss
The steel industry's profit story is typical of what damage the strike already has done to some, and what it threatens for others. For the first nine months 28 steel companies averaged a 31.5 per cent profit gain over the previous year. But 22 of these, reporting on their books for the third quarter, show a combined loss of $119,835,000, compared to a profit of $176,310,000 the previous year.

The railroads in the steel areas tell the same story. About half of the rails in the nation trailed their year ago figures, although four out of five operated at a profit.

Outstanding gainers this year over last were the motors and their supplies (largely because one big auto firm switched from red ink last year to black this, and an even bigger one doubled its earnings). Combined, these firms bettered last year's mark by 277 per cent.

Textiles Improving
Runnersup were the textiles, with a 127 per cent increase.

Farm equipment makers show a 66 per cent year-to-year gain, and the rubber companies a 52 per cent increase.

As a whole the 503 industrial companies in the compilation are up 41 per cent, the 25 utilities and communication companies up 17 per cent, and the 51 railroads off 1 per cent. Five airlines show a group gain of 27 per cent while four shipping companies are off 12 per cent as a whole.

Combined, the 588 corporations chalked up $8,617,461,000 in profits in the first nine months of the year, compared to $6,382,573,000 in 1958.

But remember, the figures cover the period up to Sept. 30. It is since then that layoffs and shutdowns began to spread fast beyond the steel industry.

It's the impetus of the first half of the year when business as a whole was making 56 per cent more money than in 1958 that has carried the slower third quarter and still is believed by many to assure companies averaged a 31.5 per cent profit gain over the previous year. But 22 of these, reporting on their books for the third quarter, show a

German to Hang For Murder of London Officer

London.—Home Secretary R. A. Butler ruled Tuesday that German-born Guenther Fritz Podola must hang early Thursday for the murder of a London police officer.

Rejecting a defense plea for commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment, Butler's office said he "has been unable to find any ground to interfere with the due course of law."

It was Podola's last chance. Podola, 30, was convicted of fatally shooting Detective Sgt. Raymond Purdy last July 13 when the officer tried to arrest him on charges of making lewd telephone calls to a model, Mrs. Verne Schiffman.

Podola claimed he could not recall the shooting. His lawyers argued unsuccessfully at his trial that he was suffering from amnesia.

Podola had been sentenced to die at Wandsworth prison Oct. 16, but the execution was postponed while the criminal court of appeal reviewed the case. The court dismissed the appeal.

Parseghian, Bruhn Avoid Predictions

NOTES and NOTIONS

It looks as though Xavier High school's athletic teams are going to take the big plunge unexpectedly early. It's not official, but the Hawks are likely to bid for 1960-61 membership in the Fox Valley conference, says Coach Gene Clark. The application, if made, will be considered at next week's conference meeting. "It will be a real challenge," declared Clark in alluding to the projected entry of the 3-year high school (which the Hawk institution will be next year) into a circuit composed of a quintet of 4-year schools. The Hawks, affiliation with the league—which would be effective with the 1960 football season—would come a full year ahead of the original schedule. School officials and Clark discussed all phases of the "whether to join in 1960" question before reaching an apparently affirmative conclusion. (Lourdes of Oshkosh—currently in its first year, as is Xavier—is definitely not considering FVCC entry for 1960-61). Clark acknowledges that the football Hawks could take their lumps in the FVCC next year—especially against a couple of foes—but firmly believes they can field a representative team in '60. And, win or lose, says Clark, the team can't help but profit from the experience of playing a tough schedule. (Clark didn't say as much, but it's probable that the Hawks' highly-impressive first season—six wins, one loss—influenced the decision on early FVCC entry).

Attributes 'Extra' Wins to Team's Hard Work

Clark indicates he was well pleased with the football season and is "real proud" of his team. None of the six wins was a fluke, he points out, and in the 19-7 loss to 4-year Sevastopol, the Hawks controlled the ball practically the entire first quarter. "Torchy" confides that he made a pre-season estimate on a 4-3 record for the Hawks. He attributes the "extra" wins to hard work. Boys who had played for Clark while he compiled a brilliant junior high coaching record at Appleton St. Mary were familiar with the red-head's insistence on total concentration and all-out effort. Those who came from other schools learned quickly that Clark's hard-work methods paid off. Forced to practice at Pierce park because of a lack of facilities, the squad walked nine-tenths of a mile before and after stiff daily practices. (These regular hikes were only of one-season duration since Xavier's attractive new football field is now being readied for seeding and will be in use in '60).

The dedicated Clark, who plays down the long hours he himself devotes to the Hawks' organizational process, praises school officials, athletic association officers and the student body for the support they've given the team. He also cites the "tremendous help" he got from Jim Newcomb, a volunteer football coaching aide. Clark predicts a bright future for Xavier—in both the academic and athletic senses. He believes there is plenty of room, sportwise, for three local high schools (Appleton High, Fox Lutheran and Xavier). On a long-range basis, he sees a parallel between Appleton and Eau Claire—where both the public high school and Eau Claire Regis consistently have good teams.

With other new Catholic high schools either now under way or in the planning stages at Oshkosh, Sheboygan and Manitowoc, the FVCC could, conceivably, expand to new frontiers and new strength in the near future.

Appleton's Jim Wink, whose football trip here with Carleton college Saturday was in the form of a homecoming, is one of a quartet of players who have kept Appleton High strong at the pivot post for the last five years or more. John Jooss (who was named all-state) was the Terrors' No. 1 center in 1955; Wink took over in '56. Bob Eggert (an all-stater and now a promising university of Miami sophomore guard) was next in line. And, Tom Kottke has played consistently well at the position in '58 and '59.

Eggert Charlie Kress, who won Three-I league manager of the year honors with Des Moines in '59, will manage the Ashville, N. C., entry in the Class A Sally league next season.

Harry Dalton, the Baltimore Orioles' assistant farm director, observed here in his recent visit: "the minors are finally reaching stability." He believes that a further major decrease in numbers is unlikely and that the current list of minor league cities will pretty much remain the hard core. Dalton says that Baltimore could be tough next year and will likely be a pennant factor in the AL by 1961. It's possible the Orioles will trade off one of their 20-year-old pitching stars—Jack Fisher, Milt Pappas or Jerry Walker—for some hitting during the winter.

Each Fears The Other's Offense

Chicago — The men who should know best Tuesday shied from picking the winner of Saturday's title-bearing Big Ten football game between undefeated Northwestern and once-beaten Wisconsin.

Coach Ara Parseghian of second-ranked Northwestern told a meeting of the Chicago Football Writers association he feared Wisconsin's big line and power-type attack.

Coach Milt Bruhn of Wisconsin assured the scribes, via an amplified telephone report, that Northwestern is a good all-around team without a weakness.

Good Passing, Running
Bruhn said of Northwestern (conqueror of Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan and Indiana in conference play): "This is a good passing team and a good running team. We just can't concentrate our defense on either phase of Northwestern's attack.

Parseghian pointed out the Wildcats will be outweighed 14 pounds per man in both the line and backfield by Wisconsin which has lost to Purdue and defeated Iowa, Ohio State and Michigan in the Big Ten.

"We have found it hard to run against a big team and this is the largest team we have met this season," said Parseghian.

"Wisconsin has a power type offense. They bang at you in the middle with Bob Zeman and Tom Wiesner and then Dale Hackbart counters on the outside, passing on the move or running.

"If our defense can hold them, we have a fine chance to win. If they can play possession ball and keep pounding us, we have a fine chance to lose."

AHS Chartered Buses Leave Saturday Noon For Manitowoc Game

Appleton High school's chartered buses for the Manitowoc football game will leave the Terrors' den (YMCA building) at 12 noon Saturday.

The cost (exclusive of the game ticket) for the round trip is $1.25 for both students and adults, organizers report.

Says Terrors Must Be 'Up' Saturday

Post-Crescent Sports Editor

"Unless we're up for Manitowoc Saturday, we will really be in for trouble," Herdis McCrary, Jr., Appleton High school's assistant football coach, told the Appleton Quarterback club Tuesday night.

Favorable Effect
Manty will be "up" for the Terrors, McCrary warned and stressed that the proof the Ships are a good team was in their coming within two minutes of beating Green Bay West. (Manty finally lost out, 7-6, to the Fox River Valley conference leaders).

McCrary, filling in for Head Coach Ade Dillon at the meeting, declared that the tough time encountered against Fond du Lac last week (the Terrors squeezed out a 13-7 win) could have a favorable psychological effect for Saturday.

Lawrence coach Bernie Heselton, looking ahead to the Vikes' road assignment against Midwest conference power St. Olaf, said, "We'll do the best job we can." He said the Vikes don't fear anyone and that their impressive showings against Coe and Carleton have bolstered their confidence considerably.

McCrary observed that part of heavily-favored AHS' troubles against Fondy was traceable to an "unconscious" type of loafing because the opposition was supposedly weak.

Bays' Alumni Unit Sponsors Send-Off for Club Saturday

Packers Haven't Beaten Bears Twice in One Season Since '35

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — The Packers Alumni association wants the Packers to get off on the right foot in the second half of the 1960 season.

The association, the only organization of its kind in the country that meets monthly, will sponsor a sendoff for the Packers when they leave for the Bear game Saturday morning.

That was announced today by Alumni President Charley Brock, who worked out details for the program at the group's November meeting Monday night.

"We were all pleased with the team in the first half and we want to start them off right in the second. We are asking the public to get out and and personally yell the team off to Chicago—just as they helped us in years past."

Snappy Program
The Packers will leave on the 10:25 from the Northwestern depot. A snappy program will start shortly before 10 o'clock.

They'll start fireworks (bombing) about 9:30 Saturday morning. The program will include introduction of players, fight talks, music and lots of noise. Fans are urged to bring their own signs and noisemakers.

The Packers can make history in Chicago Sunday—history older than some of the players.

American Pro Grid Loop Plans 50-Round Draft Nov. 22-23

Minneapolis — The new American Football league plans to name 500 to 600 of the nation's senior collegiate football stars in its organizational draft here this month, a spokesman said today.

"Naturally, everybody is going after quarterbacks first," said Max Winter, acting general manager of the Minneapolis - St. Paul entry.

"We'll need at least 50 rounds or so to give each club a working roster," Winter said. "Our big inducement in competition with the National Football league is that we can just about guarantee a job to the players we draft."

The brass of the new conference will gather here Nov. 22 and 23 for a public draft that formally will launch the American in competition with the long-established NFL.

Wade Takes Lead In NFL Passing

Packers' McHan Ranks 8th; Hornung Is 7th in Rushing

Philadelphia —(AP)— Billy Wade, a vital cog in the Los Angeles Rams offensive, has jumped into the lead as the National Football league's top passer, official statistics showed today.

The former Vanderbilt star completed 16 passes for 206 yards against the Chicago Bears Sunday to move from third to first in the standings with an 8.64 average gain on 79 completions out of 126 attempts for 1,089 yards and nine touchdowns. In the passing department, standings are based on the average gain per pass attempted.

Behind Wade are Ralph Guglielmi, Washington, with an 8.58 average on 26-60-515; Charley Conerly, New York, 8.15 on 70-122-994; and Johnny Unitas, San Francisco, 8.00 on 101-193-1,544.

Giant Step

Cleveland's Jimmy Brown took a giant step Sunday toward retaining his ground gaining crown he carried for 178 yards and five touchdowns in defeating Baltimore. He now has 737 yards in 154 carries for a 4.8 average.

Second in rushing is J. D. Smith, San Francisco, with 604 yards on 118 carries and a 5.1 average.

Art Powell, of Philadelphia, leads in two departments. The speedy end is first in punt and kickoff returns with 11.9 and 34.4 averages respectively.

'Liz' Warns MU Against Complacency

North Dakota State Has Well-Balanced Attack, Says Coach

Milwaukee —(AP)— Coach Lisie Blackburn warned his Marquette players today not to consider their game here Saturday against North Dakota State as a "breather" despite the fact that the Warriors are favored to win and end their 11-game losing streak.

The Bison have a well balanced running and passing attack, the coach said, and have speed which could give the slower Warriors an afternoon of trouble.

Marquette's advantage will be in over-all size but they have no running backs to match halfback Gary Ahlgren and fullback Curt Quenette, Coach George Kelly, who scouted the Bisons last week, said. They also have a good passer in quarterback Ross Fortier who has completed 35 of 72 passes, including five for touchdowns.

Fullback John Lane will be lost to Marquette for the game because of a shoulder injury, Blackburn said. Sophomore Pat Geraghty will be moved up to fill the hole.

Giardello-Tiger 10-Rounder Is Rated a Toss-Up

Cleveland —(AP)— "I've just got to get even with him and beat him big," Joey Giardello says of his 10-round middleweight scrap here tonight with Dick Tiger, British Empire middle champ from Nigeria.

Although Tiger won a unanimous decision from Giardello in Chicago Sept. 30, the bettors regard tonight's return bout as a toss-up. The fight will be televised nationally (ABC).

A Year Older

"So many people seem to think I've gone back a distance," said Giardello, former Philadelphia, now of Rosedale, N. Y. "But my whole trouble's been I didn't have the ambish I used to be loaded with."

Tiger at 30 is a year older than Giardello but he demonstrated a superior stamina in their Chicago meeting.

The Nigerian, who lives in Liverpool, England, has a record of 35 victories in 45 fights, 10 by knockouts. Giardello started his second hundred in bouts this year and has won 78, 27 by kayo.

end, leads among the pass receivers. In the past two games, Berry has caught 21 passes to bring his total for the year to 40. He has gained 584 yards and scored six touchdowns.

Leads in Scoring

Bobby Joe Conrad of the Chicago Cardinals, leads in scoring with 50 points. Tom Davis, San Francisco, is second with 49.

Green Bay Packer Paul Hornung ranks seventh among the ground gainers with 355 yards on 93 carries, the longest 22 yards, for a 3.8 yard average.

Packer quarterback Lamar McHan is eighth among passers with an average gain of 7.3 yards per completion. He's tossed 99 times, completing 45 passes for 723 yards and a completion percentage of 45.5. Eight of McHan's aeriels have gone for touchdowns.

State Supreme Court Rules WIAA Obligated for Claims

Madison —(AP)— The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association can be sued for claims growing out of injuries to students covered by its accident benefit plan, the state Supreme court held Tuesday.

Although the association's structure is that of a voluntary organization, Justice Timothy Brown's opinion held, its powers imply a legal obligation for the claims.

Ara Is Super Salesman

NU Retained Faith in Parseghian Through Winless Season of 1957

By Charles Chamberlain

Evanston, Ill. —(AP)— One of the greatest tributes to Ara Parseghian came in 1957, his second season as Northwestern's football coach. No one grumbled although the Wildcats dropped all nine of their games.

The faith in Parseghian, hired to rebuild after Northwestern won only one Big Ten game in three years, was thoroughly established. Painstaking recruiting began paying off in 1958 when the Wildcats won their first four games, including a 55-24 whipping of Michigan, and climaxed the season with a 21-0 whitewash of defending champion Ohio State.

Super Salesman

Today, Northwestern is unbeaten in six games, tops the Big Ten, and No. 2 in the nation.

Parseghian is a super salesman. He knows his subject and how to put it across. His enthusiasm is as catching as a virus.

He wrings the most from his players and makes them glad to give it.

His hardest job? "Trying to get the boys we wanted after our 1957 season. If you don't think it's hard to recruit after losing all your games, try it."

Under the Big Ten financial aid plan, based on need, building a winning football team at privately endowed Northwestern is work that takes the kind of 'salesmanship' Parseghian exudes.

More Stringent

"Being a private school, our entrance requirements are more stringent than other state schools," says athletic director "Stu" Holcomb, whose first move when he was hired was to get Parseghian from Miami of Ohio, where, in five years, his teams had a 39-6-1 record.

"Students entering Northwestern must pass a college board entrance examination. Also, because our tuition averages $800 or more above any other state school, the cost limits the number of scholarships available. The University of Illinois, for instance, can take two boys for our one because of cost."

"We can't play numbers. Our freshmen group averages about 30 compared to 50 or 60 at other Big Ten schools. When we recruit, we can't make mistakes, or we'll have a poor season."

It's up to the imaginative Parseghian not to make mistakes, only a few, if any, has he made as his recruiting branches mainly into Ohio, his home ground, and in the Chicago area, where he plucked quarterback Dick Thorn-

Broken Ankle

Thornton was hailed throughout the Big Ten as one of the finest sophomore quarterbacks in years in 1958. On the first play of Northwestern's opening 1959 conference game, he went out with a broken ankle for the season.

Despite the loss of a player around whom Parseghian had built his entire offense, Northwestern kept winning.

"We have to limit our recruiting to blue-chip athletes," says Parseghian. "They are the ones who are good athletically as well as academically. And they are the ones everybody else would like to have. It is very difficult to get 11 players out of 35 who can make the Big Ten grade."

By The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics, world professional basketball champions, are off to another hot start in the young National Basketball association race.

Boston, which began the 1957-58 season with 14 straight victories, remained unbeaten in five games after defeating the Hawks Tuesday night at St. Louis, 103-98.

The New York Knickerbockers finally got their first victory in the opener of the doubleheader at St. Louis, before 8,826.

The Knicks, who dropped their first two games, beat the Minneapolis Lakers, 99-93, as Richie Guerin scored 35, and Elgin Baylor got 28 for Minneapolis.

Bob Cousy and Bill Russell topped Celtic scoring — each with 17 points.

Buffalo New Member of Grid League

New York —(AP)— Boston appeared today to be the leading candidate to receive the eighth and last franchise in the new American Football league.

Harry Wismer, member of the pro league's expansion committee, conferred with a Boston group headed by Leo Dowd of Nashua, N. H., Tuesday. He said no decision was reached but indicated Boston was the leader so far over interests from Philadelphia, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati and New Orleans.

The franchise vacancies were trimmed to one Tuesday when Buffalo officially became the seventh member. Wismer said Ralph C. Wilson, Jr., of Detroit had decided to locate in Buffalo the franchise the AFL awarded him a week ago.

The six charter members of the league, which is scheduled to begin operations next fall, are New York, Los Angeles, Dallas, Houston, Denver and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

MU's Webster Has Eligibility Extended

Marquette university half-back Jim Webster will be eligible to play one more season for the Warriors, according to Athletic Director Larry "Moon" Mullins.

Webster, who had been dogged by injuries previous to this season, is classified as a so-called "hardship case." He played just a few minutes of one game last year and then missed the rest of the season with injuries.

Iowa State's Watkins Paces Rushers

By The Associated Press

Tom Watkins, 180-pound Iowa State junior, catches on quickly. Shifted from wing-back to fullback this season, Watkins has gained 599 yards rushing in seven games to lead all other major college players in that department, the NCAA Service bureau reported today.

Watkins replaced New Mexico State's Percis Atkins as rushing leader, while Dick Norman of Stanford strengthened his lead in passing and total offense.

Leads by 16

The Iowa State back leads Atkins by 16 yards, with another Iowa State player, tailback Dwight Nichols, another 31 yards back in third place.

Atkins is idle this week, so Watkins and Nichols have a chance to become the first teammates in major college history to run 1-2 in rushing. Iowa State meets Nebraska Saturday.

Norman has completed 93 passes in 74 attempts for 1,253 yards, leading Marquette's Pete Hall, with 77 complete in 161 throws for 1,022 yards. Army's Joe Caldwell has the best completion mark among the leaders, 642.

In total offense, Norman has compiled 1,309 yards. Nichols is second in total offense with 1,060 yards, Hall is third with 971.

AA Hopes to Retain Omaha As Member

Chicago —(AP)— The American association closed a one-day meeting Tuesday still seeking an eighth member for the 1960 season.

Officials said one possibility was the retention of the Omaha franchise. The 10-team league dropped to seven at the end of the 1959 season when Omaha, Fort Worth and Charleston, W. Va., pulled out.

Jim Burris, assistant to President Ed Doherty, said: "We have talked to Mayor John Rosenblatt and other Omaha city officials about the possibility of Omaha remaining. Nothing has crystallized yet. Several other cities have been discussed but they belong to other leagues and we are not at liberty to identify them."

Members are Denver, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Indianapolis, Louisville, Dallas and Houston.

In the passing department, Hackbart leads with 326 yards gained in 23 completions. His percentage is .451.

Sophomore Jim Bakken leads Hackbart on the percentage side of the statistics. He's thrown 23 passes, completed 12 for 172 yards and a marksmanship figure of .522.

Bloodgood made the statement following the arrangement of George Incorvino, Jr., 28, Madison, on a charge of possessing the gambling cards with intent to transfer them.

Incovino's case was continued until Nov. 11.

that the Bays have beaten the Bears just eight times in Green Bay since then.

Lost in Chicago

In 1939, Green Bay won here, 21-16, but lost in Chi-cago, 30-27. In 1944, it was by 22-28 Packers here and a 21-0 headache in Wrigley field; in 1945, 31-21 Packers here and 23-24 Bears there; in 1947, 29-20 Packers here, 20-17 Bears there; in 1950, 31-21 Packers here, 28-14 Bears there; in 1955, 24-3 Packers here, 52-31 Bears there; in 1957 21 - 17 Packers here, 21 - 14 Bears there.

The eighth chance is 1959. The Packers won the opener, 9-6, here. What's for Sunday? Winning in Chicago isn't impossible. . . . The Packers last did it in '52, 41 to 28. That win broke a long cold spell. The previous Green Bay win in Chicago was in '41 when Green Bay whipped the great-est Bear team in history, 16-0.

The Bears figure they have the "soft" part of their sched-ule left. That's the way they were talking after they beat the Rams in Los Angeles Sun-day, said Wally Cruise, Pack-er scout who reported on the Ram-Bear game Tuesday. The Bears undoubtedly con-sider the Packers one of the "soft" clubs left. Other than Green Bay, the Bears play two with the Lions and one each with the 49ers, Cards and Steelers.

The Bears play the 49ers after the Packers. Wonder if they'll be looking ahead. Some of the Bears said they might have been looking ahead to the Colts when they lost here in the opener.

A sixth letterman, senior Dave LaViolette, will report at the end of the football season, as will a number of other candidates.

Emanuel is hopeful that a seventh letterman, John Nuss-baum (an all-conference play-er last season) will be able to join the squad later in the season. Nussbaum, who un-derwent knee surgery last week, will remain hospitalized for perhaps another week.

Thus far, there is no official estimate on how soon he may be able to resume his athletic career.

ment Tuesday night, charged the 218-pound lineman with purposely injuring Cal half-back Steve Bates in Satur-day's game here.

They said they had viewed films of the game carefully with USC President Norman Topping and Vice President Francis Tappan, and added that they expected USC officials to take appropriate ac-tion.

Formal Apology

After returning to Los An-geles, Dr. Topping met with USC's Faculty Athletic com-mittee and then issued a formal apology.

"This, as well as other inci-dents in the game, we feel could have been avoided. To the extent that we are respon-sible, we apologize. We will insist that our team play good, hard, but clean foot-ball. The coaches are in-structed to see that this pol-icy is followed."

USC Coach Don Clark and McKeever had denied charges that McKeever delibera-tely struck 175-pound Bates with his elbow in falling on him along the sidelines after the whistle had blown.

Bates suffered a shattered cheek bone and broken nose. His face still is so swollen an operation has been post-poned.

California's Kerr and Sea-borg, in their statement, cited other instances involv-ing McKeever. They specif-ically named the previous week's USC-Stanford game and last year's Cal-USC game.

McKeever was ousted from Saturday's game — won by USC, 14-7—but for roughing up Bear quarterback Pete Olson after Bates was in-jured. He also was ousted from the Stanford game for unnecessary roughness.

Horvath Stars As Bruins Trip Hawks

Chicago — Bronco Hor-vath is the scoring sensation of the National Hockey league because he heeded a goalie's advice—shoot fast and along the ice.

The Boston center contrib-uted two goals and two assists to a 6-3 victory over Chicago Tuesday night which boosted the Bruins into third place.

In 12 games, Bronco has 12 goals. Closest NHL rival Ber-nie Geoffrion of Montreal has seven in one more start. Hor-vath has 19 points, four more than runner-up Geoffrion.

"It's not how hard you shoot, it's how quick you get your shot away," Horvath ex-plains. "The element of sur-prise is the big thing."

Much of his information was acquired in talks with Port-Colborne neighbor Don Smi-mons who now is one of the Bruins' two goalies.

AHS Must be 'Up' for Ships, Coach Warns

Team Bears Down

When the Terrors were jolted into the realization that they could lose the game, they really bore down, said Mc-Crary.

Fondy, which was high for the game, employed a 9-man line quite a bit of the time, reported McCrary, and be-cause of the wetness of the field, AHS couldn't run wide very well. He said Fond du Lac also doubtlessly figured that with John Nussbaum out of action, the second - string quarterback (John Taylor) couldn't pass.

"But Taylor fooled them," emphasized McCrary.

McCrary pointed out that Taylor's touchdown pass to Wayne Polzin was a well-executed play. He said that Taylor let Polzin run under the ball, as he looped it over the defense to prevent an in-terception.

Fastest Backfield

AHS has the fastest back-field in the conference, said McCrary, and with a dry field at Manitowoc, long runs could develop. He cited Dave La-Violette's fast starts, his pass-catching ability and his im-portant kick runbacks.

Fullback Cal Kluess "got mad" in the second half and really was tearing through, noted McCrary. Don Brock, "a hard runner, came through when we needed him." He said Brock and end Jerry Gendron are a pair of juniors of whom big things are expected next season.

McCrary also commended the defensive play of Dick Wankey, Dick Heiss and Dave Walter.

Of Lawrence's 14-6 win over Carleton, Hesselton said "It was the greatest Lawrence team effort in quite a few years." He praised Assistant Coach Gene Davis for "a fine scouting job" and As-sistant Coach Don Boya for "helping plan the defenses."

"No team in a long time was any more ready than we were," said Hesselton. "No one played a poor game."

He indicated that the win over Carleton was Law-rence's first in a long time over a team that was sup-posed to beat the Vikes with ease.

'Really Hitting'

"It was a very good ball game," said Bernie, "and both teams were really hit-ting." He added that his own team "was fighting to get over one another to get at the ball carrier."

A key factor for the Vikes was the "good straight-ahead power by the line," according to Hesselton. He also lauded the backs: (1) "Gary Scovel had a terrific day. . . we'll really miss him next year."

(2) "Jim Schulze had one of his best days. . . he's certain-ly cool on roll-outs." (3) "Mike Ulwelling is getting better every week. . . he keeps those legs pumping all the time." (4) "It was amaz-ing how Bob Landis held onto the ball and didn't fumble despite constant fast charges by a Carleton lineman (George Williams)."

Hesselton added that line-man Doug Millard who had played a steady game every week came up with a really outstanding performance against the Carls.

Pointing out that no one had expected Lawrence to win as many as four games this season (the Vikes are now 4-3), Hesselton said, "This gang has done as much as any club ever has for me."

NU Stresses Defenses for Badger Plays

Irish Promote Sophomore Naab to No. 1 Fullback

Chicago — Midwest foot-ball briefs:

Northwestern—Defense was the order for Northwestern with the first two teams working against Wisconsin plays which were run by the fourth stringers.

Illinois—Star guard Bill Burrell was sent to a hospi-tal with an inflamed tendon in the right ankle. If Burrell is sidelined for the Michigan game, he'll be replaced by Pat Lennon.

Purdue—End Richard Brooks and center Sam Joy-ner were withheld from con-tact work because of bruises. Fullback Bob Jarus remained doubtful for Michigan State because of a leg injury.

Michigan State—Although Purdue has connected for on-ly five yards passing in the last two games, Michigan State worked hard on its leaky aerial defense. Purdue, it was remembered, passed for three touchdowns against Wisconsin.

Ohio State—Guard Mike In-gram will play against Indi-ana in spite of a hairline fracture of a wrist bone. In-gram's right arm has been put in a cast.

Notre Dame — Sophomore Dick Naab ran as fullback with the No. 1 unit. Naab was promoted because of num-erous injuries at the position. The Irish drilled on offense for Georgia Tech.

Finance Unit to Study School Board Budget

Council Approves Rule Governing City Snow Removal

Kaukauna — A $503,710 school board budget, of which $351,660 is to be raised by direct tax levy, was referred to the finance committee by council members Tuesday night.

No questions on the budget were raised at the council meeting. It will be discussed along with budget requests from other governmental agencies during the finance committee meeting and subsequent budget discussion.

Snow Ordinance

An ordinance declaring it illegal to push, plow or shovel snow from private property onto streets and alleys, after the snow has been removed by city snow removal crews was approved.

Violation of the ordinance will result in a fine of at least $5 and no more than $50. The ordinance was adopted to keep service station owners and owners of parking lots from pushing snow into city streets.

A public hearing was held regarding vacating an alley between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets from Main street to Hendricks avenue. When no one objected, the council approved vacating the 20-foot section. The roadway will be divided among adjacent land owners.

The resignation of the city nurse, effective Jan. 15, was approved and the board of health was authorized to advertise for a replacement, giving qualifications, rules, salary and other benefits.

Police were instructed to make a survey of arterial streets in the city to enable the attorney to bring municipal ordinances on arterial streets up to date.

Skating Rinks

Council members approved the setting up of three ice skating rinks as recommended by the health and recreation committee at Tenth street, Strassburg park and Park school. The library rink of other years was not recommended for use this year.

The purchasing committee was authorized to advertise for a sander after George Luebke, chairman of the board of public works, pointed out the desperate need of such a piece of equipment with winter approaching.

The city engineer was instructed to have city crews remove the boulevard on Main street between Fourth and Fifth streets. The area between Third and Fourth streets was removed earlier to provide more southside parking.

Fund Drive for Girl Scouts at Kimberly Set

Kimberly — Plans for the annual Girl Scout fund drive in the village are nearing completion with this year's campaign to run Nov. 9 through 21.

A tea party for finance drive workers will be held from 2 to 4 p. m. Sunday at Holy Name school cafeteria. Drive leaders have been asked to bring about two dozen cookies to the cafeteria prior to the tea. Leaders will help serve.

Folders concerning the drive and materials necessary for the campaign will be distributed at the tea.

Thilco Management Club Inducts Five New Members

Kaukauna — Five new members were inducted into the Thilco Management club and members were given a glimpse of the world of tomorrow at a meeting of the unit Monday night.

Modern Inventions

Accepted into the group were E. E. Uehlein, plant engineer; Dwight Chandler, maintenance coordinator; Glen Vandehey, ink room foreman; Elmer Wittman, pulp and chemicals handling foreman; and Albert Sager, paper mill shift supervisor.

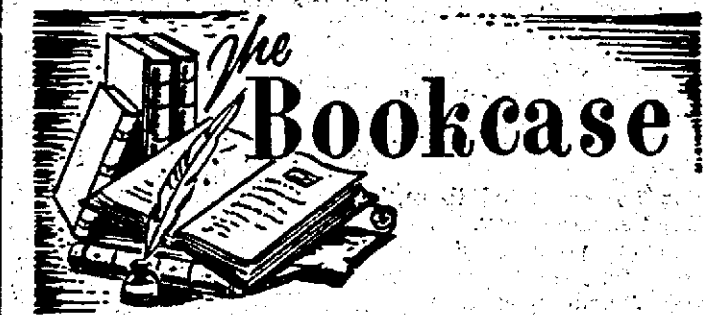

After the business meeting in the Mill auditorium, the group gathered at the Elk clubrooms to hear Richard L. Sherman, Wisconsin Telephone company representative, speak on "Dial F For Future."

Sherman demonstrated applications of two important inventions, the transistor and the Bell solar battery. Transistors, which replace larger vacuum tubes and require very little power, have permitted cutting the size of many items of electronic equipment, said the speaker.

The solar battery has found use in our satellites and in one location is supplying all the power for a telephone company. The battery generates electricity immediately

Kentucky Professor Writes About Canadian Humorist

Suffering from cancer, Leacock died 15 years ago at age 74; it was two decades after his wife, whom this English-born Canadian married in New York City's Little Church Around the Corner, succumbed to the same scourge.

A prolific writer, he had 61 books to his credit, 35 humorous and the rest on criticism, literature, history, economics and a variety of subjects.

In his big year his pen, plus his McGill university professorship, brought in $40,000; there was a generation of readers that doted on his "Nonsense Novels," now al-

City Prepares Equipment for Coming Winter

Kaukauna — City crews have started preparing equipment for winter as trucks were equipped with plows and heavy equipment was moved into position for immediate use.

Barrels containing a mixture of salt and sand have been placed at strategic intersections or hill inclines throughout the city. Snow fence will be erected in areas of open lots, owned by the city, where drifting or heavy accumulation of snow is found.

Sanders for trucks have been checked and mounted and a supply of material for use on icy streets has been stockpiled.

Dog That Bit Boy Found Not Rabid, Shots Discontinued

Little Chute — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hurst, Buchanan street, have been informed the anti-rabies shots for their 6-year old son, Daniel, could be discontinued as the dog that bit him was checked and found to be not rabid.

The youth was bitten by a dog last week and the day after the accident, the dog died. Anti-rabies shots were started immediately as a precaution while the dog's head was sent to Madison for checking. The parents received the notice Tuesday.

most half a century old—it doesn't seem possible.

Curry says his books earned him $3,000 to $4,000 a year just before his death, but he no longer has the vast audience whose chuckles were one of the really pleasant and sensible sounds of the clamorous 1910s and 1920s. Curry reminds us of his piece on "Boarding House Geometry," in which he parodied theorems, axioms and general mathematical propositions.

There is almost the look of a math textbook, and a curious and inimitable mix of silly and serious in such solemn-seeming statements as: "Any two meals at a boarding-house are together less than a square meal," and "all the other rooms being taken, a single room is said to be a double room."

Of course the words for which he is best remembered — "I once made a surprisingly long list of the various ways in which they were misquoted — came from "Gertrude the Governess." "Lord Ronald flung himself upon his horse and rode madly off in all directions."

No matter how long a man lives there is a limit to the amount of hilarity he can concoct, and Leacock wrote more dull pages—as who hasn't — than brilliant ones. He will be remembered for his humor, but he was an economist by profession.

Canadian Great Canada has given us few if any creative persons to match Leacock at his peak. Without being ungracious about it, it might be argued that our country can claim a part of him. He was indebted to Mark Twain, he influenced Robert Benchley and other Americans. We even named a Liberty ship for him.

If we like to think he belonged a little to us, it's not a slight to Canada but a deferential bow: She contributed importantly to the jollity of our common land.

A Kentucky professor, and director of the Leacock home in Ontario, Curry has not written an inspired biography, but it is sound and sympathetic, and contains many insights which explain Leacock's unassailably exalted rank as humorist.

Board Begins Preparations For '60 Budget

Committees Tell Of Wage Meetings At Little Chute

Little Chute — Preparations for the 1960 budget occupied most of the time of village officials at the board meeting Tuesday night.

The building and grounds committee reported that a meeting had been held with street department employees in regards to salaries and a new vacation plan for next year.

The police and ordinance committee said that it had met with members of the police department regarding wage increases for 1960.

Call Recess

A recess, that held the board out of session for over an hour, was called by Trustee Clarence Lamers to enable officials to look over the budget worksheet. The village plans to have more of the worksheets printed and trustees changed some of the phrases.

It was reported that graveling work has been completed on Grand avenue and an oil cover will be applied if the weather warms up enough. Curb and gutter was installed this fall and a blacktop mat will be applied in spring.

A change was made in the original price of planking for repair work on the drawbridge. Preliminary plans had figured 3-inch planking for the deck of the structure but a check by workmen found that 34-inch material was used on the old deck. The original estimate for planking was $3,378 and now is figured at $4,138.

Approve Ice Rink

Approval was given for entering a contract with Ervin Rosin for use of his property on E. Lincoln avenue as an ice rink this winter. Rosin will receive $900 per year for the use of his property. It will be converted to a softball field in the summer for youngsters.

The new meter testing equipment purchased recently by the village has been set up at the No. 2 pumping station. Forms will be sent to Madison by the clerk-treasurer requesting permission to install a flasher type signal light on Highway 96 at the west village limits.

Hong Kong Best Point For Viewing Red China

Columnist Draws Parallel Between Stalinist Tactics and Present Situation in Far East

BY JOSEPH ALSOP
Hong Kong — The communist attempt to remold China is certainly the most terrible and historically decisive process of the modern world. Compared to this, our own news of the president's hopeful purposes is a chronicle of small beer.

This is the first of a series of reports attempting to describe the gigantic process going on in China. Yet the series requires a kind of preface, in the form of an answer to the obvious question: "How do you dare to write about China from Hong Kong?"

The answer lies in the story of the greatest and most successful crime in human history. The story began just 30 years ago, when Joseph Stalin surveyed the state of the Soviet Union with acute dissatisfaction. A normal ruler might well have been pleased by what Stalin saw. By 1929, Russia had recovered from the ravages of war and revolution, and the Russian people were beginning to live rather well. But Stalin was not satisfied because the Soviet Union was not being transformed into a military-industrial great power fast enough to assuage his power hunger.

5-Year Plans
Stalin therefore made as brilliant and evil a decision as any ruler ever made. He would drive down the living standard of the Russian masses. Thus he would save for the state a much larger share of the national income. And he would invest these savings in a great program of forced industrialization — the 5-year plans.

One wonders whether the genius foreknew the consequences of his iron decision. Certainly Stalin saw that his first step was to collectivize Russian agriculture. If he did not get the peasants firmly in his grip, he could not seize as much as he desired of the output of the peasant's fields. But, did he plan to drive down the standard of life by a ruthless 50 per cent? Was he ready at the outset to massacre more than 5,000,000 peasants, then to go on with killing until the total of the dead reached 15,000,000? Was he prepared from the beginning to ornament the whole landscape with corpses, as a huge human sacrifice to industrialization?

Built on Crime
No historian has been able to say whether Stalin took his new road with full foreknowledge, or merely followed the road grimly, wherever it led. At any rate, it led where Stalin wanted it to lead. The result is the Soviet Union today — a military-industrial giant power built on Stalin's crime.

It is apparent that something of the same sort is going on in China. It is even clear that this something going on in China lately has become much more terrible and Stalin-influenced, though there have been no major massacres.

But Stalin's crime is worth recalling, too, because it went almost unnoticed for such a long period. There were a few witnesses who saw and reported what was being done in Russia. The great reporter, the late H. R. Knickerbocker, wrote rather accurately about the peasant massacres. He was merely derided for his pains.

Policy Rebuked
Again, certain acute and expert diplomats, like Charles E. Bohlen and George E. Kennan, saw what was going on clearly enough. "But as late as the war period," "Time" magazine rebuked Sec. of State Cordell Hull for taking Bohlen along on his negotiating trip to Moscow. "Time" suggested that Bohlen's suspicious, striped pants view of the Soviet Union would impair the happy atmosphere of the Moscow meeting.

The rebuke, in turn, was not a symptom of what "Time" later christened softness towards communism. It simply recorded the impression left on most informed people by the unending streams of twaddle that alleged eye witnesses had poured out of Moscow.

By any standard, the Russian scene was infinitely more comprehensible by a western eye than the present Chinese scene. Many western eyes inspected the Russian scene when Stalin's great crime was in process. Yet most were deceived or lied, and the nature and dimensions of the crime only were detected by the Western world as a whole at a moment long after the second world war.

Despite these highly instructive facts, this reporter would of course go to Peking and write as an eyewitness to the here of China, as if he were permitted to do so. But one must also note that in the years of Stalin's crime, rather more of the true facts seem to have been available in the city that all liberal persons used to call the "Riga rumor factory." The refugees in Riga were not believed but they generally told the truth. By the same token, the wisest observers with Peking experience themselves say that you cannot get the atmosphere of China, as if he were permitted to do so. But of the true facts, from the seeming refugees and from many other sources, some of them highly scientific. (Copyright 1959)

Need More Time to Find Ball Diamond

Works Board to Ask Council for Added 2 Weeks' Searching

The board of public works tonight will ask the city council for more time to pick a site to relocate Interlake park's lighted softball field.

Board members Tuesday mulled over two possibilities, one of which will require some negotiation, and decided it needs an additional two weeks.

The council on Oct. 21, instructed the works board to have a site selected for recommendation at tonight's meeting.

Questions Site Arthur W. Jones, park board secretary, said the former Joseph H. Doerfler property, purchased early this year for park purposes, south-east of Lawe street and Hoover avenue, would make an ideal site. Some board members agreed.

Ald. Mrs. Stillings, who was attending the meeting, said she thought the former Doerfler property was a poor choice.

First, it would depreciate property values in what could become a fine residential area, she said, and second, Doerfler, in selling the land to the city, had been more fair about price than any recent sellers.

A lighted ball field, she said, ought to be placed on the fringe of an industrial area so residential values would not be affected.

Cost $4,400

She said she couldn't imagine an objection to placing two diamonds in the park, for which Jones had said there is plenty of room, if neither has lights.

Details of the second site the board has in mind are being withheld pending negotiation of price.

Recreation Director Elmer W. Grover has told the board a new site for the lighted field must be found immediately if he is to get the playing field in shape for start of next season.

The Interlake field is giving way to the new south side swimming pool. Grover has estimated cost of relocation at $4,400.

Other Action In other action:

The board voted to recommend turning over the former Doerfler land and the north-west sewage lift station site, about 11 and 9 acres, respectively, to the park board for development into parks.

It will be possible, the board said, for the park board to build one Little League diamond on the lift station site, Lindbergh and Nicholas streets, and one Babe Ruth league regulation hardball diamond on the former Doerfler land.

This action, and approval for the LL to again use Linwood park and McKinley school, should answer the LL's request for diamonds for next year, the board said.

Board Refuses to Change Rent Policy

Soil Conservation Office Charged Fee, But County Will Pay Itself for It

Declining to change their policy of no free rentals in county buildings (with one exception), Outagamie county supervisors Tuesday gave the county's soil conservation service two rooms in the courthouse at $2.50 a square foot per year.

Today supervisors voted to appropriate the money for the space—$975 for 390 square feet—and pay the conservation office's rental.

The debate before voting down free rental and setting the charge was an acrimonious one, mainly between the rural supervisors—favoring free rental—and city and village supervisors—favoring a charge.

The county, as a matter of policy set a few years ago, charges rental for all non-county offices, with the exception of the milk testing service, which had its courthouse basement quarters when the policy was set, and the state welfare department (probation officers), where the same condition existed.

Basement Space Offices to be given the soil conservation service—the budget of which does not allow for rental—are in the basement of the courthouse, across a hall from the agricultural offices. The service presently is in the post office building where, as a federal agency, it does not pay rental. It originally was in the courthouse in 1947 and moved away at the request of the federal government in 1951. About 50 persons appeared at the board's September meeting to urge the supervisors to offer free quarters for the service.

Center Supv. Harold Schmeichel told the board that the service puts about $60,000 a year into Outagamie county, with the funds matched by farmers utilizing conservation practices.

Others Pay, Too Responded Appleton Supv. Sylvester Esler, "The social security office puts money into the county too, but it pays rent."

Give the service the space, then put some money in the budget to pay for it, offered Fred M. Supv. Joseph J. Weyers. "What you don't understand is that the soil conservation service is under the direction of the county's agricultural committee—it's a county office," he declared.

It was stated that the federal government pays the salaries of the technical workers of the service. The office has no clerical help and Appleton Supv. Gordon Schultz, chairman of the committee recommending the rental charge, warned that sooner or later the office would ask the county to pay for clerical help.

Also, Schultz warned, other agencies—the service recruits, state employment service and others immediately would ask for free space if the board gave the conservation service no rental quarters.

Involved is 400 to 500 square feet, or about $1,000, said Schultz.

Fill It Up Weyers snapped, "That annex has been finished for two years and the second floor is half empty. Why not set a policy and put that space to use instead of letting it sit there vacant?"

"We ought to charge all the offices rent," declared Esler, "then the people could know just what these things are costing them. The minute some state or federal agency pays some aid, it tells the county what to do. Let the

Works Board Says City Should Pay to Right Mixed Up Sewer Lines

Mixed up sewer lines on Richmond street should be righted at city expense, the board of public works believes.

Sanitary sewer outlets at 204, 214 and 300 W. Richmond street sometime long ago were connected to storm sewers and the situation didn't come to light until recently. Director of Public Works Duszynski said.

The work will require cutting up the street and relaying the sewer lines.

Shiocton Supv. George F. Miller asked, "What's the difference between free rental and paying the rent to ourselves for the office?"

The move to pay the county $975 won by a 43 to 9 vote, with two supervisors voting present.

Youth Fleeing Police Runs Car Into Two Trees

A 15-year-old Appleton youth Tuesday crashed the car he had taken without permission into two trees in the 400 block of Walnut street while being pursued by an Appleton policeman.

The youth, according to police, had taken the car from near Xavier High school and was noticed by police while he was driving on Lawrence street about 38 miles per hour.

The policeman said he stopped the car to give the driver a warning. The youth pulled away and the patrolman gave chase, using his siren and red light. When the youth attempted to turn right onto Walnut street the car traveled about 230 feet over the sidewalk and into two trees.

UW Graduates, Jobs Different Than Training

A study of University of Wisconsin alumni eight years after graduation has shown that fewer than half are working in their college-trained fields, but their job satisfaction, regardless of salary, is high.

The study, made by L. J. Lins, coordinator of institutional studies, also found that two-thirds made their vocational choices either after enrollment at Wisconsin or after graduation. The study results were based on 290 questionnaires from the class of June, 1949.

The study shows ministers and teachers on the low end of the economic scale and doctors of medicine on the high end.

Salaries Varied
No other trait studied was more variable than salary. The range in income extended from $1,800 per year, found mainly in those working in agriculture, to $26,500 per year, among the physicians. The mean income is $7,934, which means that half of the graduates earn less than this figure and half earn more. This includes both business and professional categories. The study explains that of those graduates who changed widely different field. Another

Name AHS Exchange Candidates

Names of six juniors at Appleton High school are being sent this week to the American Field Service headquarters in New York for consideration for the 1960, 2-month summer exchange program.

The Appleton candidates are Stephanie Downs, Mary Lawless, Cynthia Rowe, Karl Stringham, Mary Taggart and Dona Tepper. They were chosen from a group of 29 juniors who applied, the largest group applying since the AFS program went into effect here. Schools which have had exchange students are eligible to submit names. The committee which interviewed the applicants and studied their records consisted of Miss Annabelle Wolf, dean of girls, chairman; Charles W. Cook, dean of boys; H. H. Helble, principal; Kenneth Sager, Miss Elizabeth Plowright and Mrs. Evelyn Burroughs, faculty members; Sue Ward, a senior who was in Europe last summer as an exchange student; Sue Cotterill, present exchange student from New Zealand; and Mrs. Frans Larson, Walter Rugland and Mrs. Kenneth Ward, representing parents who have had some contact with students in the AFS exchange program.

Final selection will be made by the AFS New York office. Last summer some 900 American students took part in the exchange program.

Buying American Goods Partial Solution to Loss of Dollar Value

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

New York — Sen. Fulbright objects to the use of the phrase, "Buy American," because it might offend some body who wants to sell something in this country that was not made in the United States.

Whether we buy American or buy British or Polish, we always seem to offend everybody anyhow.

Prime Minister Macmillan, when he was here last, complained about our not buying electrical equipment from Great Britain; the Polish want us to buy Polish hams; the French want us to buy French wines and cognacs but they put a narrow quota on American-made products. It would seem that the United States is always wrong no matter what we do.

Trade became a one way street when the world wanted American dollars, as long as it was the most stable currency. The British worried about the "dollar gap." Laws were passed governing the export of American dollars from most countries, many of which were in economic distress, depending upon American bounty. It is not possible to buy American goods without exporting some American dollars; therefore many countries which were receiving American aid chose not to buy American goods. They hoarded the dollars.

European Recovery

Some of the countries which were helped so graciously are now well off. Great Britain is on her feet. West Germany is economically sound. France is in less economic trouble than she has been in years. One can go among the nations of the world today and find considerable stability.

But the United States is in difficulties. This country is facing an awkward inflationary period. Our gold reserve though the earmarked gold has been piling out and remains in our possession, the beneficial owners of much of it are other countries. The dollar is rapidly depreciating in value.

The secretary of the treasury, Robert B. Anderson, has faced this problem most courageously. He told the trading nations that the value of the dollar must be protected and that restrictions upon trade with the United States must be removed or lessened if the dollar is not to collapse. The British responded favorably to that appeal, particularly the London "Times." It was recognized in Great Britain that the European countries that are well-off ought to take up some of the burden of carrying for the underdeveloped countries.

It is impossible for the United States to continue to pour out dollars to pour out over the world.

Why Sen. Fulbright should get all excited and find his photograph on the front pages of some newspapers over a mathematical equation that has long been proved is not easily explained, unless it be that the learned senator, who was a Rhodes scholar, feels more kindly disposed to the good will of dependent nations than to the worth of the American dollar. The proposal to "Buy American," is sound if the value of the dollar is not to be dissipated under present economic conditions and the attack on the dollar by Soviet economy.

"Buy American" does not mean that no one is to buy alien-made goods. It means that a preference is to be shown to American manufactured goods, particularly in letting government contracts. One of the immediate results of the Kaiser agreement in the steel strike will be an increase in the price of certain commodities made of steel and an increased import of steel. Already, for 1959, steel imports have nearly doubled. It is possible for steel imports to increase to a point where they altogether exceed our exports of steel, not in a strike period but as a permanent item of trade. The reason: price.

In business price is always the basic factor — price for a particular commodity in a particular market. When the price of domestic goods is so high that it is cheaper to import, to pay freight and customs charges, then the foreign goods will push the do-

Banana Slices, Meringue Used In This Dessert

Light, golden-brown meringue envelopes a tender cake and a layer of bananas to make Banana Cake Dessert, a truly festive treat.

Banana Cake Dessert

- 1 1/2 cups sifted enriched flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup hydrogenated shortening
- 1 cup milk
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1-3 cup sugar
- 1 cup thinly sliced bananas

Sift together into large mixing bowl flour, baking powder, salt, and one cup sugar. Add shortening. Combine milk and vanilla extract. Add about two-thirds of liquid mixture to flour mixture. Mix to blend. Beat two minutes at medium speed of electric mixer or 300 strokes by hand. Add remaining liquid and egg yolks, reserving egg whites for topping. Mix to blend. Then beat two minutes longer or 300 strokes by hand.

Turn batter into greased 9-inch square pan. Bake in 350-degree oven 35 to 40 minutes. Remove from pan and cool completely.

To prepare topping, beat egg whites until frothy. Add one-third cup sugar gradually and continue beating until stiff, glossy peaks are formed. Arrange a layer of bananas over cooled cake. Place on baking sheet. Spread meringue over sides and top of cake. Bake in 350-degree oven 10 to 15 minutes, or until meringue is lightly browned.

Fishing, Spooning Boats Similar

Point Pleasant, N.J. — Many party fishing boats are getting double-use these days as skippers take advantage of the popularity of the romantic moonlight cruise.

After the daylight sportsman has departed, the boats are washed down and the scaling knives put away. All is made ready for a boatload of handholding couples, with the skipper serving as chaperone.

One skipper remarked, "There's some similarity in our day and night experiences. The only strike some unlucky Lotharios get is a slap from the unmelting girl friend."

"They look almost as sad," he said, "as the fisherman who hasn't had a nibble all day."

Nelson Explains State Control Of Health Plans

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—His sponsorship of a new state law putting Blue Cross, Blue Shield and related pre-paid health care plans under state regulation was not intended to imply "that the legislation was required to prevent actual abuses," Nelson has explained.

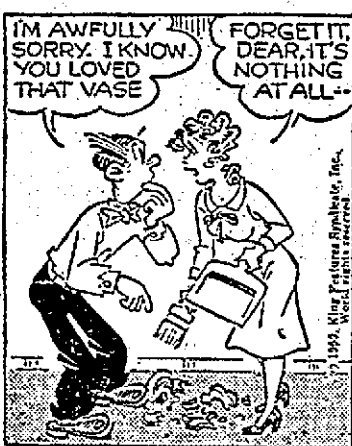

The governor made the statement in announcing his approval of a state supervision statute enacted by the legislature at his request. He said it "imposes reasonable supervision of the three non-profit plans that currently furnish medical and hospital care for more than 1,000,000 Wisconsin citizens." Competitive commercial plans are already under regulation of the state insurance department. Among the requirements in the new act are licensing of the sales agents of the firms, filing of annual financial statements with the state auditors and submission of all of their contract forms for state approval, together with other reports as the insurance department may require. This enables the insurance commissioner to examine the books and practices of the firms and to establish minimum standards for contracts.

Consignments for 17th Annual 400 Show Mounting

Holstein Sale to be Conducted by Breeder Association at Chilton

Chilton—Consignments for the sale are Donald the 17th annual "400" Holstein sale at the county arena include 40 springing heifers, five open heifers, five heifer calves, and six bulls, according to Orrin Meyer, county agent, who is acting as coordinator for the Holstein Breeders association, the sponsoring organization. Calumet county consignors

Mirsberger, Joe Mirsberger and Leonard Seybold. Consignors from outside of Calumet county are Henry Van Driest, Walter Ochs and Wallace Born, Louis Wiese, Walter Siemers and Son, Edgar Schwichtenberg, Frank and Willard Ubbelohde, George Vande Loo, Jr., Robert Bird, Borgwardt Bros., Walter Borgwardt, Emil Wehausen, Leroy Lutzke, Harold Fritz, Christ Mayer, Harry Dix and Son, Robert Wittmann, Lakeside Farms, Pinhurst Farms, Gerhardt Nicolson, Wisconsin State Reformatory, Henry Binversie, Sheboygan county hospital, Harold Laux and Harold Draeger and Son.

Sales Origin
The "400" sale originally received its name 17 years ago when it was first inaugurated. At that time, no consignment was accepted into the sale unless its dam had produced at least 400 pounds of fat in a year on an actual basis of twice a day milking. Since that time, standards have been raised and consignments are out of dams considerably higher. Bulls in this year's sale are out of 700 pound fat dams. The committee has discussed changing the name to 500 sale, but the old name still sticks. The first sale was held in 1943 at which time 25 head, mostly bulls, were offered. They averaged $241 with a top of $510. The highest average was in 1951 when 42-head averaged $470. Record price ever paid was in 1946 when a Mexican buyer paid an even $1,000 for a bull consigned by Ed Seybold. Top price last year was $790 for a heifer and calf. The heifer was purchased by Vernon Schultz, Manitowoc, for $625, and Orin Stevenson, Black Creek, bought the calf for $165. Three heifers tied for sec-

USDA Announces Eradication of Swine Disease
Washington — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has announced that vesicular exanthema, a disease of swine, has been wiped out in the United States as a result of a 7 year campaign. The last federal quarantine restricting the movement of animals was lifted recently from Deptford and Monroe townships in Gloucester county, N. J., he said. Seven years ago the disease reached epidemic proportions with 43 states reporting infected swine herds. Ten countries have embargoes on U. S. pork because of the existence of the disease. They are Canada, the United Kingdom, Colombia, Venezuela, Austria, Belgium, Sweden, Barbados, Jamaica and British Guiana. The announcement the disease has been eradicated opens the door to the lifting of these embargoes and brightens prospects for larger pork exports.

Sugar Beet Harvest Keeping to '58 Pace

Fieldman Expects Crop to be in
By Thanksgiving; Yield Seen as About Average in Size, Tonnage

BY ALICE SEBORA

Chilton — Despite an extremely wet September and an almost sunless October, harvest of some 8,600 acres of Wisconsin sugar beets has kept pace with former years.

Digging is not expected to be completed until just before Thanksgiving. By Sunday, almost two-thirds of the year's crop was at the refinery, with an estimated 35,000 tons of beets remaining to be dug and transported to the Menominee Sugar company, Green Bay.

Making a conservative estimate, Robert Schwarz, Chilton, refinery fieldman, says the over-all crop will average a little better than 12 tons to the acre, although in isolated areas the average has run higher. Overall size and tonnage is down slightly from a year ago, but are still running better than average. The 1958 crop, reached almost bumper proportions.

shine can still put a lot of sugar back in the beets left in the field," Schwarz said.

Expresses no Fear

As fieldman for the refinery, Schwarz supervises the contracts, planting and harvesting of some 850 acres of beets in Calumet and parts of Manitowoc, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac counties. He serves as a liaison man between farmers and the refinery. He has expressed no fear that the 1959 sugar harvest would not equal average expectations.

Twice before in the last decade beet farmers faced bad growing and harvest conditions and survived. In 1951 and again in 1954 weather conditions were as "miserable" as this year.

Beets are harder than many crops, and few others have the extreme flexibility of harvest time which begins anytime after Sept. 25 and continues until late November.

Oldest Cash Crop
This month marks the closing of the 59th season for "sugar in the root" in Calumet county—placing it among the area's oldest cash crops.

Yet the last 10 years have seen more advances in the sugar industry than in most of the previous 50—with many of the benefits being tallied on the side of the grower.

In 1955, growers established a flexible contract with the refinery in which the producer and processor share 50-50 on proceeds of any amount of beets grown up to 100,000 ton. (At a minimum of 12 tons per acre average, the 1959 Wisconsin crop will go at least 103,200 tons.)

Fill Quota

The contract has given new interest to beet growing, and within the last two years acreages have come within a nominal amount of the federal quota. Some 1,700 acres of Illinois beets are also processed at Green Bay, but Illinois growers work under a different contract.

Mechanization, too, has played an important role in the renewing of interest in the old crop. Only a few years ago almost all work was done by hand.

Beet growing was limited to a "patch" of a very few acres, the size determined by the number of hands a farm family had available for weeding, thinning and digging.

Four years ago all Calumet county beets were machine dug. The first mechanical digger appeared in the area about 10 years ago; now there are 16 digging machines operating. One row machine can dig about four acres a day, newly developed multiple row diggers can get out 15 to 16 acres.

In 1955, 11 acres made up the county average. This year the average runs 16 acres, with nine of these accounted for in single acre plots grown as 4-H projects. For the average farmer, then, the average would run over 19 acres.

This is the first year that no beet dumps are operating in this area. Fifteen years ago there were 30 dumps—relocations—in the vicinity.

Except in the Francis Creek and Kewaunee areas, all beets are trucked directly from field to the refinery, where they can go directly into cleaning machines or on piles at the plant.

Greatest Advance

Possibly the greatest advance will come next year, when it is expected that about 60 per cent of Wisconsin's crop will be planted in monogerm seed, which in time will eliminate most hand thinning.

Calumet county helped pioneer the monogerm seed when a 21-acre test plot was planted on the Henry Steiner farm in 1956 under the supervision of University of Wisconsin crop specialists.

Labor for hand thinning, generally done by migrant workers, can run as high as $23 an acre. It is expected that when monogerm seed comes into its own costs of machine thinning will be held at about $10 an acre. Another encouragement for the grower.

Crop Value

Actual price of the year's crop will not be determined until the entire harvest is in—generally a few days before Christmas. Payments are made in two or three installments. Last year the crop brought $9.01 a ton. The Christmas payment is based on tonnage with an estimate on sugar content. Some time in the spring, generally about April 1, a second payment is made on the established sugar content in accordance with the market price. Last year, a final payment of 31 cents was made in September. This was based on market increases on sugar between the April and September payment.

In addition, beet farmers received about $2.30 a ton conditional payment from the federal government. This payment would bring the total price of sugar last year to well over $11 a ton.

The conditional payment—not properly a subsidy—is controlled by the National Sugar act based on the average sugar price of the seven previous years. The conditional payment is borne by the refinery.

Sugar beets are the only cash crop in Wisconsin in which growers receive regular market payments augmented by conditional funds.

UW Meteorologist Finds Better Way To Time Harvest

New Method Gives Information Two Weeks After Planting Crop

An easier and more accurate way to forecast the maturity for canning corn has been developed by a University of Wisconsin agricultural meteorologist.

J. Y. Wang says the new method also surpasses an older method because it gives the information within two weeks after planting—in plenty of time for canners to schedule harvesting and canning operations.

Wang says the new method hinges on the fact that harvestable ears start with ear "buds" which originate on the underground part of the stem in the corn plant's early development. Environment conditions influence the development of these underground ear buds into ears.

Soil Temperature
Wang believes one important environmental condition influencing this development is soil temperature around the ear buds during the first two or three weeks after planting. Comparison of soil temperatures for the period with canning corn maturity dates showed that this method allows predictions of maturity date with maximum error of about one week for most varieties tested.

On the average, the predictions were only two or three days early.

These predictions are much closer than predictions customarily made by a more complicated procedure, called the heat unit system.

Tests Soil
Wang averages the daily average temperatures of the soil at planting depth (1 inch) during the 12 days after planting. With the older method, air temperatures are used throughout the growing season.

And Wang's estimate can be made two weeks after planting. By the older method, a definite indication of the probable maturity date can't be made until late in the growing season.

Time is of crucial importance for canners, and Wang's method allows more time for their important decisions.

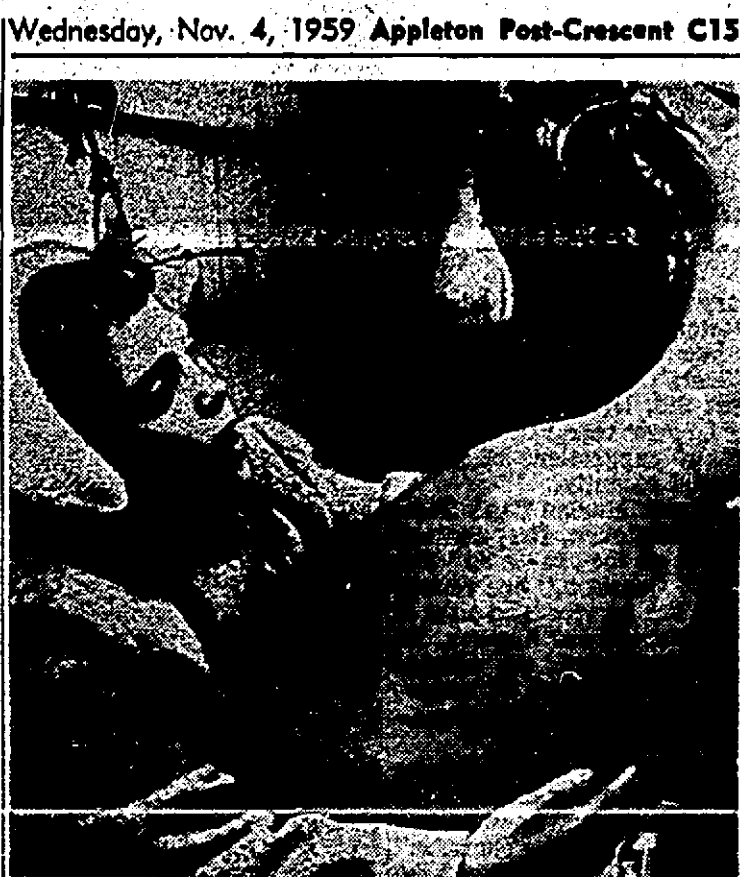

Drive to Exempt Stored Cheese Tax Levy

Marshfield Group Approves Request For Legislation

Post-Crescent News Service
Marshfield — A drive for legislation to exempt from personal property tax assessment cheese in storage warehouses and destined for shipment to markets outside the state has been begun by the Central Wisconsin Cheesemakers and Buttermakers association.

Delegates at an annual convention here approved a demand for such legislation asking either for the total elimination of the "regressive personal property tax," or relief for the dairy processors by way of the warehouse stock exemption. Cheese on the premises of the manufacturer is exempt under present laws.

The legislature will reconvene in Madison in November. The trade group also denounced Gov. Gaylord A. Nelson's legislative proposal for an extension of state-sponsored marketing orders for agricultural commodities, scheduled for a decisive vote in the legislature at the fall session.

Sandra Holcombe, 9, Gives out with a big "Ooo" as she looks at a giant gourd she grew in her back yard this summer. The gourd weighs 22 pounds and is 31½ inches long. It was grown in Dubuque, Iowa.

Order Blanks Available For Conservation Trees

The Wisconsin conservation department tree order blanks are now available. Forms Pine, White Spruce, White Cedar and Norway Spruce are three year olds and sell for $13 per thousand. Norway Pine is also available as a three years old transplant at $26 per thousand.

Included in the four year old transplants are White Pine, Norway Spruce and White Cedar for $30 per thousand. Federal cost sharing is available to assist in the establishment of forestry practices. To participate in these programs, it is necessary to make application for cost sharing before the practices are started.

Trees are available as one, two and three-year old transplants. Black Locust and Ash are available as one year old seedlings for $19 per thousand. Jack Pine and Norway Pine can be purchased as two used for a decisive vote in the legislature at the fall session. The association said such legislation would tend to increase the power of the state in establishing production and marketing quotas, and scorned the idea of putting the state "further into the dairy marketing and production business."

Lessen Intervention
The interest of the dairy farmer and the dairy manufacturer will be best served by a lessening of government intervention in their affairs, said the association. Another resolution expressed the intention of the cheese and butter makers to continue their traditional opposition to the free marketing of oleomargarine and support of the state tax and other restrictions upon the competitive product.

"The use of yellow color in oleo-margarine leads to possible fraud on the consumer," the association declared.

Majority Say They Received No Direct Help in Answering

By the Associated Press

Where are they now—the people who won thousands of dollars on television quiz shows? What do they think of revelations of fixed programs, topped by Charles Van Doren's dramatic admissions before a congressional committee?

Most of them have dropped back into obscurity. Some have changed from one job to another. Few seem to have scored any great financial gains, other than their prize winnings, although some have been able to retire.

The great majority insist that they received no direct help in giving correct answers.

At least one woman wonders whether, unknown to her, she received help.

"I received no answers," said Mrs. Carlyle E. Anderson, of Evanston, Ill., a $64,000 winner. But, she continued, "now, I feel quite let down because I think the questions were tailored to avoid my knowledge deficiencies. I had felt quite satisfied with myself."

Coached on Mannerisms

The housewife said the only coaching she received was on what to do with her hands and a reminder to take time before answering.

Mrs. Myrt Powers, 75, of Buford, Ga., the grandmother who won $32,000 for her knowledge of baseball, lives with a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Cook, and spryly denies she received any answers.

"If somebody had been giving out the answers I wouldn't have stopped at $32,000," she said. "I'd have gone all the way."

Mrs. Power, a Dodger fan, went to Los Angeles for the world series last month and wrote special articles for the Atlanta Journal.

Remember the Egan brothers of Hartford, Conn., who won $48,000 on the quiz shows? James N. Egan is still an attorney there, but William Egan has married and moved to Winter Haven, Fla. William is in the real estate business and is writing a novel—not about TV quiz shows. He said that as far as he and his brother could tell the shows were not rigged.

Looked too Good

He expressed sympathy for Van Doren, the $129,000 winner on "Twenty-One," who has lost his $50,000 a year contract with NBC and his job as an assistant professor at Columbia University.

"I feel sorry for Van Doren—they were trying to make him look a little too good," said William Egan.

Dr. Joyce Brothers, another $64,000 winner as an expert on boxing, was one of the few winners to continue on in a television career. She has an NBC program on which she gives psychological answers to letters sent to her by viewers on topics such as love, marriage and child rearing.

To a query whether she received any questions or answers in advance on her quiz appearances, she said: "None whatsoever."

Elfrida Von Nardoff, of Brooklyn, whose winnings of $220,000 were one of the all-time highs on TV quiz shows, quit her job as a personnel manager during her appearances on "Twenty-One." She later took a lengthy tour of Europe. Since she has returned to New York, but has not been reachable for comment.

Received no Help

Army Capt. Michael O'Rourke, who won $106,500 on "Tic-Tac-Dough" while a military science instructor at Western Michigan University, is now attending an artillery officers' training course at Fort Sill, Okla.

"I never received any help or any suggestions of help," he said recently.

Former Marine Capt. Richard McCutchen, first contestant to go the route on "The $64,000 Question," has retired from the service and now is selling small car imports. He has said since the current probe started that he received no help in answering questions on cooking.

Some school children were among the big winners.

Robert Strom, 13, who won $242,000 on the "Question" and the "Challenge" at the age of 10, has said, "I never was given any questions or answers in advance."

"Anyone who knows Robert knows he doesn't need to be coached," said his mother. "We were never treated with anything but complete respect and honesty by the people connected with the programs."

Denies Coaching

Robert said that on the day of the show Hal March, the master of ceremonies, and he would have a dialogue, for conversational purposes, so we would have something to talk about on the program.

The mother of Terry Shand III, of Houston, Tex., who won "The $64,000 Challenge" top prize in 1956 at the age of 8 on the topic of Babe Ruth, said he received no coaching. He had learned about Babe Ruth from his father, she said.

Tom Kane, a Buffalo, N. Y., cab driver, who won $100,000 on the "Question" and "Challenge" as an English language expert, has quit his job and lives in retirement in a small home on the outskirts of Lockport, N. Y.

He has said no rigging was involved in his appearances. "As a matter of fact, they leaned over backward to avoid any collusion," he said.

Geno Prato, the little New York shoemaker who won $32,000 on the "Question" with his knowledge of opera, has said "the show was on the level while I was on it."

The sweat I put out from that (isolation) box was true," he said. "I am in the clear. What I say to you, say to God. Thank God, my conscience is clear."

Another opera devotee, Mike Della Rocca, Baldwin, N. Y., cobbler, winner of $64,000 on the "Question," said he had no help and needed none. He put it this way:

"Opera is my second existence. I know more than they know. They tell me nothing."

Instead of Leadership

This is another of a series of articles from Harry Golden's latest bestseller.

There is very little leadership. The elected officials wait to see what the Gallup Poll says; and the diplomat takes a taxi ride to find out what "the people" are saying. The idea of the wisdom of the taxi driver is one of America's greatest myths. It is utter nonsense. The taxi driver is universally a hanging juror.

Before Howard Fast left the communist party he wrote a book about the Sacco-Vanzetti case, and I had to smile at it. I recognized the author's terrible dilemma in trying to square the facts in the case with his "class war" concept. The truth of the matter was that the "little people" were unanimous: "Hang the dirty..." and every taxi driver said: "I'd like to pull the switch myself on those dogs." Of course. The stupidity of the unfair trial, the bigotry of the judge, the entire case itself was kept alive by a blue blood, an aristocrat, the corporation lawyer, Mr. William G. Thompson. This Mr. Thompson said quietly, "It is clear to me that they are trying those two people for their avowed anarchism instead of for the alleged murders." And Mr. Thompson decided to do something about it. (Always at his side was the young assistant defense attorney, my good friend and subscriber, Mr. Herbert Ehrmann of Boston.) For the next six or seven years they kept that judge busy answering a new writ every Monday morning. Mr. Thompson lost some of his corporation clients, he became unpopular with some of his fellow Brahmins, and earned the everlasting contempt of the taxi drivers; that is why he now sits on that parapet in heaven reserved for the men of dignity, honor, and fair play.

Everyone Waits Leadership at the very top is lacking and this is reflected at every other level of our political culture of 1959. Everybody waits for the polls, or for the TV ratings, which are tearing the hearts out of so many of our most talented people.

Instead of leadership, we have samplings and it is all quite ridiculous, especially that 14 per cent that is always "undecided." Undecided now isn't that something? The poll asks: "How do you feel about the new Paris styles?" And there are 14 per cent undecided. And yet everybody, from the top administration down, holds an ear to the ground and swallows whole the silly sampling culture.

Just suppose there had been a sampling or rating system in Rome in the year 60 A.D. The results would have been as follows:

For Jupiter 63 per centum
For Mithras 21 per centum
For Jesus 2 per centum
Undecided 14 per centum

Now if Saint Paul had been a "sampling man" instead of a leader, he would have packed up and gone on back to Palestine, especially after hearing what every taxi driver was saying: "Let's hang that little bald-headed Jew." But, luckily for the Christians, Paul did not subscribe to any sampling polls, and so he just went ahead with his program, and conquered the whole works: the Roman Empire, Jupiter, and Mithras, including even the great Goddess of Vestal Virgins.

21-Year Beer Sale Ordinance Killed By Council, 6-4

Citizen Questions Propriety of Vote After Session Adjourns

Menasha — A 6-4 city council vote Tuesday defeated a proposed ordinance to limit beer sale to persons over 21. The vote followed several citizens' speeches to the council for and against the ordinance.

Aldermen voting to reject the ordinance were Paul Laemmrich, George Stulp, John Klein, Fred Rohloff, Edward Stinski and Ray Zielinski. Aldermen Lee Rather, Fritz Block, Louis Gamme and Gordon Schanke voted for it.

After the council adjourned, Laemmrich a citizen asked an alderman about "conflict of interest" in the beer issue. He questioned the propriety and legality of Laemmrich's voting on the ordinance, since Laemmrich is a beer salesman.

May Challenge Vote
The citizen said he was considering legal action to challenge Laemmrich's vote.

Stulp, chairman of the ordinance and resolution committee, said he plans to reconsider the 21-year ordinance next April when tavern, liquor and beer licenses are to be reissued for the year beginning July 1.

During the council meeting, Stulp moved to have the ordinance postponed indefinitely. Laemmrich voted against it.

Mayor R. G. DuCharme ruled the motion out of order since Ald. Lee Rather already had a motion before the council to consider the ordinance.

Rather asked for a reading of the ordinance so he could make the motion. The ordinance was in committee for two weeks and Stulp fought against bringing it up for action.

He cast the only vote against the second reading. Stulp argued for delay "due to its importance. It's controversial and truthfully we haven't had enough time to study it."

Rather commented: "I can't understand this parliamentary maneuvering. If Aldermen Stulp and Laemmrich are so concerned about it being brought up too fast, let it be considered for approval and see how the council stands."

15-Minute Recess
During a 15-minute recess, the Rev. John Hanchett, pastor of First Congregational, addressed the council.

Gift of Land Strip Approved by Council

School Stationers Corporation to Build Office Addition; 3 Aldermen Opposed

Menasha — A strip of Railroad street in front of School Stationers corporation was approved by a 6-4 city council vote Tuesday night.

Vacation of the street land will be subject to the company's granting an easement to the water and light commission for leaving two utility poles in place.

Voting against the gift of the street land were Ald. Fred Block, Louis Gamme and Edward Schanke.

Neenah Offers Crafts Class

Registration for 6-Weeks Program Begins Thursday

Neenah — A winter craft workshop is being offered again this year for children by the Neenah recreation department. Because of class limitation and the advanced type of crafts to be offered, the class will be open only to boys and girls in the sixth grade and up.

This year the class will emphasize crafts that can be completed in time for Christmas. Classes will run for six weeks, starting Nov. 14 and continuing until Dec. 19. Classes will be on Saturday mornings at the Neenah recreation building, with two classes scheduled, one from 9 to 10:30 a.m. and the other from 10:30 a.m. until noon.

Registration will be taken in advance. Children may register in person Thursday and Friday from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 4 p.m. and Saturday from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at the recreation office.

The class is offered without charge except that members will pay for the materials they use. They should bring the money for the kit at the time they register. Al Goerlich, who taught the summer advanced craft classes and has worked in the playground system and at summer camps, will teach the course.

School Board Minutes Only 'Accepted'

Minutes of the Board of Education Meeting of Oct. 26 Were 'Received and Filed' by a 9-1 City Council Vote Tuesday

Ald. Gordon Schanke, who made the motion, said they should only be received and filed because of a parliamentary maneuver of restating a motion made by Commissioner John Pawlowski.

"To dispute with the order of business so members of the audience (could) be permitted to comment on any miscellaneous items."

The following paragraph in the minutes records that "the motion as stated by President (Ted) Neely was that the order of business be dispensed with so that members of the audience be permitted to comment on the adoption of the resolution."

The land strip, up to 10 feet wide, was requested by the company for an office addition, to stand on pillars in a recessed part of the building. Cars would be parked below the offices.

The strip also includes the land on which the firm's loading dock stands. It was leased in 1951 by the city.

Double parking and other congestion was discussed by several councilmen. The police should enforce parking regulations there, councilmen agreed. The mayor said he has had no complaints about parking there.

Proprietor Fined $250 for Selling Liquor to Minors

Oshkosh — Franklin Krause, proprietor of the Harrison Bar, was fined $250 and costs by Municipal Judge S. J. Luchsinger this morning after entering a plea of no contest to charges of selling intoxicating liquor to minors Saturday night.

Krause's attorney entered the plea and waived preliminary examination.

Three 20-year old Oshkosh youths received $15 fines Monday for loitering in the tavern. A fourth, Earl Schettl, died of injuries received in an accident in which the four were involved.

Attaches have been received from Menasha; Little Chute, Manitowish, Detroit and Lansing in Michigan, and also from Ohio. Last year the balloons, aided by better weather, traveled as far as Missouri, Texas, Louisiana, Iowa, Nebraska and Arkansas.

One of the letters received back in Saturday's balloon releasing contained a proposal for marriage.

Reject Move To Open Beach

Rather Cautions '60 Budget Unable To Stand Costs

Menasha — By a 7-3 vote, the city council Tuesday rejected a move to reopen the old municipal bathing beach, at the extreme east end of the city on Lake Winnebago.

Ald. Edward Stinski moved for reopening the beach, closed since 1937 when the swimming pool began operations. His motion was seconded by Ald. Paul Laemmrich.

Ald. Lee Rather, finance committee chairman, told the council the city's 1960 budget "could not stand another $10,000 for lifeguards, policing and maintenance."

Stinski countered the city would not need a lifeguard there.

Mayor R. G. DuCharme, who agreed the beach is "a lovely, valuable piece of property," reminded the council the city one time was obliged to pay $10,000 damages for a drowning there.

Swimming at the beach, the mayor added, at times is unpleasant since algae float on the water.

The only aldermen voting for reopening were Stinski, Louis Gamme and Laemmrich.

Divorce Granted To Menasha Woman

Oshkosh — Mary E. Wharton, 38, Menasha, has been granted a divorce from Herman O. Wheaton, 42, Menasha, in county court on her charge of cruel and inhuman treatment.

Judge Herbert J. Mueller awarded custody of the two children to Mrs. Wheaton and she is to receive $20 a week support money, $20 a week alimony and the household furnishings. He is to pay attorney fees. The couple married in Kaukauna in January of 1951.

New Guidance Center To be Ready by Jan. 1

Staff Not Secured but 'Team' Could Be Hired for $36,200, Board Told

Oshkosh — The new guidance center in the former WNAM television studio "washing out" but that there should be ready for occupancy by Jan. 1, Supv. John Wallace, Jr., Oshkosh, welfare board chairman, advised the county board Tuesday afternoon.

But, he added, we have not as yet secured the help to be a stenographer so that the entire cost for operating the guidance center should be less than the $50,000 placed in the proposed budget, board members were told.

The $35,000 set up in this year's budget for the guidance center will be spent and the balance will go back into the general fund.

Wallace said he understood the carpenters would be finishing their work in the remodeling of the television studio about the middle of this month and then the painters would move in. Cost of the remodeling is being borne by private citizens rather than the county, he added.

Entry Gained Into Machine Company

Oshkosh — Entry was gained into the Accurate Machine company, Highway 41, town of Menasha, sometime Monday night but company officials reported nothing was missing.

Two windows on the east side of the building were broken but a metal bar across the window prevented entry. A door on the south side was jammed to gain entrance and a desk was ransacked.

Pay Hikes Passed for Courthouse Employees

Winnebago County Board Votes 13 Raises Over Rural Objections

Oshkosh — Salary increases for 13 courthouse employees were approved by the Winnebago county board Tuesday. Largest raises were $600 a year to the county judge and juvenile court judge. Raises of $300 yearly each were approved for the clerk of court, county clerk, register of deeds, sheriff, superintendent of schools, treasurer and district attorney.

Questions Raised

"I don't see why we should give raises at this time when farm income has dropped 30 per cent and the present steel strike is taking jobs from so many," Supv. Gordon M. Hanson, Winchester, said. "I feel we should wait and give these raises at a later time, at a time more suitable."

His objections started a pattern of objections to resolutions for salary raises, mainly from some rural board members.

Supervisors Max Carpenter, Rushford; Archie Daggett, Omro; Reinhold Grunski, Neenah; Hanson, George Hunter, Utica; Frank H. Metz, Clayton; Warren Miracle, Vinland; Ray Prellwitz, Nepeuskun, and Harold Raddatz, Black Wolf, voted no for the employee pay hike.

Objectors Vote

Objectors to the raise for county judges were Carpenter, Daggett, Grunski, Hanson, Laurel Heaney, town of Neenah, Hunter, Henry A. Jankowski, Menasha, William Kelsch, of Oshkosh, Miracle and Metz.

The assistant district attorney and divorce counsel will receive $150 a year raises.

"We get more help legally and less attention from our legal representatives at board meetings," Hanson said. "There was a time our district attorney sat at a board meeting and answered our questions," he added.

Raises of $240 for the county home agent and $140 for the assistant county agent passed unanimously.

Mileage Pay

The board also approved a resolution to pay county school committee members 7 cents a mile for travel. It is the same rate members of the board receive.

The county civil defense coordinator, who up to now received no salary, after Jan. 1, 1960 will receive $1,200 yearly. Another resolution approved setting up a job classification of clerk I to operate the microfilm equipment the county will purchase. The position carries a salary of $150 a month.

properly supervised at home? If the problem is pressing, put it to referendum, let the citizens vote on it."

Joseph Kubicka said the council was talking about more than letting young people drink at home or in beer taverns. "We are talking of the future moral tone of the city. I've heard comments from people asking why the young can't go into any tavern and drink beer, where they could have adult supervision. What kind of supervision would they get? From the bartender? He's only interested in selling them beer. From the confirmed barfly? From the police, who are sometimes called to quell disturbances? When I hear the words 'adult supervision' I wonder what it means."

"Not Become Reformers"

Atty. Ray Fink said he didn't think Menasha today is any worse than 30 years ago, adding the people should not "become reformers. If it were statewide, it would be a different matter. I am not for one community adopting such an ordinance. Get the nearby communities and the outlying area to go along."

The Rev. Mr. Hanchett said there is a rule about "one step at a time. If the towns would adopt such ordinances, may-

County Board's Confidence in District Attorney Questioned

Oshkosh—Confidence of the Winnebago county board in its legal advisor was questioned by District Attorney Jack Steinhilber Tuesday.

His remark grew out of a discussion on the legality of the register of deeds extending credit for recording services.

A fee is required to be paid in advance to the register of deeds for services. Several times the fees are not collected before the work is done. But, the bills are paid within days after statements are sent out, the district attorney explained.

Sup. William Kelsch, Oshkosh, said he at one time saw $3,000 in outstanding credit on the books of the register of deeds.

"This must have been before statements were sent out," Steinhilber said. I can assure you gentlemen the figure on the books is far less than that at present."

Kelsch asked the board to go on record asking the register of deeds to conduct the office according to state statutes. "That would imply the office is not conducted right," the district attorney replied. Steinhilber held that the term "payable in advance" could be legally construed to mean paid in a reasonable time such as is done at present.

Sup. Herbert Pitz, Oshkosh, made a motion the attorney general be asked for an opinion on the legality of conduct of the office and legal meaning of the clause in the statute.

"Is it always necessary to go to the attorney general, who is always an extremely busy man, for an opinion?" the district attorney asked. "I think the attorney general is going to get tired of having the DA of Winnebago county always asking him for opinions," he added.

"Can't you trust my work as your legal advisor?" he asked. Pitz's motion was defeated.

Menasha Driver Involved in Two Minor Crashes

Oshkosh — A car driven by David R. Fahrback, 17, of 394 Elm street, Menasha, was involved in two minor accidents within a 15-minute period Tuesday night.

Fahrback's car was struck by a vehicle driven by Miss Charlotte Missling, 604 S. Lake street, Neenah, as she backed out of the Wheeler parking lot in the town of Menasha at 9 p.m. His left front door was damaged.

Fifteen minutes later his vehicle went into the ditch on Haase street at the railroad tracks in the town of Menasha.

Fahrback said the front wheel went on to the shoulder, throwing the steering wheel out of his hand. The auto traveled 93 feet before hitting a tree. He was uninjured but was charged with speeding.

Approve Parking Regulations for Nassau Street

Menasha — Parking on the east side of Nassau street will be prohibited and limited to two hours on the west side, the city council decided Tuesday.

The street, one of the city's narrowest, is popular with Nicolet school teachers and employees of Gilbert Paper and George Banta companies.

Two weeks ago, the matter had been referred to the ordinance and resolution committee. However, no committee action had been taken on the Oct. 20 recommendation for 2-hour parking on both sides.

Preparing Game for Table
Easier Than Getting Birds

Neenah — Now that the men in the family are coming home with wild duck and pheasant, it is a good time to add to your collection of recipes for roasting game — and everyone knows the cooks' job is easier than the hunters'.

Do allow one duck for every two persons to be served. Wipe the inside with a clean, damp cloth and sprinkle interior with salt and pepper. Stuff each bird with wild rice cooked in consommé, or favorite bread dressing, or with fresh fruit.

Lay strips of bacon over the breasts and roast in an open pan in a pre-heated oven at 325 degrees for an hour or 450 degrees for half an hour. Wild duck fanciers prefer the meat a little on the pink side. The higher temperature for the shorter time is better for rare duck.

For an excellent sauce combine one glass of currant jelly with 4 cup of port wine, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and one teaspoon slivered orange peel. Heat ingredients together until they reach the boiling point.

A pheasant usually will serve four persons. Wipe bird inside and out with clean damp cloth and sprinkle interior with salt and pepper.

Analyst Criticizes
Humanitarianism
In Foreign Policy

Neenah — Over-emphasis of humanitarianism and morality in United States foreign policy was criticized by the executive director of Chicago Council on Foreign Relations Tuesday.

Carter Davidson, a radio and television news analyst, told Woman's Tuesday club "humanitarianism is a great and wonderful thing" but foreign policy is a series of arrangements to serve the selfish interests of the nation. A policy of morality may not be serving the best interests, he cautioned.

Illustrating his point, Davidson pointed to the right of self-determination, which has become a cardinal principle in this country. We do violence to that principle when we ask the French how many more helicopters are needed for their fight with the Algerians, he stated. "A strong France is more important to us at this moment than Algeria having self-determination."

We have had to violate humanitarianism for political expediency and we must continue to do so, he advised.

Food Shortage
About 60 per cent of the world's population goes to bed hungry each night, the news analyst said, pointing to humanitarian deeds which lead to unsolved problems. We have conquered disease in many parts of the world through our laboratories, he said. We have done away with diseases which were blessed miracles in the past to curb population, he explained. Who can criticize the humanitarianism of lowering infant mortality rate, but now how do we feed the increased numbers, he asked.

Taxes will continue to be high because we have to deal with this problem of not having raised productivity in ratio to the lowered death rate, warned Davidson.

Discussing mental attitudes about foreign policy, Davidson, who formerly was an Associated Press foreign correspondent in Europe and the Middle East and has had 20 years' experience in the news-

Rottier scored in only two games, getting three touchdowns in a 26-20 win over Marinette Central Catholic and two on pass receptions in the 19-19 tie with Fond du Lac Springs last Friday.

Little Chute St. John's Ed Hammen garnered runnerup honors with 16 on two touchdowns and four conversions and Joe Schmitt of Pennings and Bob Pecotte of Marinette were next in line with 13 apiece.

Identical Total The 30 points is the identical total which won the crown for Little Chute's Tim Tousey last year. However, three players, Ed Lotzer and Tom Balthazor, St. Mary, and Joe Schmitt, St. Norbert, (Pennings) all had more than this year's runnerup.

This year's total fell far short of the record set by Tom Kiernan of St. Norbert, who scored 80 in 1946 when the league had six football-playing clubs.

Other recent totals included Jim Hammen, St. John, 60 in 1951; Don Ourada, St. John, 32 in 1952; Bob VandeBurg, St. John, 27 and 30, respectively, in 1953 and 1954; Dick Schuerer, St. Mary, 49, in 1955 and Tousey, 1957 with 42.

26 Players Score Twenty-six players broke in to the scoring column compared to 31 last year, 21 the preceding year and 29 the season before that.

Conference squads scored 34 touchdowns and converted after 20 of them. Pennings led the way with 10 touchdowns and five conversions.

Pennings had the best offensive record of 65 points but also had the poorest defensive mark, allowing the same number of points.

Champion St. John ranked fourth in the 5-team league in scoring with 34 points. It won both of its games by 7-0 scores and tied the other two.

The Dutchmen only allowed 20 points to rank first defensively. St. Mary had the weakest offense, scoring only Space Has More of a Meaning to Tom Seborna, a second grade pupil at Washington school in Neenah, than just television programs or comic strips. The 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester H. Seborna, 720 Congress place, Neenah, made an exhibit display at the Neenah public library and his written stories about outer space. He is shown with some of the books he has read on that subject.

Risk Warning Signs Ordered for Bridge

Council Acts to Prevent Collapse of Ancient Span Over Menasha Canal

Menasha — "Travel at own risk" and "3,000-pound load limit" signs for both ends of the short, ancient Mill street bridge span were authorized Tuesday by the city council as a means of preventing damage suits and its collapse. City Atty. William R. Giese said he doubted whether the signs could absolve the city from liability should the span collapse into the Lawton canal, but he pointed out the city has power to condemn and abandon the old structure. Substructure braces of the bridge have been falling into the channel. Mayor R. G. DuCharme said leaving the span there was "a serious mistake by a previous council. The whole bridge should have been condemned, not only the draw-bridge," which spanned the navigation channel. It was taken down when the new Racine street bridge was completed.

The next meeting will be Dec. 7 at the home of Mrs. Arlene Drews. It will be a pot luck with gift exchange.

The turkey dinner and membership drive was discussed at the meeting of Legion members. The membership deadline is Nov. 8. Ross Buchanan, chairman, reported that there are 48 paid up members.

2 Libraries Integrated

Board Approves $21,560, Doubles The 1959 Figure

Oshkosh — Rural supervisors of Winnebago county has voted unanimously for a resolution requesting $21,560 for purposes of integrating the county library with the Oshkosh public library.

Reasons for the figure, double the 1959 total of $10,920, include hiring of a new librarian, cataloging the library, rising book costs and purchase of new book carts.

Franklin Neuschafer, Fremont, cited a letter he had received from a county resident protesting the retirement of Mrs. Mellie Anderson. The letter said she was forced to do so, Neuschafer said.

"This in effect is true," said Leonard B. Archer, library director said. "Mrs. Anderson require a fee.

Education Week Program Nov. 10

Menasha — National Education week will be observed Tuesday, Nov. 10, in a Menasha High school program beginning at 7 p.m.

The Junior-Senior High school PTA will be in charge of the social hour beginning at 8:25 p.m. in the activities room for parents and teachers.

Archer also said the new integrated system would make books from both the public and county library available to rural residents at no fee. Several supervisors said people in the county thought the new plan would require a fee.

A Halloween party for junior high youth of St. Thomas Episcopal church over the weekend had some unscheduled but authentic atmosphere about the hall while the party was in progress in the parish hall.

New Books at Library

'Do-It-Yourself' Movement Stems From Creative Urge

Menasha — Mankind's urge to create is the motivating factor behind much of the "do-it-yourself" movement that so many adults are participating in today.

With the start of the adult classes at the Menasha Vocational school comes a great number of book requests on such varied subjects as sewing, drawing and painting, knitting, woodworking and upholstery, says Librarian Marvin Melick.

Elisha D. Smith public library has just placed on its shelves a 2-volume set, which is a comprehensive "How-To" series for the entire family.

"Audel's Do-It-Yourself Encyclopedia" is written in simple language with full step-by-step instructions, well illustrated. A great number of self-help books are available at your public library and the librarians welcome the chance to help find wanted material.

Other new non-fiction available this week includes three biographies. "Yes, Mr. DeMille" by Phil Koury is a humorous and candid appraisal of an extraordinary showman Cecil B. DeMille, who created legends more fascinating than his film spectacles.

"Groucho and Me" by Groucho Marx is a biography of the Marx brothers. "The Cardinal Stritch Story" by Marie Buehrle, is a gift of the Third Order of St. Francis.

New fiction this week includes Willard Temple's "Every Day Is Sunday." This humorous novel tells of a man who at the age of 51 retired to Florida where the 7-Sunday week proves an optimistic illusion. A novel based on the life of Mrs. Jefferson Davis is presented in Harnett Kane's "Bride of Fortune," an excellent picture of the Confederacy and wartime Richmond.

"Yes, My Darlin' Daughters" by David Duncan tells a man's unending struggle to remain master in his own home.

"The Finished Man" by George Garrett presents a tumultuous novel around a political campaign in present-day Florida.

Jankowski, a member of the county board's welfare committee, operated a paint store 15 years and a filling station 17 years in Menasha, his lifelong home. He also served on the board of education in the 1930's and on the St. John parish building committee for the school, gymnasium, priests' house and convent addition.

County Wins Court Ruling

Ancient Elm Tree Befriended in Test By High Tribunal

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — An ancient and huge elm tree which has adorned a Calumet county trunk highway for decades found friends on the Wisconsin supreme court Tuesday.

Justices of the court concurred in an opinion written by Chief Justice John E. Martin which held that counties are not responsible for negligent road conditions when road users are traveling too fast for conditions.

The unusual litigation grew out of a collision four years ago between a car driven by Gerald Kornetzke and the big elm tree which divides the county trunk Q, on the boundaries of Calumet, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac counties.

Won Judgment for $5,000 damages under a special statute, and won a judgment in the Calumet county court, Judge H. F. Arps presiding.

When the road was built, it was divided to permit the sparing of the tree from destruction.

Kornetzky was driving, fast on a foggy night and on a wet blacktop road surface when he struck the venerable elm and totally wrecked his car. He asked for recovery under a law which provides that counties are liable for negligence in keeping roads in repair.

But Justice Martin and the other members of the highest state appeal court disagreed. They said Kornetzky was obviously traveling at an illegal rate of speed, and at a speed too fast for conditions as shown by the 90 feet skid marks and the testimony about the fog at the time.

Board to Ask New Start on Ordinance

The city council tonight will be asked to start over with publication of an ordinance changing the policy in determining interest charges on public assessments.

Board of public works members will ask that wording be changed to prohibit entry of assessment taxes on the tax roll before improvement work is completed and accepted by the council.

Present wording, said City Clerk Broehm, instructs him to enter the bills on the tax roll as soon as the council passes the final resolution authorizing commencement of work.

Bill Before Work Both he and Director of Public Works Duszynski agree, he said, that work not done before tax bills are received in late December.

It's poor policy to give out a bill before work is done, board members agreed. Broehm also noted that a change state law forbids entry on the tax roll of special

HOOVER Convertible 65

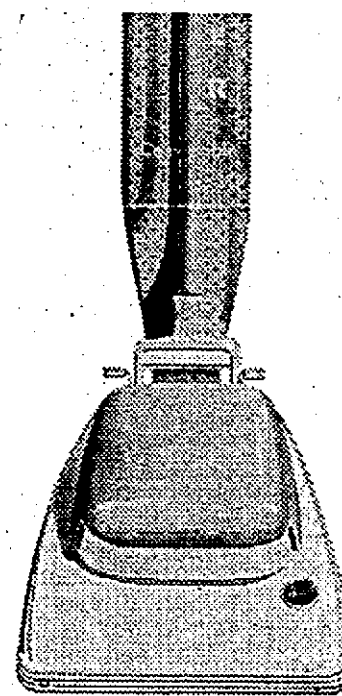

The Hoover Convertible with its exclusive agitator does a cleaning job no other cleaner short of a Hoover can match. It gets the deep-down dirt other cleaners miss because it beats, as it sweeps, as it cleans.

Lightweight and easygoing the Hoover does all the work—you just guide it.

Kingsize throw-away bag needs changing less often.

Outer vinyl jacket is dust and odor free—wipes clean with a damp cloth.

The Convertible has 50% more suction when used with attachments because of Hoover's
